Napoleon After Defeat. His Books and Thoughts. Adversity Was Walking. The Ferocious English.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LORD ROSEBERY, who wrote "Napoleon, the last phase," and was prime minister of England when he wrote the book, must have been interested in Napoleon's saying:

"I have been reading three volumes on India. What rascals the English are! If I had been able to get to India from Egypt with the nucleus of my army I should have driven them from India. The east only wants a man. The master of Egypt is the master of India. But now we shall see what will come to them from Russia. The Russians, already in Persia, have not far to go to reach India."

Later he says:

"Russia is the power that marches most surely, and with the greatest strides, towards universal dominion, for now there is no France, and therefore no equilibrium."

France has returned to power. She is not the shaken national that Napoleon left her, after the severe bleeding that he had given to the French. But Russia is still "the power that marches the most surely, and with the greatest strides."

The Russia of today, with the last of the czars murdered, in his grave, and a man of the people ruling, with no throne and no crown, would interest Napoleon, who knew the value of outward appearances for impressing the ignorant, but despised them.

His happiest moment was:

"After my victories in Italy; what enthusiasm; what cries of 'Long live the liberator of Italy!' And all at twenty-five. At that time I saw what I might become. I already saw the world beneath me, as if I were being carried through the air."

At another time Napoleon said he should have remained in Egypt. He liked the desert, his own name meaning "lion of the desert." Among his innumerable plans and dreams were definite plans for a career in the East.

"Arabia awaits a man. With the French in reserve, and the Arabs as auxiliaries, I should have seized Judea; I should have been master of the East.

"Had I known Acre, I should have gone to India. I should have assumed the turban at Aleppo, and have headed an army of two hundred thousand men. Had I been able to make allies of the Mamelukes, I should have been master of the East."

To this he added:

"Egypt once in possession of the French, farewell India to the British. It was one of the grand projects I aimed at."

Stalin may have the same aim before he finishes his career, conducted quietly, and his ambitions, that probably no one suspects.

For publication in Sunday newspapers tomorrow, this writer has prepared an article on "The Twilight of Napoleon," dealing for the second time with his last days, after the defeat at Waterloo. You are advised again to read "Napoleon: The Last Phase," by Lord Rosebery, published by Harper & Brothers.

To know such a man as Napoleon in his day of bitter defeat is to learn a good deal about human nature.

NAPOLEON was interested in books, the thoughts and writings of other men.

"We read of his tearing along to join his armies, his coach full of books and pamphlets, which would be flung out of the window when he had run through them. When he traveled with Josephine, all the newest books were put into the carriage for her to read to him."

SOME THAT FOUND themselves flat after 1929 will appreciate Napoleon's saying:

"Adversity was wanting to my career."

At St. Helena, he enjoyed looking over his career, and once referring to one of the official year-books of his reign, he said:

"It was a fine empire. I ruled eighty-three millions of human beings—more than half the population of Europe."

NAPOLEON always wanted books with him, and even planned a portable library of three thousand volumes, abandoning the idea when he found it would take a million dollars, and six years to prepare the library. It would be interesting to know what three thousand books would have been chosen. He always had books with him.

"Even to Waterloo he was accompanied by a traveling library of eight hundred volumes in six cases—the Bible, Homer, Ossian, Bossuet, and all the seventy volumes of Voltaire."

He probably had heard the saying that "Voltaire's seventy-first volume was the French revolution," the revolution that made Napoleon and his career possible.

Apparently he carried no volume of Rousseau, although, standing by Rousseau's grave, he had said that, without Rousseau, there would have been no revolution, and, without the revolution, no Napoleon.

ON THE Island of St. Helena he read furiously "history, philosophy, strategy and memoirs. Of these last alone he read seventy-two volumes in twelve months. He would

LIQUOR PRICES TO BE CUT

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(AP.)—The Public Ledger says liquor prices in Pennsylvania will be reduced within 10 days "following numerous protests from thousands of citizens that the present charges are too high."

The paper says the State Liquor Control Board is engaged in preparing a revised price list and may make it public within a few days.

W. Worrell Wagner, new member of the board, "induced other members to slash the prices, contending that if the state-store system is to be made permanent the cost to the consumer must be reduced," the Ledger reports.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—A Presidential decision to discard import quotas temporarily will leave a $5 per gallon tariff as the only restrainer to an unlimited flow of foreign liquor.

HARRISBURG, March 10.—(INS.)—Four new brands of whisky at $1.50 a fifth of a gallon go on sale in the state liquor stores Monday, the state liquor control board announced today.

DEFENSE HINTS AT PLOT

An expose of the underworld's former connections with the Police Department loomed today as attorneys prepared the defense of Irvin (Iggy) Schwartz, who goes on trial next week for the slaying of Andy Garavini, hacker.

From his cell in Western Penitentiary, the defense is prepared to bring a former city plainclothesman to testify that on at least three occasions Garavini conspired to put Iggy on the spot.

STATEMENT MADE

Brunner is said already to have made a statement that a former policeman was to have been the trigger man in one of the plots Garavini engineered to wipe out the former husband of his red-haired wife.

On that occasion the assassin refrained from pulling the trigger only because the shot from ambush would have endangered Iggy's

BEER GARDEN MANAGER FINED

Sobriety of Police in Monaca Club Site Raid Unsettled

The question of whether two plainclothesmen who raided the beer garden, successor to the Monaca Club, were drunk hadn't been cleared up today.

Mayor McNair quit an investigation yesterday without solving the problem and today conflicting testimony as to the sobriety of the two officers marked the hearing of James Courtney, manager of the establishment, before Magistrate Charles J. McCall, in Oakland Police Court. Courtney was fined $10 with the alternative of serving 30 days in jail, on a disorderly conduct charge.

Courtney testified that John Novak and James McInerney, plainclothesmen of Oakland Station, came to the back door of the garden, across Forbes street from the police station, at 1:45 a. m. yesterday. He added:

"I saw two men. I knew Novak. He was drunk. I wouldn't let them in."

SAYS POLICE BEAT HIM

Later, Courtney testified, the two forced their way in through the front door, began beating him and overturning tables. He ran across the street and notified Lieut. Peter Laheney. Courtney explained:

"I couldn't stand for it. I have a $15,000 investment in the place."

Courtney, questioned closely by the magistrate, admitted he was the owner of the garden, but that the liquor license was held in the name of Henry Bergles, who lives on a farm near Brentwood. He had a restaurant license, but had closed the doors when the two officers broke in, he said.

Lieut. Laheney was asked by the magistrate what condition the two officers were in at the time he found them in Courtney's place. He replied:

"Just the same as now."

CHARGES LAW VIOLATION

Novak testified that early yesterday he and McInerney had visited the garden three times, but could not gain admission. The place was violating the closing law, Novak said.

Novak said that as he and McInerney finally forced their way through the front door, Courtney told them:

"To hell with you and all police, including the superintendent and the Mayor."

Novak started to order the people out, he said. A fight started in which McInerney joined, it was said.

DILLINGER'S GUN HALTS PURSUIT

Shots of Police Chief, Road Officers Fail To Stop Outlaw

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP.)—A sensational gun fight in which the police believe John Dillinger, "kill-crazy" jail breaker, was the chief gunner, sent investigators on an intensified hunt for the slippery desperado today.

The fight occurred late last night in suburban Schiller Park between gunmen and Police Chief Robert Christian, whose car was diabled by gunfire.

CHAUFFEUR KIDNAPED

The men, whose leader was identified by James Gaskin, a chauffeur, as Dillinger, escaped. They are believed to have gone to a hideout in Wisconsin.

Chief Christian had pursued two speeding sedans. As he drew up to within 10 feet of the larger of the two, a gun was thrust through the rear window. Shots splattered all around the chief, but he was unhurt. He returned the fire, but without apparent effect, and the two cars sped away.

One of he machines was believed to have been the same one stolen earlier in the night from Mrs. Herman Stern, by whom Gaskin is employed. Gaskin told police that three or four men in another car kidnaped him, stole Mrs. Stern's car, took him with them and then forced him out, speeding away to safety. From pictures he said he recognized Dillinger as one of the men.

EXPERT ARRESTED

Federal officials delivered their second blow in the Dillinger affair by ordering the arrest of Ernest Blunk, fingerprint expert, who is accused of locking Matt Brown, one of Dillinger's guards, in a cell shortly before Dillinger escaped. Previously the government removed its eight prisoners from the Crown Point jail to South Bend.

The order for Blunk's arrest was based on the allegation that he violated the Dyer Act by driving a stolen automobile across the Indiana-Illinois line with Dillinger as a passenger last Saturday when Dillinger escaped with the aid of a wooden pistol. The automobile, stolen from Sheriff Lillian Holley, later was found abandoned in Chicago. Blunk protested that he was compelled to do the driving at the point of a gun.

State Highway Policemen Albert Topp and William Miller said that a few moments after hearing a radio description of the Dillinger machine, the car whizzed by them on Mannheim road traveling 80 miles an hour. They opened fire, they said, the occupants of the car returning their shots as they disappeared in the distance.

Dillinger Pal Identified As Slayer of Sheriff

LIMA, O., March 10.—(A.P.)—With a nod of his shaven head and a grin Edward Shouse named Harry Pierpont as the man who shot down former Sheriff Jess Sarber last October 12, when John Dillinger was freed from Allen County Jail.

A criminal with a long record in his own right, the former pal of the sleek Pierpont summed up his identification in Pierpont's trial on the charge of first degree murder with the laconic:

"Pierpont was the guy."

Shouse was brought here from Indiana State Prison in a bullet-proof automobile. After completing his testimony he was returned to the Indiana prison under heavy guard.

Shouse testified that Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russell Clark were the three men who entered the jail office here last October 12, shot down the sheriff and walked out with Dillinger, who had been held on a bank robbery charge.

CLASH IN PROBE AT AMBRIDGE

AMBRIDGE, Pa., March 10.—Opposing attorneys today painted two contrary pictures of the Ambridge riots of last October before the Governor's Commission on Industrial Police, sitting in public hearing today.

Strikers were called "out of hand, a serious menace and a dangerous situation" by State Senator W. D. Craig, counsel for Sheriff C. J. O'Laughlin, of Beaver County.

Jacob Seligsohn, of Pittsburgh, representing the strikers, said:

"We propose to show that this trouble came as the result of a deliberate plan to smash the picket lines by force and arms."

Seligsohn bitterly protested Craig's offer to present to the commission testimony of 85 witnesses taken by District Attorney A. B. de Castrique immediately after the rioting, on the grounds

PRESIDENT ACTS AFTER 10 DIE IN AIR CRASHES; LINDY IN CAPITAL

BULLETIN

Motivating the action was loss of life in the undertaking.

Even at the time of the action more protests were being raised in Congress against the Army carriage of the mails which have been followed by 10 deaths of Army fliers.

He ordered the elimination of all but the most necessary air mail flying. He further directed every safeguard humanly possible be thrown about the equipment and personnel of the Army air service.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—Crashes that brought death to four more Army airmen threatened more dispute in Congress today, with majority leaders seeking to avert it.

But Republican opponents of Army mail handling, who brought turbulent disruption of Senate proceedings and hastened an adjournment of the House, were just as determined to gain the floor again.

Cries of "legalized murder" and "useless sacrifice of life" were shouted in the Senate by Fess, of Ohio, Republican whip. Democrats charged he spoke for "political purposes."

In the ranks of both parties, however, there were expressions of regret over the Wyoming crash that killed Lieuts. F. L. Howard, of Shreveport, La., and A. R. Kerwin, of March Field, Cal., last night.

TWO FLYING MAIL

The same was true of yesterday's earlier accidents in which Private Ernest Sell was killed at Daytona Beach, Fla., and Lieut. Otto Wienecke lost his life at Chardon, O. Only the two latter were actually engaged in transporting mail at the time of their death.

Democratic supporters of the administration's cancellation of air mail contracts have pointed out that of 10 army fliers who perished only three were killed while actually transporting the mail.

An emergency airmail bill, designed to facilitate Army transportation of the mails, was on the Senate calendar, but leaders doubted whether it would be reached.

A few minutes later the controversy broke on the Senate floor in furious debate. Senator Fess leveled charges of "inhuman, un-American and indefensible conduct" at the administration.

Lewis, of Illinois, broke in to ask why Fess waited until "after the accidents happened" to bring his charges. It was he who asserted that the Republican declarations were made in a "loath-

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—The administration today sought the views of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the entire Army aviation question.

The flier accepted an invitation from Secretary Dern to confer at the latter's office. Dern told reporters:

"I desire to have as accurate first-hand information on all aviation questions as possible, and so I requested Col. Lindbergh to come to Washington.

"I consider him one of the greatest living aeronautical authorities, and I know that he will be able to give us a great amount of information."

Asked whether Lindbergh's visit had any connection with mail, Dern replied:

"Col. Lindbergh and I will discuss the Army's carrying the air mail in this emergency but his visit is not primarily in that connection."

Bareheaded and without a topcoat, Lindbergh went alone from his hotel to the War Department by taxicab. He conferred with Dern over the big round table in the general staff conference room.

Secretary Dern was asked by newspapermen if Lindbergh would visit the White House and replied:

"I shall take him to see the President if he asks me."

Roosevelt Plans Fishing Excursion

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(INS.)—Weary of long hours of constant work, President Roosevelt will spend the last week or 10 days of this month cruising and fishing off the coast of Florida, unless conditions in Congress are so unsettled as to compel him to remain here.

Should Mr. Roosevelt make the proposed sea trip, he will go as the guest of Vincent Astor aboard the latter's luxurious yacht, "The Nourmahal."

League Propaganda in Libraries

Carnegie Foundation Uses Total Funds Of $246,035,319

This is the third of a series of four articles disclosing for the first time from government records the activities of the huge propaganda machine, financed by untold millions, which is attempting to put the United States into the League of Nations and its League Court, cancel war debts and curtail the Army and Navy.

By JOHN A. KENNEDY

One of the most fertile fields for the dissemination of League Court and other internationalist propaganda is the use of public libraries by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Another, according to records in Washington, is the subsidizing, by the endowment, of the international relations work of the American Association of University Women.

In every public, and in most private, libraries, many of which were given to cities and communities by the late Andrew Carnegie and supported by funds from his various endowments, the international propagandists are actively at work.

For instance, a high school student desires to obtain literature for an essay or debate on the League Court.

He will consult his home-town library and find there the American Library Association's list of books on the subject.

This association is aided by funds at different times from the various Carnegie corporations.

NRA CITES BUSINESS GAINS SINCE ADOPTION OF CODES

REFRACTORIES INDUSTRY TO CUT HOURS

Three of Johnson's Assistants to Resign

WASHINGTON, March 10. —(AP.)—The NRA pointed today to a new sign of better business. Increased department store sales. Also, it enjoyed the first fruit of its hour-reducing campaign.

The announcement that department store sales increased 17 per cent for the first two months of 1934, as compared with last year, came from the Federal Reserve Board.

Announcement of a proposed 10 per cent hour slash, without a reduction in pay, was made by the refractories industry. The employment of about 2,000 more men was indicated.

The NRA, however, continued to have troubles of its own. Three major resignations on its staff became known.

Dr. Paul H. Douglas, of the consumers' advisory board, resigned, effective April 1, to return to the University of Chicago; Maj. R. B. Paddock, deputy administrator, will leave within a few days to head the cotton garment industry; and L. H. Tompkins, personnel adviser to Gen. Johnson, has left to resume his office as executive vice president of United States Rubber Company.

Meanwhile, Blue Eagle enforcement activities boomed as NRA and the Department of Justice with an additional force, undertook the immediate examination of several hundred complaints with a view to quick action in the courts.

State and federal attorneys in Colorado were called on to take over seven complaints under the coal code.

Hugh S. Johnson has a new case under the company union issue before him. The E. G. Budd Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, was charged with holding an election of its employes despite direct orders from Davis to postpone it for 10 days.

TRIBUTE PAID BELGIAN KING

Mayor McNair, city officials and military men paid honor to Albert, King of the Belgians, this morning in a memorial service arranged as part of the special day of mourning in Pittsburgh for the King who fell to his death while mountain climbing.

The impressive services, with a requiem high mass celebrated by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, were held at St. Paul's Cathedral at 10 a. m.

Headed by massed flags of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and other military organizations, the procession started from Webster Hall and marched to the Cathedral.

Among the military leaders was Col. W. R. Dunlap, commander of the 176th Field Artillery, who helped arrange the services, and Raymond J. Dereume, Belgian consul at Pittsburgh, with a delegation.

Lieut. E. J. Cullen, commander of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Pittsburgh; Capt. Arthur Pasquier, of the Belgian Army; American Legionnaires, Col. Eric F. Wood, Col. Samuel D. Foster, Lieut. Col. John H. Shenkel and Maj. C. F. Schisano were among those present.

After the ceremonies, Dereume sent a cablegram to Brussels with condolences of Pittsburgh to the bereaved Queen.

ACCUSES PROSECUTOR

Shippen Lewis, chairman of the commission, said he would accept the testimony with the understanding that it had been prepared by an interested party.

Seligsohn attacked deCastrique's action in participating in the deputy sheriffs' march on the strikers, declaring:

"He was attired in a cartridge belt, helmet and armed to the teeth. He was one of the attacking force and as such any testimony that he would have taken is biased and as such worthless to the commission."

The Sheriff's procedure was branded by Seligsohn as based on a "false legal premise. He asserted:

"If they had no right to picket, the proper course for the Sheriff would have been to appeal to the courts of this county."

SHERIFF ON STAND

Sheriff O'Laughlin was the first witness to testify in support of Craig's proposal to show that:

"The situation was beyond the control of the Ambridge police or the leaders themselves.

"Hourly the situation grew worse. The use of the highways was denied t othe public. The Burgess was told that 'those birds down there are out of control' when he visited with the leaders the day before the outbreak."

Craig also blamed the pickets for the death of an employe of the Spang-Chalfant plant, where most of the rioting occurred. He said they prevented an ambulance getting through their lines to remove the employe, stricken with pneumonia.

Seligsohn's final shot in his address before the commission was:

"We propose to show that there was a deliberate, well-planned military attack by the Sheric of this county, and the workers were provoked to use clubs in self-defense. None of the workers had guns."

Aiding Lewis in the probe are Councilman John J. Kane and Prof. J. W. Madden, of Pittsburgh; Paul S. Lehman, of Lewistown, and Francis Biddle, of Philadelphia.

MARTIN URGES 'OPEN' PRIMARY

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 10.—(AP.)—Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, is adhering to his stand that he wants the party's primary to be "open" and does not want any particular candidate to be indorsed.

He told a gathering of leaders from Erie, Venango, Mercer and Crawford counties yesterday he has not considered any announcement of his candidacy for Governor, although many friends have urged him to make one.

The chairman asserted he knows nothing of a reported tie-up between David A. Reed for United States Senate and Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Philadelphia, for Governor.

ACQUIT MAJOR IN AIR ROW

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 10. —(AP.)—Maj. William C. Ocker, the oldest veteran in point of service in the Army Air Corps, stood acquitted by a military court today of charges of uttering derogatory remarks against his superior officer.

Less than 15 minutes after it had taken the case, although it had listened to nine days of testimony, the court returned its verdict last night.

The 58-year-old veteran, who enlisted as a private in the Spanish-American War and who rose to recognition in national and international aeronautical circles for his development of blind flying, did not comment on the verdict.

Maj. Ocker was officially charged with stating Lieut. Col. H. B. Clagett, commander of Kelly Field, and Maj. Clyde C. Johnston, chief flight surgeon, were in "collusion" to bar Maj. Ocker from a pilot's status because of physical defects, and that if Col. Clagett was given more than a cursory examination he would be disqualified.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure overlies the interior of the country, with centers over the southern plains (Oklahoma City, 30.62), and the northwestern states (Yellowstone Park, 30.64), while disturbances appear off the east Florida coast (Tampa, Fla., 29.96, over Saskatchewan and Manitoba (Prince Albert, Sask., 30.08), and in the far Southwest (Los Angeles, 30.08). Precipitation has occurred over most of the country east of the Mississippi, with snow from the southern lakes and New England southward to Tennessee and North Carolina, and rain over the southern states. Weather is mostly fair west of the Mississippi and in the upper lake region. It is colder over the plains, the Central Mississippi and Lower Ohio valleys, and warmer in Montana and North Dakota, and northward over the Canadian Northwest, where the temperature is as much as 46 degrees higher than yesterday morning.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 4.9 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 14.9; Pittsburgh, 14.9; Dam No. 4, 11.6; No. 8, 13.3; No. 10, 14.6, and No. 12, 18.0. The dams are down. Flashboards on all dams in the Pittsburgh district have been removed by ice.

AIR MAIL DEATH FIGHT RAGES IN CAPITAL

4 Fatalities in Day Stir Up Political Fires in Congress

BLACK SCORES FESS

Chairman Black, of the air mail investigating committee, whose investigations resulted in the contract annulments, entered the debate to charge the Ohioan with "cluttering up the record" to "cover up fraud and corruption."

Fess asserted the fraud was only "alleged," and a moment later added:

"There is no more sadness and pathos in calling attention to unnecessary sacrifices on the part of the government than there is sadness and pathos in an effort to smear a former administration."

On the House side, Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, a critic of the contract abrogation, issued another statement saying the cancellation was "a typical example of the extent of the use of dictatorial and autocratic powers by the administration." He repeated a charge of "legalized murder."

Hearings are expected soon on a bill embodying the President's plans for reletting air mail contracts. The bill was introduced yesterday by Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee.

2 More Army Mail Fliers Boost Black Friday Deaths

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 10.—(AP.)—Two more Army mailmen are dead and another fighting plane — turned mail-carrier — lies wrecked, marking the tragic climax of a veritable "black Friday" for the Army air mail.

When the plane plunged from the skies last night, buried its nose in the earth and burst into fire, it marked the third fatal crash of an Army mail plane during the day.

The Army officers killed in last night's crash here were: Lieut. Arthur R. Kerwin, Jr., of March Field, Cal., and Lieut. Frank L. Howard, Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La.

The plane carried no mail, the flight being merely a practice one. The takeoff from the field here was perfect. Once in the air, Lieut. Howard, at the controls, circled the plane above the city and pointed the ship west for Salt Lake City.

Witnesses say motor trouble apparently developed, for several said they noticed that the engine was "missing" and sputtering badly.

As the plane reached a position over the outskirts of the city it plunged down suddenly, nose first, into the ground. Fire broke out at once, and the plane was quickly consumed.

Penna. Mail Flier Safe As Fog Downs Plane

HARTSVILLE, S. C., March 10. —(AP.)—Three Army mail fliers who became lost last night en route from Richmond to Miami, landed near here in rain and fog early today with only slight damage to the ship and no injuries to its occupants.

The craft was piloted by Lieut. K. N. Allen, of Charlotte, Mich. With him were Sgt. Harry Shilling, a native of Harrisburg, Pa., but now living in Richmond, and a corporal who was taken on the ship at Washington.

Air Liner Due For Return Here

The new Transcontinental and Western airliner, which visited Pittsburgh yesterday for a short time then moved on to New York, was due to return today. It will be on exhibition at the County Airport. The ship has a soundproof cabin, steam heat and cushioned chairs, automatic pilot and airbrakes.

Man Killed on Way To Visit Ill Wife

WARREN, Pa., March 10. —(AP.) — On the way to a hospital to visit his wife, who is seriously ill, William Gross, 64, was killed by an automobile. The car was driven by Aaron Scranton, of Youngsville.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 10.

It's hard for me to keep these names clear in my mind, but just from memory I believe this Army flier killed, named Weinecke, is the same lad I wrote you about three weeks ago that flew into Newark in the blizzard with the mail. He was a fine flier.

Will Rogers

The more we read about that jail breaking the funnier it gets (that is if we didn't know that there was going to be a lot of people killed as a result of it). Now we find one of the guards was 84 years old. All they have to do now to make the whole thing perfect, is to find that Baby Leroy was the turnkey. Yours,

WILL.

scribble on margins and dictate notes or criticism."

Napoleon died, not suspecting how great a place history would give him. Sorrowfully he exclaimed:

"All the institutions that I founded are being destroyed, such as the university, the Legion of Honor, and I shall soon be forgotten."

Another time he said:

"History will scarcely mention me, for I was overthrown."

He often said that for the perpetuation of his greatness he should have been killed in Russia or at Waterloo. If he looks down, he knows there is no need to worry about his position in history.

In war, only three men stand out, Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, the last the greatest of the three.

It was said truly of Napoleon that while he had known

"The limits of his powers of walking or of seeing, he had never been able to ascertain the limits of his powers of work. His mind and body were incapable of fatigue."

NAPOLEON was taken in, as was our Thomas Jefferson, by the "Poems of Ossian," ancient Gaelic writings. Neither saw through the hoax, although Samuel Johnson was prompt to say that the poems could have been written by "many men, many women and many children."

ON THE Island of St. Helena, Napoleon read English history, "having read none since he left school." He said:

"I am reading Hume. These English are a ferocious race. What crimes there are in their history.

"Think of Henry the Eighth marrying Lady Seymour the day after he had Ann Boleyn beheaded. We should never have done such a thing in our country. Nero never committed such crimes. And Queen Mary! Ah! The Salic law is an excellent arrangement." (Under the Salic law no woman may sit on the throne of France.)

NAPOLEON said:

"War is a strange art. I have fought sixty battles, and I assure you that I have learned nothing from all of them that I did not know in the first. Look at Caesar; he fights in the first battle as in the last."

This may help to explain the fact that some of our important soldiers and sailors cannot see the value in war of the airplane, because they have never used it in war.

He comments on the rarity of great generals.

"A great general is rarely found. Of all the generals produced by the Revolution, DeSaix and Hoche are the only ones who had the makings of one. The campaign of Dumouriez in Champagne was extremely fine and bold. He was the only man produced out of the nobility."

Kleber, says Napoleon, oddly enough, had the qualities and defects of a tall man. Turenne is the greatest of French generals; he is the only one who became bolder with old age.

"He does exactly what I should have done in his place. . . Had he come to me at Wagram, he would at once have understood the position. So would Conde, but no Caesar or Hannibal.

"Had I had a man like Turenne to second me in my campaigns, I should have been master of the world; but I had nobody. When I was absent, my lieutenants were always beaten . . . Conde was a general by intuition, Turenne by experience.

"I think much more highly of Turenne than of Frederick (the Great). In the place of that sovereign he would have done much more, and would not have committed Frederick's mistakes. Frederick, indeed, did not thoroughly understand artillery.'"

Napoleon says the only general of consequence that opposed him in Italy was Alvinzy. Therefore, he never mentioned Alvinzy in his bulletins, constantly praising Beaulieu, Wurmser, or the Archduke Charles, for whom he had contempt. He wanted to help them get promotion.

NAPOLEON said:

However:

"It is, after all, the army that wins the battle. It is too much even to name the general in connection with a victory."

Napoleon, who could say at one time, "I have three hundred millions (gold) in the cellars of the Tuileries," said he would prefer a fortune of one hundred thousand dollars a year, although, if necessary, "he could live very comfortably on twelve francs ($2.40) a day."

A fortunate death has often added to greatness in the eyes of posterity. Napoleon knew it, and said:

"Had I died at Moscow I should have left behind me a reputation as a conqueror without any parallel in history. A ball ought to have put an end to me there."

LOOKING BACK over his life, Napoleon decided that the greatest moment of his career was his stay at Dresden in 1812 "when every sovereign in Europe, except the Sultan, the Russian emperor and the king of Great Britain," was at his feet.

"In his thirty-fourth year he leaves an immense, well established empire."

He admired Alexander's wisdom in bowing down before Apis, the sacred ox of Egypt, that a former conqueror had slaughtered and eaten.

"It was a great act of policy to go into the temple of Ammon, for it was thus that Alexander conquered Egypt. So I, had I remained in Egypt, should probably have founded an empire, like Alexander, by going on a pilgrimage to Mecca."

HE THOUGHT much of driving the British from India, saying:

"Once touched by a French sword, the scaffolding of mercantile power in India would fall to the ground."

But he does not underestimate the British, who held him back, financing his enemies with billions, defeating him in the end, and says to Maitland, captain of the ship that took him to St. Helena:

"Had it not been for you English, I should have been emperor of the East; but wherever there is water to float a ship, we are sure to find you in our way."

Now it would be "wherever there is air to float an airship."

Lord Rosebery's book on Napoleon will interest you. More extracts from it, chosen by this writer, are contained in an article prepared for publication in Sunday newspapers tomorrow.

MAGEE TO PUSH COUNCIL PAY CUT FIGHT

Clashes With Kane, Others in Demand For Reduction

In spite of a stonewall of opposition, Councilman William A. Magee will carry on his one-man fight for reduction in councilmanic salaries.

The statement came after Councilman John J. Kane had characterized an expression of Magee's as "a lot of bunk," closing yesterday's salary bill session in a bitter flare of words.

LOOSE TALK CHARGED

Magee's final admonition to Kane was:

"There's a lot of loose talk going around. You had better be careful."

Council's action consisted dodging Magee's motion on a reduction for themselves, and in affirming the salary bill, representing a saving of less than $100,000 over last year. The saving resulted chiefly from "staggering."

Magee's motion "that the sense of Council be to take a 16 2-3 per cent reduction," as had been taken by the rest of the payroll, was seconded by Councilman Charles Anderson.

Councilman Robert Garland questioned the motion's legality in connection with the salary bill. Councilman P. J. McArdle said it was illegal. Kane stated:

"I ran with the intention of collecting the full salary of $8,000 and of giving full time to the job. I'll take a reduction to $7,000, but not a cent less. And I won't be bound by any motion here."

CITES FORMER CUT

Magee pointed out that the former Council had taken a cut by a gentlemen's agreement, which was in force when the Democrats were running. And that it implied that the Democrats, with an economy platform, would take one, too.

Councilman John M. Huston denied this, saying he'd expected to draw full pay.

Magee said Council didn't have a full-time job, anyway, and that he doubted whether any councilman could learn enough about departments to advise on "technical service." Kane countered:

"Technical service, that's a lot of bunk. A little horse sense is all that's required. If councilmen spent full time on the job we wouldn't have to bring in a lot of experts."

Then Magee advised Kane to be careful of a lot of loose talk going round. And Kane said he didn't talk as much as Magee did.

In another plot to kill Iggy, according to the information Brunner is supposed to have supplied, a North Side woman of the underworld is involved. Through a third party she is alleged to have accepted Garavini's money to pay off the killer.

She also has been subpenaed, although it is not certain whether she will be called as a witness.

On another occasion, according to Brunner's alleged statement, a plot was hatched to throw Iggy over the Bloomfield Bridge, but the plans miscarried and Iggy escaped again. A similar plan to heave him over the rail of the Manchester Bridge also failed to materialize, according to information.

The defense is said to be ready to put Brunner on the stand to show that Iggy's slaying of Garavini in front of the William Penn Hotel early in the morning of November 9 was in self-defense.

The Schwartz-Garavini feud is old, and grew out of Andy's attention to the diminutive wife, Margaret, who, after her divorce from Iggy, became Mrs. Garavini.

Journalism Teacher Dies in New York

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—Prof. Allen Sinclair Will, director of the Department of Journalism of Rutgers University and associate professor of journalism of the Columbia University School of Journalism, died today at Wickersham Hospital.

Carnegie Endowment Uses Libraries for League Propaganda

50 libraries in varying sections of the country.

But in few, if any, were there any works, speeches or pamphlets presenting the side of the opponents of the League of Nations World Court.

Still further to aid students and men and women in smaller communities, the Carnegie endowment supplies what it terms "international mind alcoves" in the libraries of those smaller towns and cities.

THESE "ALCOVES" CONSIST OF A SET OF SELECTED BOOKS, MOSTLY INTERNATIONALIST PROPAGANDA ADVOCATING THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, ITS COURT AND A SMALL NAVY.

All of this is done in the sweet name of peace.

EXPENDITURES RISE

Expenditures of the Carnegie Foundation for this purpose have been rising yearly. In 1932, in excess of $25,000 was spent for this purpose. Another $25,000 was used for the distribution of so-called "international conciliation" documents, which dovetail into this picture.

The subsidizing of the international relations work of the American Association of University Women by the Carnegie propaganda machine is having its effect in Washington.

During the last two months the mail of Senators has been jammed with petitions from branches of that organization, seeking immediate approval of the League Court.

During the years 1930, 1931 and 1932, a total of $22,500 was contributed by the endowment to this association, in addition to pamphlets, books and various other publications of allied propagandists.

Dr. Butler in his annual report to the trustees in 1931 enthusiastically declares:

"Pamphlet material, especially prepared mimeograph outlines, information bulletins and handbooks have been made available to all university women groups wishing to keep up their contacts with world affairs."

Million Foreign Gold Headed for Reserve

CHERBOURG, France, March 10.—(AP.)—Arrangements were made today for the Europa to take to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York 1,000 kilograms of gold, valued at 18,000,000 francs ($1,170,000).

Five More Utility Firms File Meter Tax Suits

Five more public utility companies have filed suits to prevent the city of Pittsburgh from collecting the $2 meter tax.

Bills of equity were filed yesterday in Common Pleas Court by the Duquesne Light Company, the Equitable Gas Company, the Allegheny Steam Heating Company, the South Pittsburgh Water Company and the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company.

A similar suit already had been started by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Today is the last day in which other owners of meters have to comply with the terms of the ordinance. Up until the present time, the city has received exactly $2 in revenue from the meter legislation, paid by Leonard H. Turner, of 1413 Morningside avenue, operator of a [illegible] lab.

The Duquesne Light Company contends that its meters are not taxable because they are used in the performance of public duties, that it is already required to pay a tax on the same property by the state and that the meters are machinery and so specifically exempted.

Because of the varying cost of meters, the company contends the tax is discriminatory.

Controller James P. Kerr has billed the Duquesne Light Company for $398,848, the Equitable Gas Company for $186,362, the Allegheny Steam Heating Company for $698, the South Pittsburgh Water Company for $38,302 and the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company for $35,000.

Porto Rico Baby Feeding Studied by First Lady

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 10.—(AP.)—The First Lady of the United States went into the slums of San Juan today for an intimate study of conditions among the poor.

Principally, after having already seen what she described as the "best and the worst" of this West Indian island, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to investigate infant feeding.

After an all-day tour of towns in the easternmost end of Porto Rico yesterday, she said:

Housewives greeted Mrs. Roosevelt in many places yesterday by holding aloft cuts of pork—meat given them by the federal government. From her automobile, she waved back and smiled.

Throughout, she is persisting in her demand that her trips for a study of economic and social conditions be as informal as possible.

She turned down a formal welcome planned for her by an "Anna Eleanor Roosevelt Club" at Fajardo. There she asked police to disperse soldiers who formed on the highway and stood at attention.

NEWLYWEDS KILL EACH OTHER IN FEAR OF SCORN

2 GUN BLASTS END 24-HOUR MARRIAGE

Bride of Ex-Husband's Brother Leaves Suicide Note

PECATONICA, Ill., March 10.—(AP.)—Fear of public scorn is believed to have driven Mr. and Mrs. Ray Holcomb, newly married couple, to point shotguns at each other's heart and press the triggers simultaneously.

The couple, married only 24 hours, were found dead yesterday under circumstances which, Coroner W. R. Julian said, indicated a strange suicide pact.

Mrs. Holcomb, who was 35, obtained a divorce on Thursday from Ray Holcomb's brother, John. Fifteen minutes later she married her former brother-in-law.

Yesterday John Holcomb called to arrange a charivari for the newlyweds. He found their bodies on a couch in their living room. On the floor beside them were two discharged shotguns.

A note, in Mrs. Holcomb's handwriting, read:

"God forgive us. We truly loved each other, but cannot go on, knowing what the public is thinking of us. If we can't live together happily, there is nothing left. Bury us together.

"RAY.
"NELL."

Coroner Julian said there was no doubt the deaths were suicides, but he plans an inquest. He said that they apparently pointed the shotguns at each other and discharged them at the same instant.

Friends said it was Mrs. Holcomb's fourth marriage.

HOLD 3 HOTEL STRIKERS

Three striking employes of the William Penn Hotel were held after they are alleged to have been discovered carrying stench bombs in Kenmont avenue, Mt. Lebanon, near the home of another hotel employe, early today.

Police said the trio, who gave their names as Walter Mutz, 23, of 103 South Thirteenth street; Frank Cospanzo, 25, of Frontenac street, and Phillip Morones, of Court place, were arrested on suspicious person charges when they refused to explain their presence near the home.

Police Chief William Kane said that one of the men exploded a stench bomb on the sidewalk when the group was approached by officers.

DEATH TRY MAY WIN FILM JOB

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—Although she was still unconscious today at the county hospital, Julia Graham, 19-year-old film aspirant, was closer perhaps than ever to the desired motion picture career which brought her from Sistersville, W. Va.

Taken by the picture published in a newspaper after Miss Graham's attempted suicide Thursday night, Earl Carroll, New York stage producer, decided to call on her and, if not allowed to see her, leave a message of hope.

Broken-hearted because promised work in films did not materialize, Miss Graham took an overdose of sleeping powders in her apartment, police reported.

In a note she said she was "tired of living and hated life."

South Hills Man Hit by Automobile

Struck by an automobile in Virginia avenue, Mt. Washington, last night, Joseph Sacko, 45, of Sawmill Run boulevard, suffered a probable skull fracture and was taken to Mercy Hospital. Police said the automobile was driven by Kenneth Cooper, 33, of 179 Merrimac street.

BIBLE WORKER DIES IN COURT

Collapsing while attending the hearings of 60 Bible tract workers at the Millvale Borough Hall last night, Miss Grace Black, 60, of 500 Cedar avenue, North Side, died a short time later from a chronic heart ailment, according to the Coroner's report. Miss Black, a Bible tract worker, was not one of the defendants.

Miss Black was taken to the office of Dr. Albert H. Riethmuller, of 425 Grant avenue, Millvale, and pronounced dead. Her collapse was probably brought on by excitement of the hearings, according to Deputy Coroners Stanley Guzenski and John T. McQuaid. The body was removed to an undertaking establishment.

The defendants were dismissed by Burgess E. B. W. Pfischer with a warning that if they were arrested in the borough again they would be fined.

The group, known as "Jehovah's Witnesses," were represented by Attorney S. M. Jackson. A group of Millvale residents, who were the prosecutors, were represented by Attorney J. I. Simon. Borough Solicitor C. E. Theobald said the arrests were made several days ago after several hundred citizens complained of the defendants' activities.

Thieves Ransack Squirrel Hill Home

Thieves broke into the home of D. W. Yealy, a former banker, of 5445 Beacon street, late yesterday, ransacked rooms on the second floor and stole jewelry and clothing valued at nearly $700, he reported to police.

Entrance was gained through a cellar window and by breaking a lock on a kitchen door.

'NO,' SAYS INA TO ELOPEMENT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 10. — "The answer is no!"

This was the laconic reply that had been made today by Ina Claire, beautiful stage and screen star, to a radioed request from a New York newspaper for confirmation of reports that she was eloping with Prince Ferdinand Von Lichtenstein, scion of the reigning house of the principality in the foothills of the Alps.

The Prince Von Lichtenstein is well-known as an amateur athlete. He competed in the Olympic games in Los Angeles in 1932 and met Miss Claire while she was making pictures in Hollywood.

Miss Claire, the former wife of John Gilbert, is scheduled to begin a stage engagement in London next month.

Dormont Awards $100,000 Bond Issue

An emergency $100,000 bond issue was awarded to a Philadelphia brokerage firm by Dormont Council last night. The bond funds will be used to pay borough expenses between the close of the fiscal year and the date when new taxes are paid.

To relieve traffic congestion near the state liquor store Council passed an ordinance forbidding parking on the right side of Tennessee avenue.

Interest Mounting In Spelling Contest

Rules for Prize Spelling Bee Outlined

1—Participants will be anyone not now in school or college as a student or teacher.

2—Spelling will be oral.

3—Proper names will not be used.

4—The speller will be expected to pronounce the word before he attempts to spell it.

5—Words will be repeated or defined at the request of contestants.

5—Correction of spelling will not be permitted after a word has been completed.

7—The misspelled word will not be given to the next in order.

8—The pronouncer will be the judge of the correct spelling, subject to an appeal to the judges.

9—Two captains will be chosen, who will select teams from names of entrants.

10—Webster's New International Dictionary will be considered authority.

Free Trips and Cash Offered Winners; Entries Open

Enthusiastic interest was reported today from every section of Allegheny County in the old-fashioned spelling bee sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

There is still plenty of time to enter. Submit your name to your nearest school principal. Anyone not now in school or college as a student or teacher is eligible to compete.

To the county's best speller and "runer-up" will go trips to Harrisburg on April 4 to compete in the state finals. The Sun-Telegraph will pay all the expenses.

A third prize of $25, fourth of $15 and fifth of $10 were also announced yesterday by the Sun-Telegraph.

Most of the preliminary "spelldowns" will be held the latter part of next week in the 12 city high schools and 118 county districts.

The county finals will be held in Schenley High School at 8 p. m. Tuesday, March 20.

INDICT 3 IN SLOT MACHINE CASES

Gust George, alleged "big shot" slot machine concessionaire, was indicted on charges of keeping a gambling house and being a common gambler by the March grand jury late yesterday. Police said they seized more than 100 machines when they raided his place at 1807 Westmont avenue February 2. The location is near the rear of the Carrick Police Station.

Benjamin Lazar and Bernard Sokolsky were indicted on the same charges. They were raided January 28 at 1340 Forbes street, where 100 slot machines were reported seized.

As the machines seized in the raids were not operating, police heads consulted District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who said that, under a court opinion, possession of slot machines in storage places was sufficient evidence to obtain jury trials.

North Braddock Boy, 5, Injured in Fall

Andrew Dzuro, 5, is recovering from head injuries received when he fell from a six-foot wall near his home, 706 Hawkins avenue, North Braddock, yesterday. He was treated for the injuries in the Braddock General Hospital.

KIDNAPING MAY BRING END TO AUTO RACES

Prosecutor Demands Names of Assailants Of Newspapermen

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—District Attorney Buron Fitts will halt all automobile racing in Los Angeles County unless the identity of the men who slugged, kicked and abducted a Los Angeles Examiner photographer and kidnaped a reporter is made known to him by 10 o'clock next Monday morning.

Fitts delivered this ultimatum late yesterday to A. C. Pillsbury, regional director of the American Automobile Association and the man in charge of local racing.

FORCIBLY HELD

The order from Fitts followed the questioning of Pillsbury and several race drivers. Six drivers surrendered in the District Attorney's office yesterday and two of them—"Babe" Stapp and Al Reinke—were identified by James Lee, Examiner reporter, as two of the men involved in forcing him into an automobile last Wednesday at the funeral services for Ernie Triplett, noted driver and one of three men who met death in last Sunday's auto race at El Centro.

Identification of the men who slugged John Bennus, Examiner photographer, broke his camera and then took the keys to his car and drove it to the Examiner office, was not forthcoming yesterday.

Lee and Bennus, assigned to report and photograph the Triplett funeral, were kidnaped by a group of men and brought to the Examiner office, where a delegation of five men informed editorial executives that they had forcibly held the two newspapermen because pictures had been taken of the Triplett funeral.

The delegation also told Examiner executives they would resort to further violence any time pictures of race drivers' funerals or deaths were made.

DRIVERS GET ULTIMATUM

In addition to Stapp and Reinke, already charged with the kidnaping of Lee, the drivers who came to the District Attorney's office yesterday were Ed Stever, Tony Gulotta, Earl Brentlinger and Ted Horn.

After questioning Stapp, Reinke, Brentlinger, Gulotta and Pillsbury, Fitts delivered his ultimatum that he would halt all racing unless the participants in the attack on Bennus and the man who drove the photographer's car were produced.

HARRY STEVENS NEAR DEATH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Harry Stevens, the man who parlayed a bag of peanuts and a baseball scorecard into a million dollars, today lay near death in his hotel apartment here.

Stevens is suffering from his second attack of pneumonia this winter. He is 78.

Stevens started life selling peanuts and postcards outside the ball park in Pittsburgh and used to attract attention by quoting Shakespeare in his sales talks.

His business grew until he had concessions for selling food and refreshments in major league ball parks and race tracks all over the country.

The Castle Shannon incline will close for repairs from 1 p. m. tomorrow until 5 a. m. Wednesday, it was announced at the offices of the Pittsburgh Railways Company today.

STUDENTS VIE IN RUSHMORE CONTEST

University Interest Keen With Lehigh First Entry

Students in American universities are spontaneously rushing to join the nation-wide competition to secure the 600-word epic of America!

Yesterday the Lehigh Brown and White, the school paper of Lehigh University, inaugurated the first of the campus campaigns.

Robert Herrick, its editor-in-chief, says:

"No competition we have ever heard of has roused the interest this one is stirring up! The idea of having a part in a memorial which will be to generations of the future a key to our national ideals—as the sphinx and the pyramids of Egypt—the stone remainders of Yucatan—and similar monuments are to their past glory is one which is inspiring every student."

LEHIGH ENTERS

Lehigh University is the first. Others have indicated a desire to inaugurate their own campaigns, to clear their winning texts through the local committee in their respective territories.

Consolidation of interest is centering just now on finding out what it is the competition calls for. The answer is very simple. The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers are sponsoring a nation-wide competition to secure the best possible text in 600 words or less, for the use of the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission in determining what shall be the inscription carved on the west slope of Mount Rushmore in South Dakota by Gutzon Borglum, internationally famous sculptor.

NINE EPOCHAL DIVISIONS

The text must include interpretative phrases on the significance to America of the nine epochal divisions of territorial growth. These are the creation and signing of the Declaration of Independence; the making and legislating of the Constitution; the Louisiana Purchase; the ceding of the Floridas; the entry of Texas into the Union; the acquisition of California; the purchase of Alaska; the settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute and the cutting of the Panama Canal.

The Sun-Telegraph tomorrow will carry the list of rules which you are urged to clip and save, as it will be reprinted infrequently during the competition. Also there will be printed the complete list of prizes being offered by the Sun-Telegraph and the other Hearst newspapers for the best inscription text.

AUTO INJURES GARAGE MAN

Michael Abinanti, 35, manager of Abinanti's Garage, at 2236 Bigelow boulevard, suffered a fractured leg when struck by an automobile while he was directing a truck which was backing into the garage last night.

Abinanti, who lives at 1139 Spring Garden avenue, was directing the truck driver and signaling traffic with a red lantern when an automobile pulled out of line and struck him, police said.

Thomas Alfonsi, 45, of 387 Junius street, alleged driver of the car, was arrested later, police said, at his home and charged with violation of the automobile laws. Police said he took Abinanti to West Penn Hospital and left without giving his name.

George Miller, 35, of 253 Main street, was in Homeopathic Hospital today with a probable skull fracture suffered when a truck he was driving and another operated by William M. McVay, of Allison Park, collided at Fifth and Amberson avenues last night, according to a police report.

Driver Hurt as Auto And Trolley Collide

Harvey R. Weston, 23, of 16 McKee street, Wilkinsburg, suffered brain concussion when the automobile he was driving and a Hamilton avenue street car collided at Fifth and Penn avenues, Point Breeze, last night, police reported. Weston was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital. Frank Parry, 43, of 635 Seagirt street, operator of the car, and his passengers escaped injury.

Forgiveness for Jury Asked by Dr. Wynekoop

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP.)—Dr. Alice Wynekoop, in the first statement since her conviction Tuesday night and sentence of 25 years for the slaying of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, 23, declared she was innocent and exclaimed, "May God forgive them"—the jury—for "the greatest error."

Laboriously the aged physician penciled her statement from her cot in the jail infirmary and made it public through the attorneys. The statement said:

"'Dr. Wynekoop guilty'—the verdict of '12 good men and true'—may God forgive them, for they never could have fal'n into greater error. A fearsome service, that of a juror with most serious deliberation and careful weighing of all available evidence, it is still possible to be utterly (though honestly) mistaken—and the effects are so far-reaching.

"Not alone is the immediate victim sacrificed—but all those closely allied by ties of blood or friendship as well as the community at large. What price a lifetime of uprightness and integrity, when a chain of sinister circumstances may, over night, brand one as a criminal?

"'Dr. Wynekoop guilty'—words which mark great victory for the state's attorney, the Chicago police, and a behaviorist—but at best certainly a victory which is essentially defeat—for this case, as do all others, demanded justice and justice has not been rendered!

"Dr. Wynekoop is no more—even less—guilty of the death of her daughter, Rheta, than is any one of her jury. These men are but negatively innocent, while I am positively. So not having hurt her in my life, but having spent patient years in building her health and happiness to the utmost of effort and ability, 'Dr. Wynekoop guilty' is verily an unfathomable finding and a notable miscarriage of justice."

DISCOVERY OF SHEBA'S CITY CREDIBLE, DR. KELSO BELIEVES

Evidence of Airplane View Upheld By Excavations

Clicking through the night, a telegraphed message from French Somaliland to Paris has sent archeologists throughout the world delving into books and maps.

And Pittsburgh is no exception.

The message, from Capt. Corniglion Molinier and Andre Malaraux, carried the news that they had sighted and photographed the lost capital of the Queen of Sheba from an airplane over the sandy wastes of Eastern Arabia.

Subject of much speculation, the Queen's kingdom has been sought for centuries from the area now known as Abyssinia to the Persian Gulf.

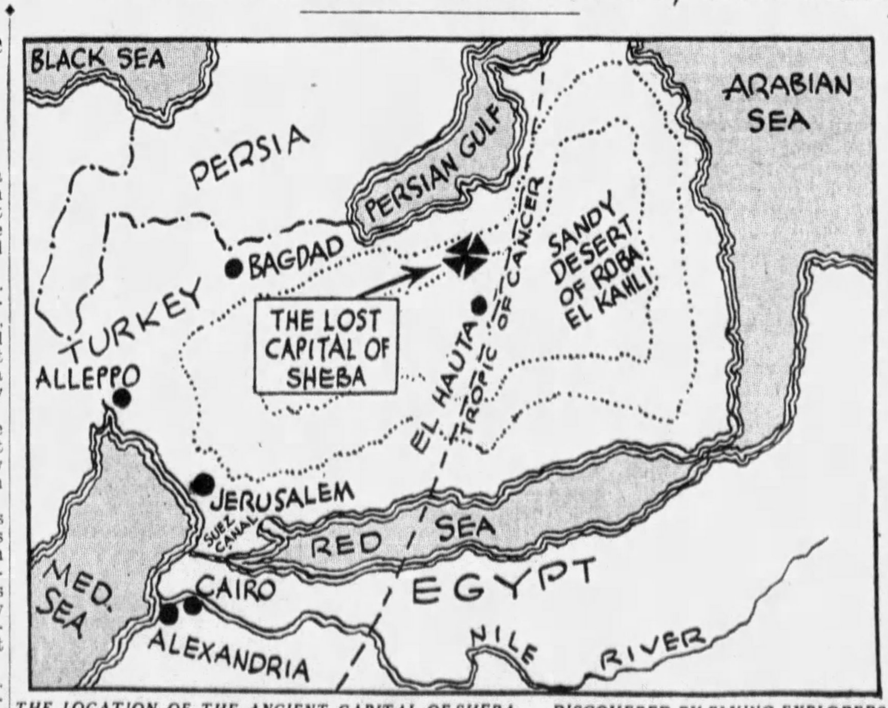
The location of the lost city was given by Molinier and Malraux as 1,000 miles southeast of Jerusalem and 900 northeast of French Somaliland—a point about 200 miles west of the Persian Gulf midway between the northern and southern borders of Arabia in the great sandy desert, Roubat el-Khali.

According to Dr. James L. Kelso, noted authority on archeology, of the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary, recent excavations have indicated that this location is highly probable.

One belief in years gone by has been that the queen reigned in the locale of Abyssinia, but discovery of inscriptions and incense since then bears out the "find" of the French explorers.

Pointing out that until the last few years there has been little exploration in the territory due to the fanaticism of the Arabs, Dr. Kelso said:

"The location seems possible to me. Possibly they are wrong, too. But the general locality of the Queen of Sheba's land has been set in Arabia, toward the southeast, in the extreme lower portion of the peninsula."



THE LOCATION OF THE ANCIENT CAPITAL OF SHEBA . . . DISCOVERED BY FLYING EXPLORERS

Pitt Professor Also Declares Site Logical

Declaring the area is subject to much speculation, J. J. Geise, professor of ancient history at the University of Pittsburgh, emphasized that numerous kingdoms flourished in Eastern Arabia about the Tenth Century, B. C.—about the time of the Queen's reign—and asked:

"How in the world did they identify it as hers if they only saw it from an airplane?"

The location sounds logical, however, the professor said, pointing out that the region during the Queen's era was very fertile and that most archeologists have denoted Southern Arabia as the scene of the one-time Sebaen capitol.

If We're Drifting, What's High Speed Mr. Baer Wonders

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

His subject was about recovery and things. It was entitled, "Whither Are We Drifting?"

We jumped up, took a punch at him and were tossed out of the hall.

But we were right. Here we are going sixty miles a minute and the mugg calls it drifting.

That's the usual type of lecture you hear now. And when the lecturer changes the subject he shouldn't get sore if the audience changes halls.

'FLAG IDOLATRY' NOW SIDETRACKED BY METHODISTS

LIFE IN FUTURE SUBJECT OF SERMONET

The Rev. Dr. Louis H. Evans, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, South Negley avenue, delivers the second of the Lenten messages published weekly in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph under the auspices of the Presbyterian Council of Churches. The sermonets are written by representative ministers of the district.

TEXT: "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." —John 6:68.

At the last broadcast from the Byrd Expedition, the announcer said that the thing that drove men to the poles was man's determination to know what lies beyond the horizon of his sight. When a man ceases to want to know that he ceases to be a man! More than this, no man can live life at its best if he believes that there is nothing beyond the horizon of this life and that the end of it all is "a pile of ashes and a skull."

Christ did not rise from the dead to convince us that there was a quantity of life after the grave. Men always have and always will believe that. If it is not a belief it is at least an instinct that needs no corroboration. It is not necessary that one should rise from the dead to convince us that the grave is not the end.

Christ rose to convince men of the quality of life beyond the grave. No man desires life eternal unless he can know the circumstances under which that life shall be lived. I have heard men call for death. I have heard them say they were weary with living. The secret of Easter is this: That, in Him, every man may enjoy this quality of life beyond that enables him to live forever with his God, to bring to fruition his noblest dreams, to be free of the faults and the sins that beset him, to find the pinnacle for which he has struggled and to live in a city like that which he had prayed his own city might become.

CHURCH MARKS 99TH BIRTHDAY

Members of the Sandusky Street Baptist Church are celebrating the church's ninety-ninth anniversary this week. On March 7, 1935, at a meeting in the Union Methodist Church, 14 persons organized the "First Regular Baptist Church of Allegheny Town," the present Baptist Church. Their first building was a one-room log cabin built beside the Allegheny River.

Beginning with a birthday pageant tomorrow night, the congregation of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Boggs avenue and Smith way, will observe its fiftieth anniversary in a series of services during the week

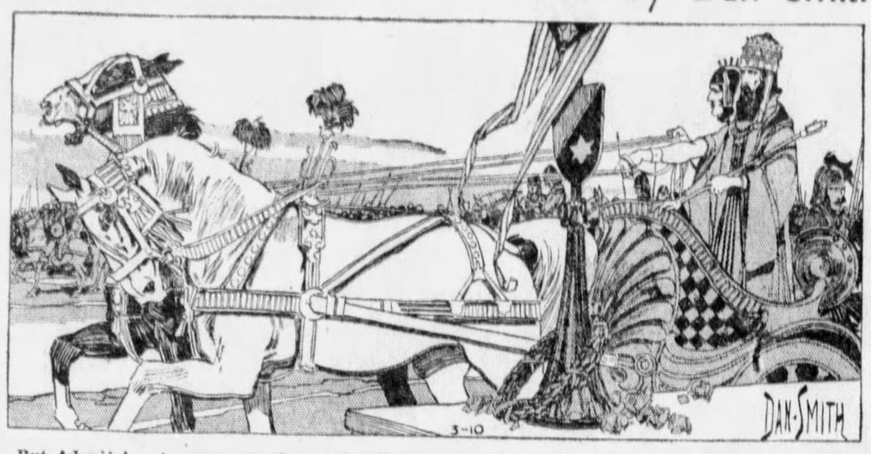
'Man' to Be Subject Of Science Church

"Man" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text for the day is: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God."

The Story of David -:- CHAPTER XIX -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

When David was old and stricken in years, he summoned Bathsheba, the mother of Solomon, and sware unto her that her son should reign after him; and Bathsheba bowed and did reverence to King David.

So it came to pass that, at the order of King David, Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet took David's son Solomon down to Gihon, and with a horn of oil out of the tabernacle Zadok anointed him as king.



But Adonijah, who was a brother of Absalom and the son of Haggith, had exalted himself, saying "I will be king;" and he was a goodly man, and had prepared himself many chariots and horsemen, and 50 men to run before him; but when he learned that Solomon had been anointed king he feared Solomon. And so matters stood in Israel when David, after ruling 40 years, slept with his fathers in the city of David.

(The End. Next week—The Story of Solomon.)

RESOLUTION PUT IN COMMITTEE BY LAYMEN

PHILADEDLPHIA, March 10.—(AP.)—Criticism of the social Service Commission's attack on "flag idolatry" and other forms of nationalistic "worship" has been side-tracked by the lay delegates to the Philadelphia annual conference, Methodist Episcopal Church.

A resolution attacking the commission report was shunted to the executive committee last night after Isaac Yocum, former president of the Laymen's Association, came to the defense of the ministers. He said:

"Too many of our churches preach nationalism when they should preach only the religion of Jesus Christ. There is room for only one flag in the church. That is the flag of Christianity."

Reiterating opposition to the "legalized liquor traffic," the laymen recommended an educational campaign to "emphasize the effects of the use of intoxicants." Entry of the United States into the League Court also was approved.

'World Peace Depends on America's NRA'—King Boris

Bulgarian Monarch Grants First Interview

Editor's Note.—Danger of war will pass if the American recovery program succeeds, King Boris of Bulgaria tells H. R. Knickerbocker in the first interview he has ever granted to a newspaperman.

In the twenty-fourth article of his series "Will War Come" Knickerbocker tells how the Bulgarian monarch is closely following events in the United States in the belief that recovery there will lead to a more stabilized world.

SOFIA, March 10.—To a workingman in America the NRA today means shorter hours, higher wages, more employment.

To the King of Bulgaria the NRA today means that war may after all be avoided in Europe.

Few Americans absorbed in the business of recovering from the worst crisis in history realize the world-wide interest and the international political significance of the American economic experiment. Here in Bulgaria the sovereign, King Boris III, puts President Roosevelt's plan at the head of the list of his reasons why war will not come to Europe.

He considers it the strongest hope for peace, and the most promising guarantee against revolution. Here in this remote part of Europe seven thousand miles from the United States, the American President and the American people have a strong sympathizer, King Boris feels so strongly about it that today he made an exception to his lifelong rule against receiving correspondents and for the first time permitted himself to be quoted.

A young sovereign, barely forty, King Boris has a manner unassuming as that of any citizen. It justifies the paradoxical statement his Prime Minister, Mikolas Mushanoff, made to me that "the Kingdom of Bulgaria is a democracy." He walks nearly to the door to greet his visitor and his hospitable handshake dismisses formality.

Resplendent Monarchs Stare at Plain King

From the walls of the study, covered with scores of portraits, the eyes of nearly every crowned head in the Europe of the last half-century stare down upon us. They are all resplendent in crowns and gold and jewels. They stare down upon their royal relative dressed in a double-breasted gray business suit wearing but one "decoration"—a broad plain gold wedding ring.

King Boris speaks good English, but prefers German. His face is lean, the features quick to smile and his sensitive hands move with a swiftness that betrays an inner tension.

It is the tension of a restless intelligence. He reads voraciously, everything, in English, French, German, Italian and the Slavic languages. He has even read the reports of your correspondent. He is interested in everything. His curiosity covers the world. But of all the countries he is most interested in the United States and Russia.

War was our topic but the NRA and the planned national economy of the Soviet Union took up most of our conversation. The King declared:

"We have the unlucky experience of living in a transitional age when the old has not yet passed away and the new has not yet arrived."

Mighty Forces Work To Influence World

He passed his hand over his face and in the gesture all the history of the last forty years flickered by. Beside us on a huge desk lay innumerable paper cutters, curious pens and pencils, family mementoes of generations of Saxe-Coburgs. On the wall Nicholas II of Russia sat his throne.

"There are two mighty forces operating in the world, the one pulling backward and the other pushing forward."

The king bent his fingers in a clutching movement then push

'Origin Unknown' Applies To Many Questions

We had a conflagration the other morning.

It started bright and early in opposition to the zero weather outside. I was in my kitchen frying sausages.

A peculiar odor somewhere, like singeing varnish. I bounded into the living room, to see flames licking the forepart of the davenport. The purple drapes, faded to a delicate wisteria on the velour, were sizzling. There was an unnatural element to it all. The peace and calm of the room was gone.

Then fright seized me. Was everything before me to be destroyed? Were clean walls to be smoked a dingy brown? Were the potted plants I had tended as a mother might her young, to die? Were clothes and whatever finery I might possess to be sacrificed to this insidious monster?

So I set to work.

Buckets and pans of water were brought to me by the little girl who makes her home with me. She worked like a Trojan. Her long light hair tossed behind her ears and her fairy form flitted to and from the kitchen. A heroine, to be sure. But she didn't realize it.

The flames subsided. But a muffled, ominous sound still came from the cotton stuffing inside the sofa. There was that battle cry of the unsatiated in the submerged streaks of light.

So I called the janitor, the delivery boy, the bell hop. What had started this conflagration? Was it some little devil out on a lark, and hoping to keep warm during the cold wave?

Dan, the delivery boy, was mopping the floor vigorously. I asked him his opinion of the reason for the fire. And he said, wisely, as he rested upon his mop:

"I would say it was 'origin unknown.'"

What a fascinating phrase! Like a perfect murder mystery. Like the start of oh, so many things which cause either havoc or happiness. "Origin unknown." What a galaxy of memories rushed in upon me.

UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

Was anyone ever positive of the origin of the big fire of London town years and years ago? How about the cause for the sinking of the Titanic?

Someone's carelessness, a company too anxious for speed on the waters? Perhaps. But are we sure?

"Unknown origin." And we think of men trekking across Pennsylvania. And on into Ohio. And out over the Oregon trail. Staking off claims. Building log huts. Felling trees. Watching for the coyote and the gopher. "Unknown origin" back of many of these men. Where from? And no answer.

Those flames crawling up and laboring cunningly. And me frying sausages. Had the fire laid dormant for ever so long, awaiting its opportunity? Or was it a rapid gesture?

The same answer might be given for so many things. If we only were sure. Our impulses. Where do they come from? Our day by day actions. Why are they? Even our very fate. Was it planned for all time for us? Or are we our own destinies?

And all of this is another reason for life being interesting. There is the fellow on the tramp. He may be the financier of tomorrow. McGraw selling apples, and chancing on a baseball game. Edison peddling knickknacks on a train, the wizard of electricity of the dawning era. The orphan without a home, the landowner of the next generation.

YOUTH PUZZLED

Prejudices. Ambitions. Loyalties. Betrayals. All roused somehow. But can we tell their beginnings?

And after all, what does the origin amount to? It is the end of the trail which sums up the man.

Michael G. writes. And says: Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a boy of 18, and deeply in love. The girl is 15. I am a senior in high school, and she is a sophomore. I had a picture taken for the year book. Should I give her one? I am worried, for the photograph of me is no good. But will she be offended, if I do not grant her request?

She writes notes to me and wants me to answer her in school. Does this show she loves me?

MICHAEL G.

The fact the girl writes you these notes may indicate she is mischievous. Nothing else. However if she wants you to give her a photograph of yourself, that is different. She must at least care for your friendship. Give her one, even if it is not a good likeness of you. Many good-looking people do not photograph well. Personality; coloring; these are difficult to reproduce by the camera.

I wouldn't carry love-making into the school room, Michael G. There is vacation time and Saturdays for that.

SIMPLICITY IS THE BEST POLICY -o- -o- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Love me—don't have a dog in the same show with mine—and win a prize with him!" Jill was friends with Jerry from the days when they wore a blue and green coat respectively, with gold buttons that would hardly hold them across their fat, 4-year-old stomachs. But a couple of blue-blooded doggies can tear asunder the closest-knit friendships, when one wins the First and the other only gets a Second!

Darling "Yut Ho Hi Mow," the color of maple-cake or a delectable golden caramel—came out of the show with a ribbon that said she was best in her class. And the ribbon hangs above the modernistic dressing table in Jill's runaway place, where the mysteries of curls and porcelain complexions and slim figures are evolved.

"Chu Chin Whang," the color of darkly burnt fudge, wooly as a teddy-bear, blackberry mouthed, he came out—of all insults and affronts!—with a Second. It will hang—Jerry grits her shining white teeth!—in a place of honor just the same, where silk stockings are rolled on, nose is powdered and brows shaped.

But LOOK! What it is to live the simple life! To know no heart breaks from wounded pride, to lose no friends through a beloved dog! In the background he loafs, content, the disciple of simplicity in all things from clothes and manners to the beloved PUP. No blue blood, no shows, no jealousy. And the absent best friend's dog is just about the same breed o' canine. One ear stands up and the other lays down. Johnny doesn't care. And certainly doesn't the pup!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Late Supper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it proper, when friends drop in for the evening or are invited in for a little card game, to serve demi-tasse with cookies or cake, or is demi-tasse only served after dinner?

2—What is the proper thing to serve on such occasions anyway? E.

1—Usually, when coffee is served at supper, we use tea cups instead of the after-dinner coffee cups. Some hostesses provide both sizes, asking the guests which size they prefer.

2—For a simple menu at this time in the evening, we may serve sandwiches with coffee, and afterward small cakes or a layer cake or fruit cake. If we wish to step up a bit from this simplicity, we may serve a fruit salad or a fruit compote . . . fruits in some form are becoming increasingly popular for service at this time of the evening. Or if you prefer something hot, you may serve a creamed something, chicken, mushrooms, chicken and mushrooms, chicken a la king, baked beans or spaghetti, scrambled eggs and small sausages or bacon, frankfurters in hot rolls . . . anything like this that is the "specialty" of your house."

Bachelor Hosts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—My uncle, who is a bachelor, was invited with another single young man to a dinner in the home of a very old friend of theirs who is now married. My uncle would like to know if it is proper for him and his friend to invite this young couple to their home—which is a two room apartment? There are no cooking facilities and dinner would have to be served from the hotel kitchen or they would have to go out for dinner.

2.—Also, is it proper for my uncle and his friend to invite girls to their apartment if they have provided for a chaperon? S.

1—Yes, this hospitable plan of your uncle's and the other bachelor is a friendly and thoroughly proper one. Since one room of their two-room hotel apartment is undoubtedly a living room, they can make very delightful plans for this kind of entertaining. I like better the idea of serving the dinner in their own apartment . . . there is a more intimate charm about this, and it gives more hospitality and honor to one's guests. If these hosts have the equipment for their own table-setting . . . fine. If not, the hotel will send up the equipment. Every detail of the preparation and of the menu should be carefully arranged beforehand with the head waiter, so that the hosts' minds will be at ease, free to dispense hospitality and conversation. Since they have this hotel service at their call, they should capitalize it and give as much as possible the appearance of home-entertaining. This will be easy and most pleasant.

As a charming detail it would be gracious for them to have a corsage at the place of the woman guest of honor, and, if they wish also, a boutonniere at the place of the man guest of honor.

2—Yes.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

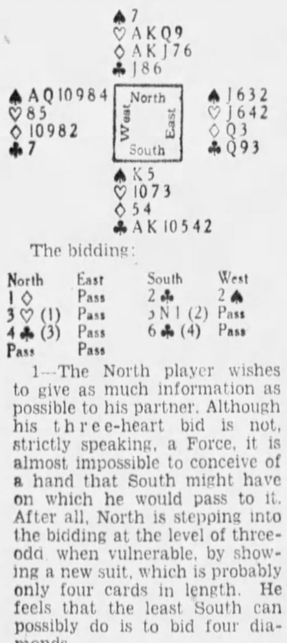
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Reading Partner's Distribution

It is very frequently possible for a player to put up terrifically strong bidding without at any stage of the auction employing either an Opening two-bid, a Forcing Takeout or an Overcall in the opponent's suit—the three main strength-showing bids.

On today's hand the North player, without forcing at any stage of the proceedings, was able to convey information concerning his very strong holding to his partner. As a result, said partner, with only an indifferent hand of his own, was able to bid and make a Slam.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♠
3 ♡ (1)	Pass	3 N T (2)	Pass
4 ♣ (3)	Pass	6 ♣ (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The North player wishes to give as much information as possible to his partner. Although his three-heart bid is not, strictly speaking, a Force, it is almost impossible to conceive of a hand that South might have on which he would pass to it. After all, North is stepping into the bidding at the level of three-odd when vulnerable, by showing a new suit, which is probably only four cards in length. He feels that the least South can possibly do is to bid four diamonds.

2—Naturally South would bid again, even if he did not know that his partner had a very strong hand. Since he knows North's bidding is very strong but has not as yet heard anything about the club fit, he decides that the best play for game should be at three no-trumps, despite the holding of but one spade stopper.

3—North quite correctly feels that the hand should play at either five clubs or five diamonds rather than three no-trump. He knows he is strong enough to be justified in trying for the eleven-trick game, but he does not jump to five clubs, as this bid would too strongly invite a Slam, which North does not desire to reach unless South can bid it voluntarily.

4—North's four-club bid has beautifully completed the picture for South. He now knows that his partner's distribution is either 5-4-3-1 or 5-4-4. However, he reasons that if North does hold a singleton spade he must either hold practically solid red suits, which would take care of South's five losers, or enough in clubs to completely solidify that suit, leaving a finesse in one of the red suits for the Slam. South, of course, knows that his partner has at least three clubs, and that even though North holds no honors at all, there will be a chance for a break. South's jump to six clubs is more than justifiable after his partner's very strong early bidding.

West gave the Declarer the most difficult Opening—the heart 8—and as a losing spade had to be ruffed, the heart was won in Dummy and a spade returned. The heart continuation was also won in Dummy, and South returned to his hand by a low club to the King. The spade was trumped with the club Knave, and now a low club was led. South quite correctly decided to play for the finesse rather than the drop, and when this succeeded he was able to claim the balance.

South believed that East held three clubs for two reasons: first, because the singleton held in Dummy suggested that some other hand probably held a singleton also; and second, because West's vulnerable Overcall at the level of two, which marked him with good distribution, suggested the same thing.

Madge's Father Assures Her That He Will Stand By

For almost a minute after my father had caught me in his arms at the door of the library, neither of us spoke. He held me close against him, his cheek pressed to mine, and I felt as if something of his indomitable spirit was being given to me. At last I stirred and lifted my head, so that my eyes looked up into his.

"I am all right, now," I whispered.

He did not answer, but drew me noiselessly into the library and closed the door as silently after him. I shot an apprehensive look toward the door at the farther end which communicated with the little study, where I had left Lee Chow, and my father's eyes followed mine. Then he put his hand upon my shoulder and smiled reassuringly.

STAYED IN HOUSE

"It is safely locked," he said soundlessly, "as this one will be."

He turned the key in the library door, then drew me down beside him on a big couch facing the fire.

"Now," he said smiling, "if we use our 'crook' tones, no one will be able to hear a sound from here. So don't forget. Now to business. Lee Chow is waiting for you in that room?"

He raised his hand and pointed to the study. I caught back a little exclamation of surprise.

"How did you know?" I murmured from the side of my mouth, in the manner Lillian had taught me. "You took Mother Graham inside the house before the rest went for the drive. I did not see you come out again."

He hesitated oddly.

"Nor did I," he said at last. "But I knew, nevertheless—never mind how, now; we haven't time — that Lee Chow wished an interview with you alone. I thought you might be nervous over it, so I came down. How are you now? Fit to talk to him, if you know that I shall be right here within call?"

WILL BE NEAR

"Oh, yes!" I murmured back, but my answer was mechanical. Most of my brain was engaged in conjecturing by what means my father had known of Lee Chow's purpose.

The answer came like a lightning flash into my troubled conjectures. Hugh, of course! He had taken Avis Arlen into the house in search of a wrap. He had had time to find my father, and to give him a message to look out for Lee Chow.

The conviction of Hugh's agency in the matter was at once assuring and agitating. It made me feel, as always, that Hugh, if human agency could prevent it, would never let harm come to me or mine. But it also proved to me beyond question that Lee Chow was up to some mischief, which Hugh feared, either vaguely or with definite knowledge.

But I could not tell my father of my conviction. Indeed, I could never speak to him of it, unless he chose to tell me of his own volition how he had found out that I needed watchful care. So, fortified with the knowledge that he would be within call during the coming interview, I released myself from his arms and rose.

"I am ready to go, now," I said.

"That's my own daughter," he approved, in the same inaudible tones. "Now listen carefully. Here is the key to the communicating door between the study and the library, which I locked just before you came in. When you go back there, I have no doubt that Lee Chow will ask to be assured that no one is in the library. If he does, unlock the door and show him the empty library. I shall be just outside the door in the hall alcove, and thereafter I shall be close at hand, either here, in the hall, or outside on the balcony.

READY FOR EMERGENCY

"If you need me, simply raise your voice and say "That is impossible, Lee Chow; impossible!' or, 'You are taking too much for granted, Lee Chow; too much for granted.' Any phasing will do, only so that you repeat after his name the identical phrase you have used just before it. I shall be in the room, or knocking at the door, within the next thirty seconds after you say the words."

"But if I do not call you?" I queried.

"All the better," he said promptly. "Really, I am loath to believe that you will find it necessary. I am simply preparing for an emergency, and giving you the assurance that I am close at hand which—forgive me—I believe you sorely need."

"I do need it, father," I told him earnestly. Then, with his kiss upon my lips and the key to the communicating door hidden in my bag, which I had retrieved in the hall, I went back into the little study where I had left the Chinese.

"You were fortunate in finding your bag, I see," he said, with his eyes upon the pretty evening trinket in my hand.

"Yes, indeed," I returned banally. "I should not like to have lost it.'

"And equally fortunate in finding your father, were you not?" he asked suavely.

Towels in Gay Embroidery

This is the time of the year when the thrifty housewife checks on her linens and adds to her stock. These three towels would certainly make a lovely addition to any linen closet. The one is done in colored cross-stitch which is so much in vogue now. The second is simple cutwork—and what woman doesn't welcome cutwork linens? The third—the basket, is a gay one in bright lazy-daisy, French knots and other simple stitches. The border on this towel can either be embroidered in running-stitch as illustrated, or a colored piece can be appliqued on; a pattern for the applique piece is given. And if any needlewoman is so fortunate as to have sufficient for her own needs, these towels would make a lovely Easter remembrance or a choice gift at a shower.

Pattern 556 contains a transfer pattern of three 15-inch towels with an applique band for one, the back edge for the other; illustrated directions for the stitches and color suggestions.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Household Hints

Eggs are less liable to break or stick to the pan if a little flour is added to the frying fat.

When paint brushes are to remain unused for some time, rub vaseline through the bristles and they will not become brittle.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Helping the Disabled Child

A friend of mine remarked recently that there appear to be fewer crippled children than in former years. But there are still all too many crippled and handicapped children in every section of the country.

Dr. Copeland

It is probable that we do not notice the cripple as much as we did. He has been taught to adjust himself to the condition and to devote himself to an interesting and useful life. He makes a place for himself, just as does his more fortunate cousins.

I am glad to say that disabled children are better off today than ever before. This is shown by a recent report published in Massachusetts. It is estimated that in that state, of more than five thousand crippled children, a thousand are receiving special hospital care and training. In addition, numbers are treated at home, in clinics or are under the care of private physicians.

Perhaps the greatest advancement in the care of the crippled child has been the successful use of "occupational therapy." This beneficial form of treatment was first used during and after the World War. It is a successful method of teaching a new occupation to the disabled adult.

For the child, its use merely marks a step in his progress towards happiness. It has a high curative value because it teaches the child to use and control diseased muscles and bones. When this has been accomplished, he can continue with his schooling. As a matter of fact, teaching is continued all during the period of convalescence.

Special instruction and expert supervision have given the crippled child the same opportunities enjoyed by other children. Health authorities no longer look upon the disabled child as a hopeless and tragic case. Every effort is made to have the child forget he is different from other and normal children. He is given a chance to develop and to learn, so that no distinction can be made between him and others.

In Massachusetts, there is a provision in law that furnishes a special teacher for any township having five or more crippled children who are unable to go to school. This is an excellent provision and would be of great benefit if provided by other states. No one will deny that every opportunity to fit him for life should be given to the crippled child.

With energy on his part, every field of opportunity is open to the disabled child. Certainly he should take advantage of the education and training that are provided.

Answers to Health Queries

A.—Such a patient should remain under the care of the doctor who is familiar with all the phases of the case. The diet is an important factor.

E. V. W. Q.—What do you advise for liver spots?

There's a new kind of exhibition down at Junior League dquarters in the Clark building—an exhibition of the art k of the Pittsburgh League's own members. And it does League credit! Mrs. Blair Childs, who is in charge of the ow," tells me that there'll be paintings and etchings and like added by Monday. When I was down Friday afternoon, as particularly attracted by Elizabeth Craig's work.

As a contrast to her usual oil portraits, she has a still life and two charcoals. The latter are studies, one of an old man and the other a seated nude.

Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner has two "spots," the tiny illustrations which punctuate magazine stories, in black and white.

Virginia Drake has an amusing oil, "Barns," depicting two red barns in a rural setting, and two springlike oils in yellows, greens and blues.

Art Exhibition Varies From Oils to Charcoals

Mrs. William F. Moreland, chairman of the arts and interests committee, has a lithograph and a small water color of a trilling brook between snow-covered banks, and then goes rustic in tawny oils picturing wheat stacks in a field with clouds scudding through a blue sky.

Mrs. T. J. Michie has several flower paintings, and Alice Rust submitted landscapes.

Sunday Concerts Popular With Smart Set Here

Although one hears of so many members of Pittsburgh's smart set reveling nowadays in the sunshine of the southland, ever so many were seen last night at Syria Mosque to hear Arthur Anderson and the National Symphony orchestra.

During intermission I had a glimpse of petite Rebecca Doyle chatting with her escort in the corridor. Her black lace dress had a skirt made up of innumerable narrow ruffles of the material. And she had a jaunty bolero jacket of black velvet.

Finely pleated godets gave that below-the-knee fullness and furnished decoration at the same time for Juliet Hillman's smart black crepe gown. Over the shoulders were ermine tails. With her was tall, brunette Martha McKelvy, who wore a deep blue crepe gown with self-material revers.

Plan Pittsburgh Hospital Easter Wed. Tea-Dance

Making plans for the annual Easter tea-dance at the Woman's Auxiliary of the Pittsburgh Hospital, to be held Wednesday, April 4, in the Hotel Schenley ballroom, is a group of committee chairmen.

The tea-dance proceeds will be used to help build a runway from the hospital onto the lawn, so that wheel-chair patients may enjoy the eight acres of beautiful grounds surrounding the hospital.

Miss Mary Hackett is chairman of the reception committee for the tea-dance; Mrs. Francis A. Keating, of music; Mrs. Lawrence P. Monahan, of finance; Mrs. Frank J. Lanahan, of tickets, and Miss Mary C. Murphy, of decorations.

Just back in town from two weeks in Pinehurst is Mrs. William T. McCullough, Jr. She has been visiting her father and mother-in-law there, the senior William T. McCulloughs.

'Blooming Basement' New Night Club at Schenley

The Hotel Schenley's amusing new night club, "The Blooming Basement" opened last night, and very gay it is. There's an unsurpassable puppet show, very clever, the tiniest dance floor, and when other entertainment palls there are unique wall decorations to gaze upon.

I saw Mrs. James McKay at one of the tables, dressed informally as were all the guests, in black crepe with white for accent and a black hat; the Oliver Kaufmanns, the Robert W. Schmertzes, the Henry F. Hornbostels, Mme. Emilie Gros and the John Luckies.

Interesting Dress Worn By Mrs. Lawrence Blair

Mrs. Lawrence Blair's dress was among the most interesting—the skirt was of black crepe with a top of soft red, black and white plaid.

Others I noticed were Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, Mrs. William P. Witherow, Katharine and Helen MacClaskey, Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, Bishop Alexander Mann and his daughter Eleanor, Mrs. Norman C. McLeod and the John W. Lawrences.

Butler Man Weds Jamestown, N. Y., Girl

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., March 10.—Miss Mary C. Danielson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Danielson, Kinney street, and Charles F. Feledy, Butler, Pa., son of Mrs. Teresa Feledy, Bellevue, were married in the J. P. Danielson, Jr., home here at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning, with the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Miller, pastor of the First Lutheran Church of Jamestown, officiating.

The bride had as her attendant her sister, Mrs. Melvin O. Swanson, of this city, wife of former superintendent of public utilities, Melvin O. Swanson. Mr. Feledy had as his best man Richard C. Diehl, of Defiance, O., coach at Ohio State University, Columbus, O. The bride wore pale blue crepe and carried pink rosebuds, white sweetpeas and forget-me-nots. Her attendant wore honeydew silk and carried talisman roses and white sweetpeas.

Mr. and Mrs. Feledy left Thursday night for New York, where last night they were entertained at the Cornell Club by C. M. Spear and William Cressman.

They sail today from New York aboard the Monarch of Bermuda for a wedding trip to the Bermuda Islands. They will make their home in East Brady street, Butler, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Feledy were feted Tuesday night by members of Ira Lou Spring Post, American Legion, of Jamestown, at a banquet in the Hotel Samuels, following which an informal dance was held in the Hotel Jamestown.

The bride is a graduate of Cornell and the bridegroom of Pennsylvania State College.

Poale Zedeck Junior Officers to Be Feted

Wotan's Abschied from "Die Walkure" ..... Wagner
Mr. Anderson.
Capriccio Espagnol ..... Rimsky-Korsakov

Hans Kindler, former first cellist of Stokowski's orchestra, returned to us last night as symphonic conductor with his National Symphony Orchestra from Washington, D.C. Pittsburgh gave him first chance as conductor some years ago with our own orchestra and last night we heard what he could do under far better conditions, that is, with men whom he understands and who know his ways, and with whom he has had many rehearsals and concerts. And so the program under present consideration should show him at his best.

Mr. Lissfelt

There is no doubt that he has acquired some skill in organization since that time but his music seems still to lack utterly a personal touch. He has a heavy beat but there are subtler rhythms than a strong dow beat that make for elasticity, tone contrasts, and dramatic feeling in music, to mention a few essentials that the born conductor seeks. Watching Kindler, one longs for the repose of Stock and Koussevitsky, who with so little gesture make such superb music.

The orchestra obviously has a fine personnel, the leading soloists in each choir display fine qualities and some restraint—as in the Rimsky-Korsakov "Capriccio Espagnol"—but the ensemblee needs maturity. Many in that audience were wondering why we should import the Washington players when our own Pittsburgh Orchestra needs every encouragement and can give just as goood a showing.

Arthur Anderson, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan Opera and one formerly of our own music colony, sang several operatic excerpts with the orchestra and gave very good account of himself. Though his voice was somewhat muffled in the volume of the orchestra there was a nice lilt in his "Figaro" and some good straightforward singing in the "Mephisto" serenade. As encore he gave an air from Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amor."

Later in the program he sang "Wotan's Farewell" from Wagner's "Walkuere," one of the grandest scenes in all opera. Anderson declamed it with great dignity and received a hearty ovation as reward.

BRIDAL BASKET RECIPE WINS GIRL PRIZE

Oakmont Man Gives Formula for Pan Dowdy

If there's a future bride in your midst, spring brings thoughts of showers (not April's variety either) and of a bridal table that is going to be the loveliest ever. Just as all brides are beautiful, so everything that surrounds them on their wedding day must be the same.

When you do your entertaining for the bride, be it shower, wedding breakfast, luncheon or dinner, make your table and the food you serve bear an air of romance. One way of bringing beauty to your table is suggested by Stella Fournier. Her orange fruit basket is a delight in appearance, delicious to eat.

Can't you, too, suggest some dainties not only for the wedding festivities, but for every-day use as well? Prudence Penny, at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will welcome all recipes you send her. Moreover for the best recipes she receives she will pay a $5 first prize and ten $1 prizes daily. She returns no recipes.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. J. C. BURGESS,
Waldheim road, Aspinwall.
MACAROON PUDDING

Beat yolks of two eggs to a fine froth, add gradually one-fourth cup of granulated sugar. Beat to a batter-like consistency, then pour over one and one-half cups of scalded milk and add one-eighth teaspoon salt. Fold in whites of the eggs, stiffly beaten, and flavor with one-half teaspoon vanilla and a few drops of almond extract. Pour the liquid, while hot, over twelve macaroons and set in a pan of hot water in the oven to bake till set and daintily browned. May be served hot if a warm dessert is desirable, but is equally good cold.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MISS STELLA FOURNIER,
843 Crucible street,
ORANGE FRUIT BASKET

Take one orange, cut in half, scoop out the pulp. Prepare a fruit salad of oranges, bananas, peaches, pineapple or any other kind of fruit. Fill the orange shells with the salad, adding whipped cream on top with rings cut from maraschino cherries.

TO MAKE HANDLE

Pierce two holes opposite each other on the edge of the orange, insert a piece of white silk hat wire, about six inches in length, fasten the ends in the pierced holes. Take a maiden hair fern the length of the wire and attach to the wire from across the handle.

J. R. MILLER,
Box 322, Oakmont,
PAN DOWDY

Mix together one cup of molasses and a scant one-fourth teaspoonful of allspice, another of ground cloves, a few gratings of nutmeg and two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon. Then peel and slice enough tart juicy apples to fill a three quart pan almost full. Do not be afraid of making too much, for it's just as good cold.

Dot two tablespoonfuls of butters cut in tiny pieces here and there over the top of the apples and pour over them the spiced molasses. Cover with a plain pastry rolled rather thick. Bake in a slow oven until the apples are well done.

The real secret of pan dowdy lies in cutting the pastry, which is a rich tender golden brown, into two-inch squares and poke them down among the molasses-sweetened apples with a spoon and let stand until partially cooled before eating.

Soup plates are the best dishes in which to serve pan dowdy, as it must be flooded with thick yellow cream.

Don't try to make this dish in a pudding dish or casserole. The roasting pan is probably the best dish one can find. A larger pan is better for the insertion of the pieces of pastry.

DIXIE PORK CHOPS

One-half teaspoon sage.
Four tablespoons brown sugar.
Two cups hot water.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Four tart apples, cored.
Three tablespoons flour.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One-third cup raisins.
Method—Sprinkle chops with salt and sage and brown in hot skillet on both sides. Place in baking dish. Slice apples in one-third-inch thick rings; arrange on chops and sprinkle with brown sugar. Add flour to fat in skillet and cook until brown, stirring constantly; add water and stir until mixture boils, then add vinegar and raisins. Pour over chops and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 40 minutes.

MRS. LUCY J. MURDICK,
1452 Penn Ave., Wilkinsburg.
CHOCOLATE BREAD SOUFFLE

Two cups scalded milk.
One cup bread crumbs.
Two egg yolks.
Three-fourth cup sugar.
One tablespoonful melted butter.
One-half cup ground chocolate.
Two egg whites.

Pour milk over bread crumbs, set aside to cool. Beat egg yolks. Add sugar, butter and chocolate and beat until smooth. Add milk and crumbs. Add vanilla. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake one hour in moderate oven with the baking dish in a pan of water. Serve with whipped cream or pudding sauce.

MARY E. DURKIN,

ITALIAN ANTIPASTO

(Service of six.)

Six hard-cooked eggs.
Six sweet pickles.
One small can of pimentos.
Six slices of Italian salami.
Six filet anchovies.
Six green Spanish olives.

Arrange one large leaf of lettuce on each individual dish, slice egg in rings, slice pickle in half, cut one pimento in strips, bone one anchovie, lay one slice of salami and one green olive. Then sprinkle one tablespoon olive oil over all, and season to taste with sprinkle of salt, dash of pepper and paprika, and garnish with a few sprigs of parsley.

MRS. W. D. STROBLE,
926 Madison avenue.
CALIFORNIA PUDDING

One tablespoon granulated gelatin.
Four tablespoons cold water.
One cup boiling prune juice.
One-third cup sugar.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One cup chopped prunes (cooked.)
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Two egg whites, beaten.

Soak gelatin and water four minutes. Add prune juice, stir until gelatin has dissolved. Add sugar, lemon juice and salt. Mix well. Cool and allow to thicken a little. Beat well, fold in rest of ingredients and pour into glass mold. Serves six.

MRS. F. P. BYERS,
316 E. Beaver street, Mercer.
GRANDMOTHER'S TROJAN PUDDING

Pudding ingredients—
Three cups flour.
One teaspoon baking soda.
One-half cup chopped salt pork.
One cup cherry preserves.
One cup sour milk.
One cup molasses.
One egg.
For the sauce—
Three tablespoons butter.
Three tablespoons flour.
Two cups boiling water.
One cup sugar.
Two teaspoons nutmeg.
Juice one lemon.

Sift together the flour and soda, add pork, then the preserves and moisten with milk, molasses and egg. Turn into a greased mold, cover closely and steam three hours.

For the sauce, blend the butter and flour and when smooth pour the boiling water over them. Cook until thick. Add the sugar, nutmeg and lemon juice.

MRS. MARGARET LOLLO,
155 Sycamore Street.
MASHED POTATOES AND CARROTS

Six medium sized carrots
Six medium sized potatoes.
Two tablespoons butter.
One-half cup milk (condensed or sweet).

Peel carrots and potatoes and place in separate sauce pans to cook until tender. Drain water from them and place in large bowl together. Mash them same as for mashed potatoes and salt to taste. Add butter and milk and beat until creamy.

MISS HELEN C. FROST,
1324 Union Avenue, Brackenridge.
BLACK WALNUT FUDGE CAKE

Part I.

One-half cake chocolate.
One cup boiling water.
Two tablespoons sugar.

Part II.

Two cups sugar.
One-half cup butter (scant).
Two eggs.
One cup black walnut meats.
One-half cup buttermilk of thick clabber
Two and one-half cups flour.
A teaspoon soda.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Cook part one until thick, let cool. Cream butter and sugar, add one unbeaten egg and beat, then the second egg and beat. Add the cooled part one and one cup flour at a time in which the salt has been added. Beat this mixture vigorously. Add nut meats slightly floured. Then add the one-half cup of buttermilk into which the soda has been dissolved. Beat again. Bake in a slow oven.

MRS. CHRIS BROWN,
732 Third avenue, Ford City.
MOCK VENISON

Cut cold mutton in slices (thin) and heat in a brown sauce made according to the following proportions:

Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One tablespoon of bottled meat sauce.
One tablespoon red currant jelly.
One cup water or stock.

Brown the flour in the butter, add the water or stock slowly and keep stirring. Then add the jelly and meat sauce and let the mixture boil up well.

The United States Marine Band waxes romantic in a new series of programs, "The Night Dream Hour," heard over WCAE Saturday nights at 8 o'clock, beginning tonight.

* * *

The Bach Chorus of Pittsburgh, directed by Robert Reuter, First Trinity Lutheran Church, organist, sings over KDKA at 8:30 p. m.

* * *

* * *

Six newcomers make their radio debut over KDKA Sunday at 8:15 p. m. They are Earle Schultz, Rebecca Rupp, Charles Johnson, Howard Schick, Arlene Reynolds and James McDowell.

Umberto Egizi's Orchestra will accompany the novices.

Air Audience Increasing Rapidly

By AIRCASTER

The field workers have just trekked back to CBS, after adventurous junkets to all points of the country, bearing trimphantly a carload of statistics, from which the studious and interested observer may learn officially that he is living in radio's peak era.

The boys have it all figured out, optimistically, that radio listening has suddenly become an all-year occupation, since in 1934, the summer months, they say, will bring no exodus, as in yesteryear, from the radius of the loudspeaker.

Just for the record, it should be revealed, for instance, that by July 1, the number of homes equipped with facilities, if not the disposition for listening to radio, will, in this country, number approximately 18,000,000.

BULL FIDDLER

During a rehearsal there, Paul recounts, he suggested to one of the five bull-fiddlers that an effect might be heightened if the head fiddler were to slap the strings in rhythm, instead of the conventional caressing with a bow.

"And I always thought," said Paul, "that a bass-violinist was merely a fiddler who wanted to do things in a big way."

Mark Shields Gives Political Review

Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, reviews the week's political developments over WCAE at 6 o'clock this evening.

The Globe Trotter is heard over WCAE at 12:15 p. m.; over WJAS at 2:15 p. m. and over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

For the fun of it, let's try to locate the owner of a grosgrain ribbon watch fob that was lost in Swissvale about eight years ago. The present possessor, Lucille Moyle, 7330 Denniston avenue, Swissvale, happened to run across it as she was going through some old things the other day.

On the ribbon is pinned a fraternity charm, the emblem of "The Thistle." There is also a class pin bearing the initials C. T. S. 1908.

The owner may have the pin by giving the initials on the back of the fraternity charm.

You know, thanks to Joseph H. Rodgers, I did locate the hero of the Bigelow boulevard fire. I sent his name to Mrs. Orr, who requested it.

I won't publish the name here because he is a student at the University of Pittsburgh and maybe, for all I know, susceptible to blushing.

The 1859 one cent piece and the 1863 one will bring about three cents apiece with any luck, William. (William Scheib, Carnegie).

A. G. S., your 1834 Liberty-head nickel is worth about 15 cents.

Mrs. V. D. Boyd, Turtle Creek—Your half dime is worth 7 cents if it has arrows and if without arrows, 15c, but you mustn't scratch off the arrows.

That program comes through his station.

SOFT TAILLEURS BRING WINTER SURCEASE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT IS THE costume which feels comfortable beneath a top coat, and looks gallantly spring like without one, that all shoppers are picking up during this vile 'tween season weather. That is, they are picking them up if they can find them. For it is not easy to find a suit which is smart without being windblown or Cossack—both of which have bulky details to stuff under a coat—or a frock not loaded with fine lingerie that will interfere with a late spring fur piece though it fills up the neckline of a warm top coat attractively.

Suits made of soft wool and designed without padding and extravagant revers; coat dresses of any stuff, and shirtwaist frocks offer dual roles.

In thin wool or silk, in a pastel or a richer tint, this monk's frock with its white collar and cord belt is an ideal spring model, with or without a coat.

Tie silk, boon of budgeteers, is used for the novelty shirtmaker frock, left.

PREDICTIONS ARE that accessories which match our spring frocks will be more than ever important this year. Navy blue shoes are now as casual a sight as brown or black shoes; dark red and dark green shoes, so they say, will be added painlessly to the general wardrobe.

Gloves to match all these shoe shades, and of elegant detail that would not shame trousseau, lingerie, are already at hand, and bags are joining the colors, bringing such new tricks as streamline monograms. The dark costume with matching shoes and white for all other accessories is almost upon us once more.

White Denies 'Socking' Rudy

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 10—George White sock Rudy Vallee?

The diminutive theatrical producer said today:

"All I did was maroon him on a chandelier."

"Rudy came on the lot and we were to shoot the very first scene in the picture. It shows Rudy directing his orchestra from a chandelier 30 feet off the floor.

"Rudy was pretty busy and worried those days, what with lawyers and process servers and what not. He got up on the chandelier, then yelled:

"'Hey, I've got to see my lawyer.'

"Well, you know studios are busy places and I couldn't afford to have them come around and ask me why we weren't shooting and using up the company's money that way. So I told a couple of the boys to take the ladder away from the chandelier and there was Rudy. And we shot the scene. Rudy was a little mad but he was perfect in it.

"And I still like him. This socking business is the bunk."

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat, that so often leads to something serious, generally eases up in five minutes when soothing, warming Musterole is applied. Rubbed in once every hour, relief usually follows in five hours.

Better than a mustard plaster, Musterole gets action because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—stimulating, penetrating, and helpful in drawing out pain and infection.

Used by millions for 25 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER
Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are, you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver, which does not yield sufficient bile — causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something," which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

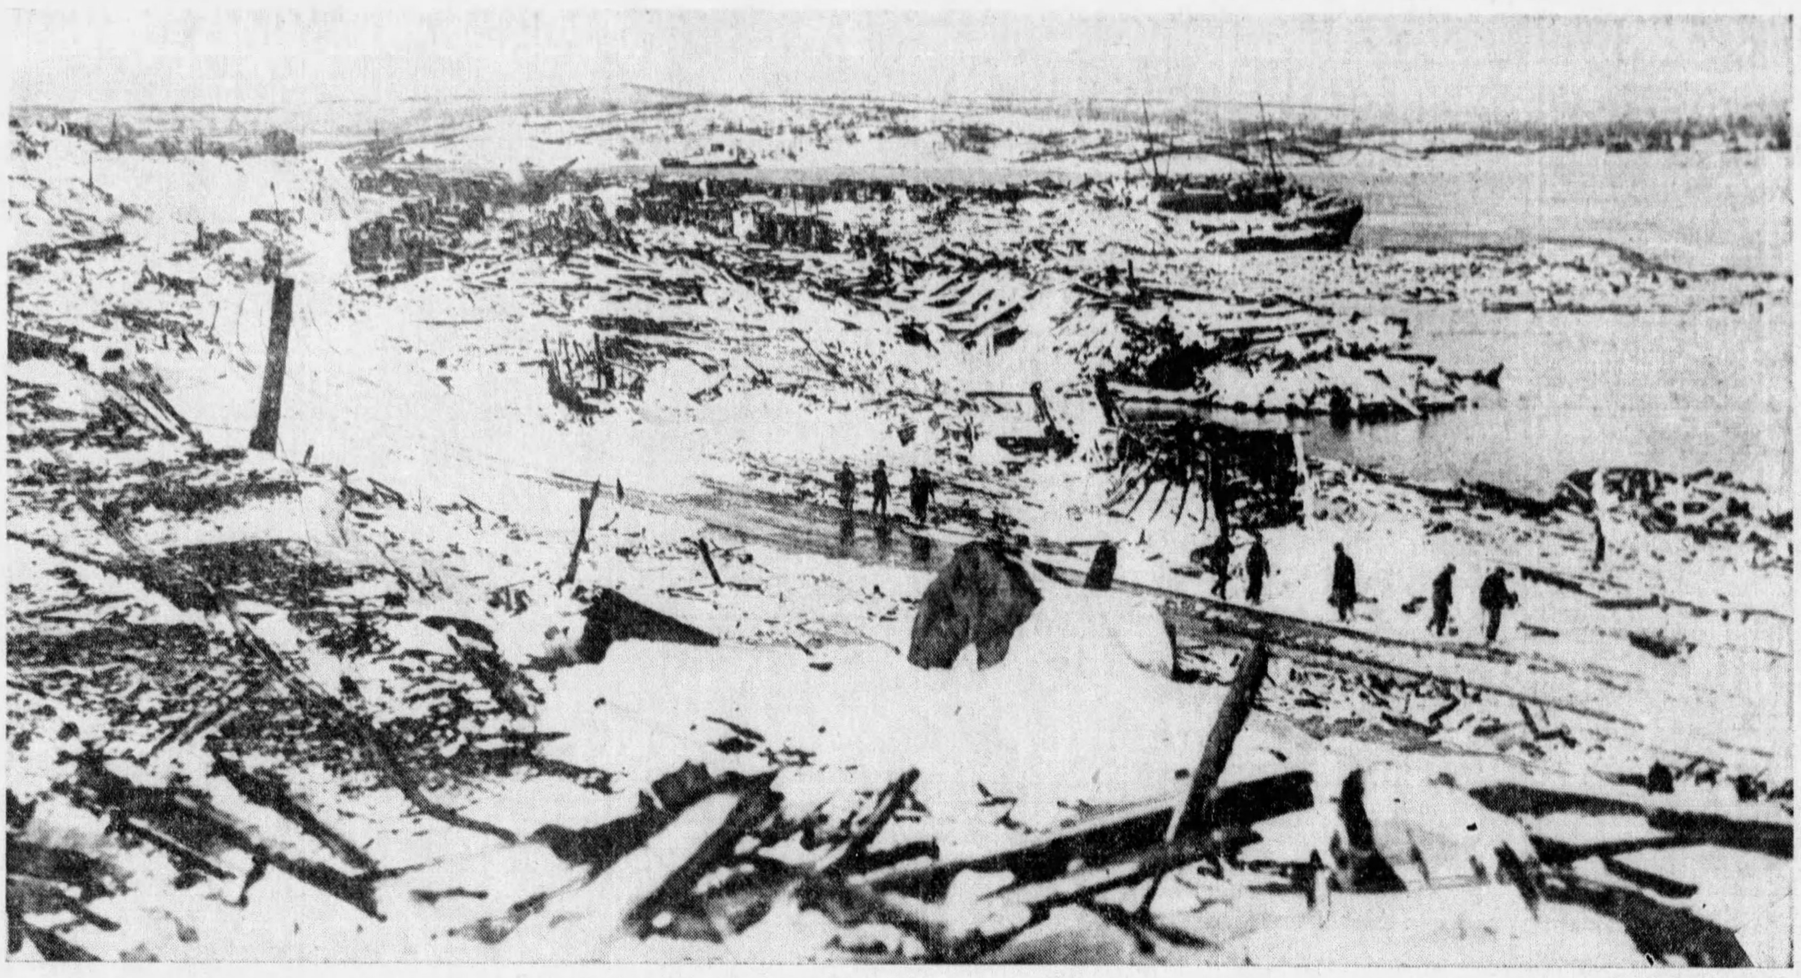
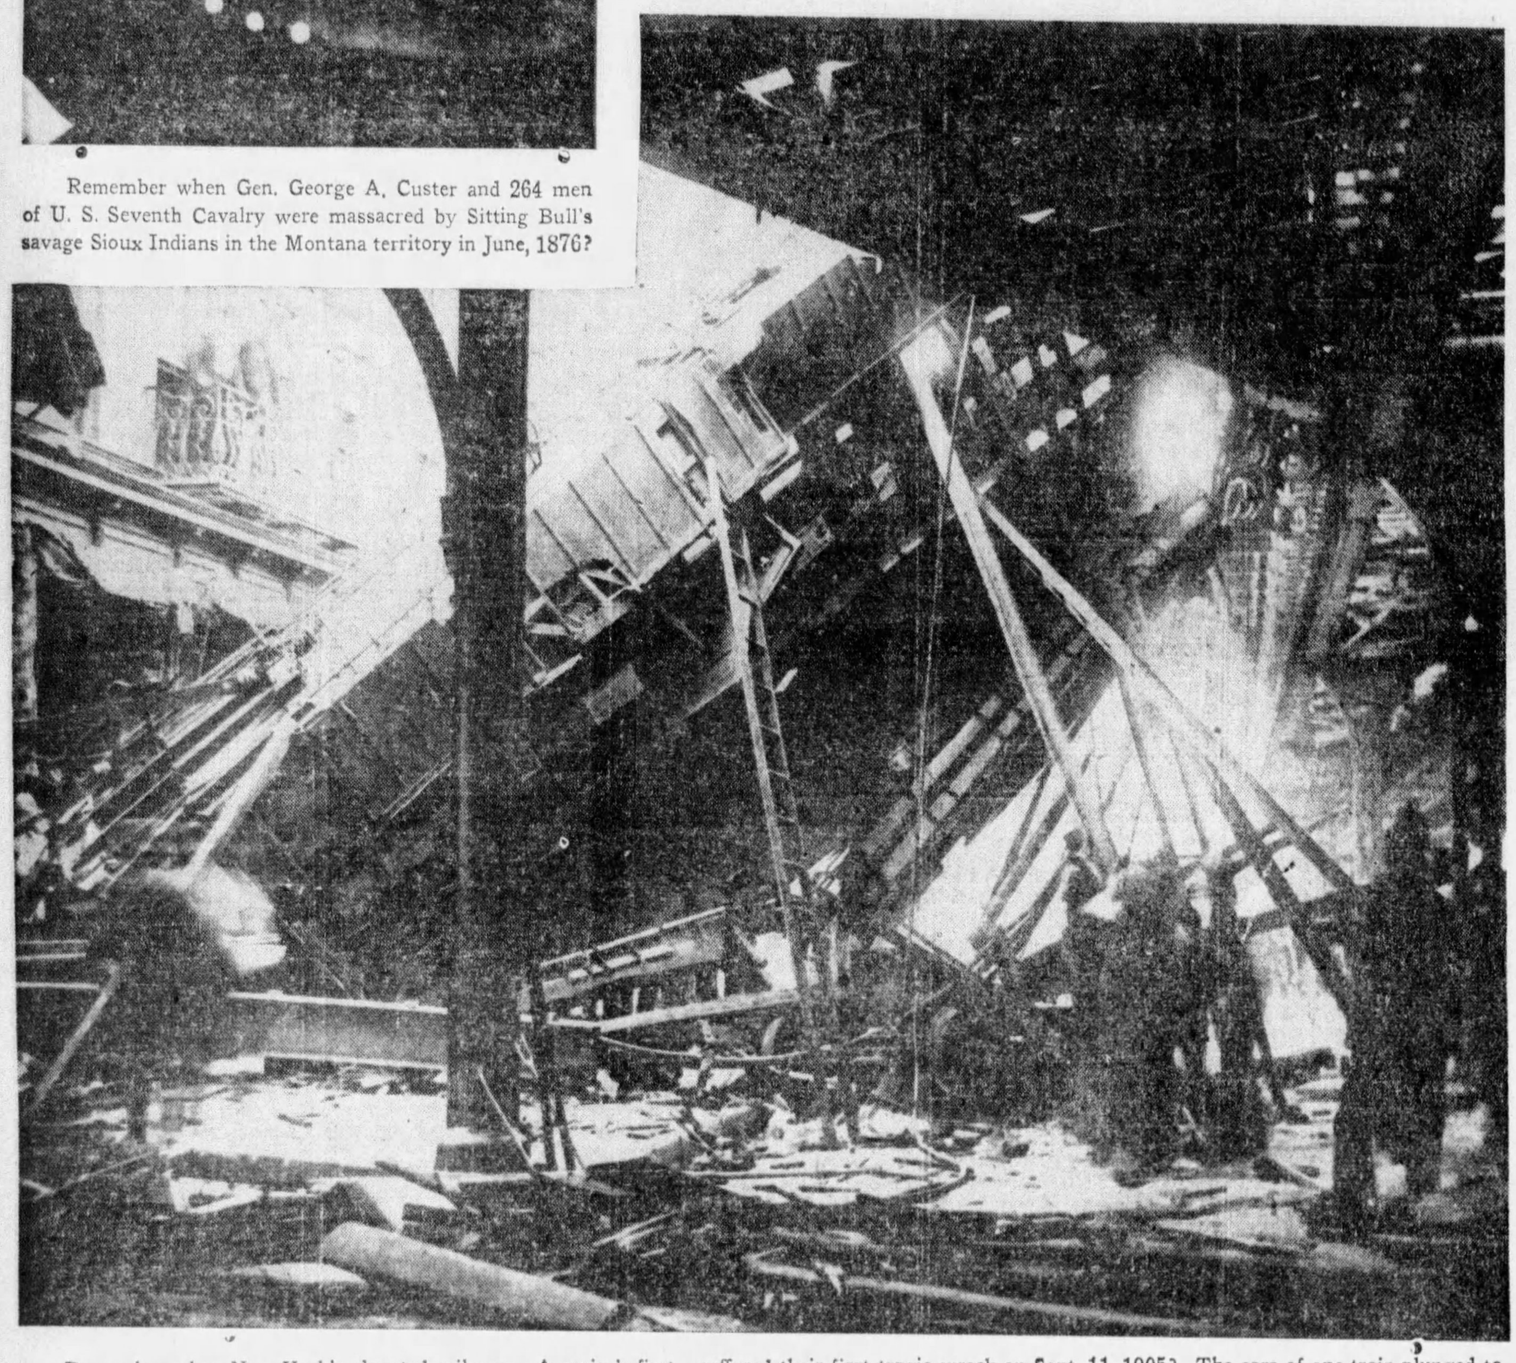
REMEMBER WHEN THE HALIFAX EXPLOSION KILLED 1,200?

This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

Remember when Gen. George A. Custer and 264 men of U. S. Seventh Cavalry were massacred by Sitting Bull's savage Sioux Indians in the Montana territory in June, 1876?

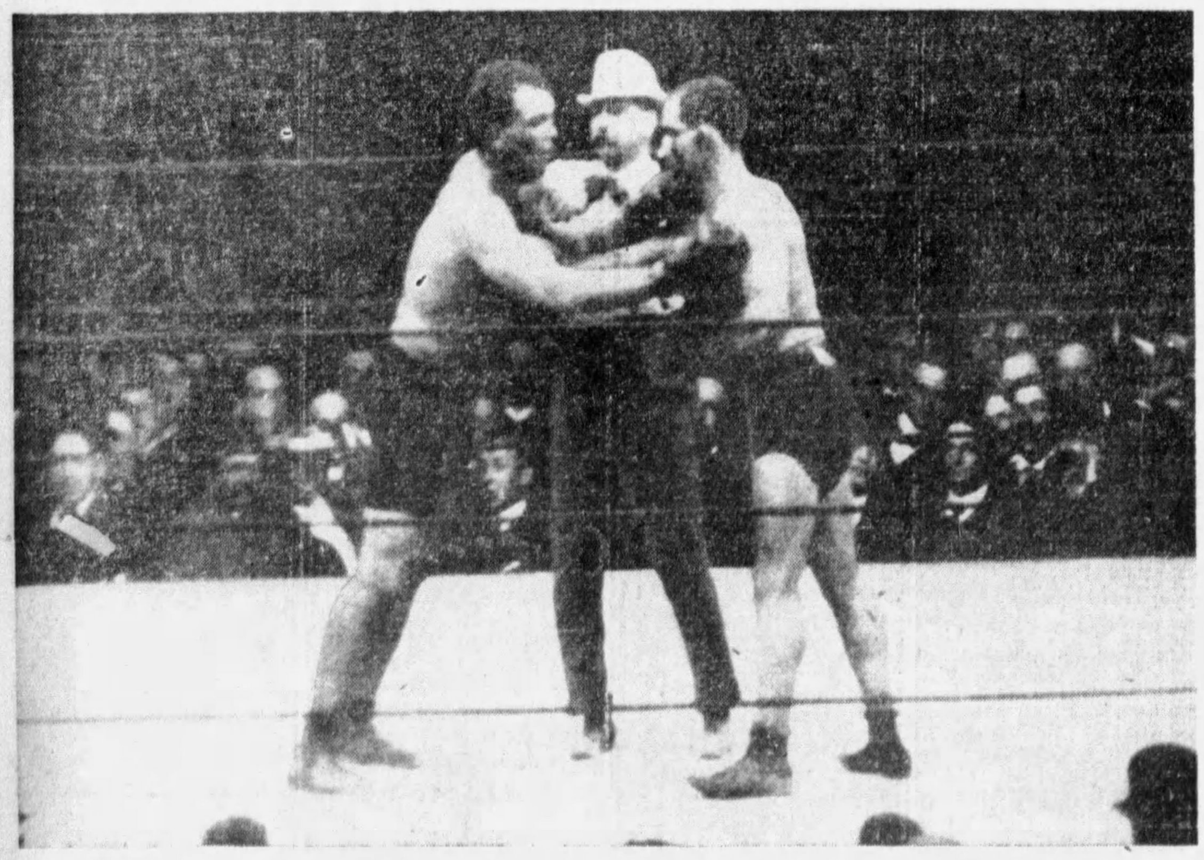


Remember when a munitions-laded ship was rammed in Halifax (Nova Scotia) harbor on December 6, 1917, and how high explosives were rained on the city after a terrific detonation? Some 3,000 buildings were razed, more than 1,200 killed, 400 reported missing, thousands injured. Damage: $20,000,000. Called the greatest civilian disaster of the World War.

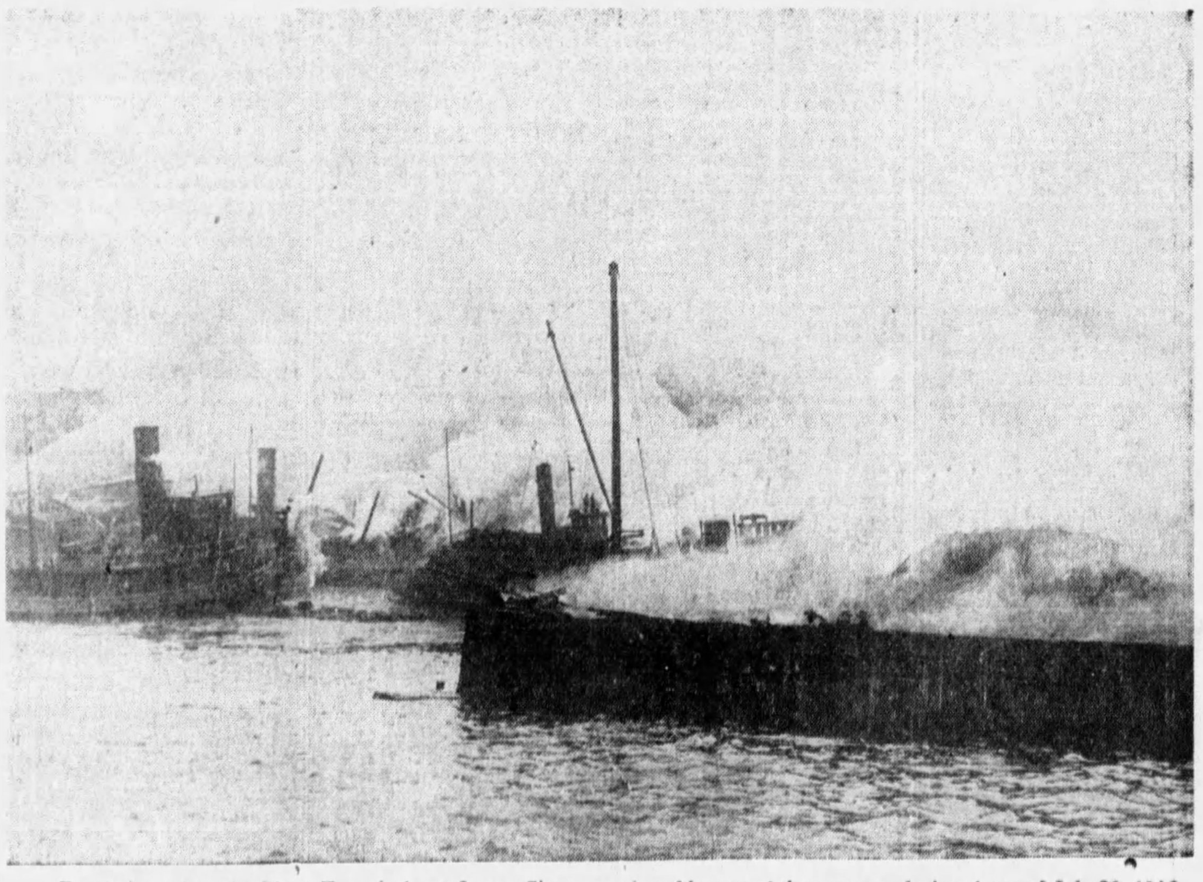


Remember when New York's elevated railways—America's first—suffered their first tragic wreck on Sept. 11, 1905? The cars of one train plunged to the street from a misplaced switch, killed five, injured many. Here is the wreckage—with firemen at work cutting it away after victims has been removed.

Remember when William Jennings Bryan, great advocate of unpreparedness, answered the call to arms? Here he is as a colonel of volunteers in the Spanish War. He died in 1925.



Remember when Jim Jeffries (left), six months after he had won the world's heavyweight title in 1899 from Bob Fitzsimmons, fought and badly battered Sailor Tom Sharkey in 25 rounds at Coney Island. The referee was George Siler.



Remember when the Black Tom docks at Jersey City were ripped by one of the worst explosions known? July 30, 1916. Boats loaded with France-bound explosives took fire. Dead: 4. Unproved blame: Spies. The damage: $22,000,000.

FOUR SCHOOL FLOOR CHAMPS TO CLASH TONIGHT

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

New German for Hamas
Leviasky Build-Up Spiked
Five Offers for Lazzeri

A's Try Buc Failure
Mangin Faces Big Job
Hockey Comeback Costly

Probably it will be up to Steve Hamas to attempt the heading off of a new German candidate for heavyweight honors. Having rubbed Max Schmeling out of the picture, the former Penn State athlete may now be called upon, in the furtherance of his own aspirations to a title match, to eliminate another contender from the Fatherland in the person of Walter Neusel. A meeting of Hamas and Neusel would appear to be the logical sequel to last night's elimination, in which the German wrecked the Levinsky build-up by winning a split decsiion over the Kingfish in their 10-round New York fight.

Steve Hamas

No doubt that's the next match to which the Madison Square Garden promoters wil lturn. They had hoped to smoke up Levinsky as the challenger to meet Primo Carnera in June, but the little that was left of the Levinsky boom after the questionable decision against Charley Massera, who meets Reds Barry at Motor Square Garden here next Monday night, has now been swept away by Neusel. And with Max Baer, the logical challenger and the only man who would draw a real gate with Carnera, unavailable on account of a hook-up with Jack Dempsey, the Garden operators probably will depend on a Hamas-Neusel match as the best in sight to produce an opponent for the titleholder. Possibly expecting a Levinsky victory, they had talked of sending the winner of last night's bout against Carnera, but two foreigners fighting for the world championship in an American ring wouldn't carry much box office appeal. The heavyweight situation is a sorry one, any way you look at it.

LAZZERI SOUGHT BY FIVE RIVAL CLUBS

It's a strange fact that one of the American League players who figured most frequently in release rumors the last two winters actually was one of the most eagerly sought men in the circuit. Tony Lazzeri, Yankee second sacker, is that pastimer. Repeatedly it was reported that the Yanks were going to drop Lazzeri, but that Manager Joe McCarthy never had the slightest intention of letting him go is proved by the fact that since the close of last season that skipper has turned down trade offers for Tony from five American League clubs. clubs.

The Tigers, Indians, Red Sox, White Sox and Browns all made bids for the aggressive and hard-hitting Italian, but McCarthy refused to consider any of the proposals. That's why the Yanks didn't make any trades. McCarthy wished to swing a dicker for a pitcher or an outfielder, but everybody wanted Lazzeri and that put an end to the talk. Tony is sure to be a Yankee regular again this year. If Don Heffner, Baltimore recruit, makes the grade at second base, Lazzeri will be moved over to third. Otherwise, Tony will return to his old keystone post, where he helped the Yanks to win four pennants and three world championships.

MACK TRYING ANOTHER PIRATE DISCARD

Connie Mack appears to have a strong liking for players cast aside by the Pittsburgh club. Even in the early days of the A's he took on a flock of them, including Rube Waddell, Harry Davis, Fred Ely, Monte Cross, Bob Ganley and Ensign Cottrell. In late years he had George Haas and Homer Summa, and he still has Lee Roy Mahaffey. In the main, Connie had good luck with the Pirate discards, and now he hopes to repeat with another in the person of Pitcher Vernon Kennedy.

Vernon Kennedy

This right-hander was carried by the Bucs on two spring training trips, under Jewel Ens in 1931 and under George Gibson in 1932. Kennedy was farmed out to Wichita and Hazelton the first season, and was let go altogether after his second spring tryout two years ago. He has been telling the scribes in the Mackian camp that nobody paid any attention to him in his Pirate trials or appeared to know he was on the club, though his record of 18 defeats against 15 victories for Oklahoma City last season hardly substantiates his assertion that his ability was underestimated here. Kennedy pitched in 50 games last year and saw further service as a pinch hitter and runner. He lost his first seven games in a row, but says his club made only three runs behind him in that time. Mack considers him a bright prospect in spite of his unimpressive record on paper. Kennedy gained his greatest fame as a track and field athlete. Flashing from the obscurity of Warrensburg (Mo.) Teachers' College, he won the decathlon at the Penn Relays in 1927 by copping the shotput, javelin and discus throws and tying for first in the pole vault, setting a record that was not broken until Barney Berlanger came along.

ODDS AGAINST MANGIN IN RECORD EFFORT

In retaining the national indoor tennis title in 1933, Gregory Mangin was one of the few sports champions to escape being overthrown in a jinx year, but the odds will be against him in his attempt, in the New York tournament opened today, to equal the record of three straight, made only by G. F. Touchard in 1913-14-15.

Getting past such opposition as Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, Lester Stoefen, George Lott, Berkeley Bell, Jean Borotra, a four-time winner though never twice in succession, Paul Feret, Andre Merlin, Christian Boussus and other stars making up the American-French field, may call for a little more than Mangin can produce.

OTTAWA'S HOCKEY RETURN PROVES COSTLY

Ottawa and Pittsburgh dropped out of major league hockey at the same time. The reasons were different. In Ottawa the fans went cold on the team. Even a Stanley Cup winner in 1926-27 lost $25,000. In Pittsburgh, a winning club would have kept interest as high as ever, but the city lacked, and still lacks, a rink large enough to enable the promoters to provide a sufficient number of low-priced seats for the patrons and keep the receipts up to the notch required to cover the cost of an expensive team. Benny Leonard figured that an arena providing 5,000 cheap seats would solve the problem here. Ottawa went back into the National League two years ago, while Pittsburgh stayed out, and now the Canadian management probably regrets its step.

George Boucher

For, according to Manager George (Buck) Boucher, the two seasons have cost Owner Frank Ahearn $90,000. The club dropped $50,000 last year and is $40,000 in the red for the present campaign. Boucher admits he has an idea that Ahearn may tire of putting good money into a losing venture and will let the franchise be transferred to an American city.

POPE, SUMMERS RESUME SQUASH DUEL HERE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Squash racquets monopolizes the attention of club sport devotees this afternoon with the Keystone A. C. the scene of speedy and important activity. At 1 p. m. and again at 5, National Professional Champion Jack Summers, of Boston, and rangy Ben Pope, crack mentor at the K. A. C., are billed to appear in four-game blocks of their six-session exhibition series that began yesterday and will end tomorrow.

Between times, which means at about 2 o'clock, semi-final contests of the annual City Class B titular tournament grace the program. The windup of the City Handball League Class A playoff series, with Y. M. H. A. slated to encounter K. A. C. at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., has been postponed until next Saturday, according to announcement of Secretary Dick Koubek.

PROS SPLIT HONORS

Summers and Pope split two seances yesterday, so that they await their third scrimmage on a par at four games apiece. Pope drew first blood by bagging stanza one of the inaugural tussle, 15-7, as Summers wobbled at the start. The Bostonian recovered suddenly in frame two and ran out at 15-10, a feat which he emulated in the third canto for 15-11 verdict. The fourth game was close throughout, went to deuce at 13-all as Summers laid dead a cross court shot, and landed in the Pope basket, 18-15.

In the dinner hour melee, Pope got away to an impressive start as his low, hard drives and deft cross court drops kept Summers on the bicycle virtually without surcease. Ben garnered two games handily, 15-12, 15-9. But the premier, noted for his combative spirit when the situation calls for fight, switched his tactics, and knotted the count with victories at 15-13 and 15-11.

The Class B semi-finals find three Keystoners and one P. A. A. contender surviving. In the upper half of the draw, Chip Kennedy, home club veteran, meets the writer, while in the lower, Theos Manos and Jean Caspar stage K. A. C. civil warfare. Kennedy stepped off to an early lead and was never headed as he downed George Henderson, powerful Winged Header, 15-2, 15-12, 11-15, 15-12. The writer was forced to the limit by his husky team-mate, Rod Flannery, whose clever short game stood out in a protracted 15-11, 7-15, 15-12, 9-15, 15-11 struggle. Meanwhile Manos eliminated another P. A. A. aspirant, Dr. John O'Loughlin, 16-13, 16-15, 15-11.

SQUASH PLAY CARDED

The city Class A squash championship event will get under way on the Keystone courts Monday. The following 16 contestants have been declared eligible and are listed:

City Champion McCook Reed, Henry Blaxter, Jr., Charles A. Fagan, Jr., Ed Seifert, Bill Bickel, Larry Semans, Jean Caspar, Chip Kennedy and Theos Manos, of the K. A. C.; Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Frank McClintock, Jack Evans and Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A.; Joe Oliver and Jim Ebbert, of the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and Dave Gilmore, of the Allegheny Country Club.

Alex Robinson, A. C. C. satellite, has withdrawn because of a heavy cold, Caspar, Kennedy, Manos, and Sullivan qualified by attaining the Class B semi-finals.

The Junior A. M. A., A. A. U. handball championships will run throughout next week at the Y. M. H. A. Director Art Scher will receive singles entries at the Bellefield clubhouse until this evening.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: CLOUDBUSTER HEN LANGER—On April 17, 1932, Cloudbuster Hen Langer, of Turtle Creek, Pa., made his first parachute jump while participating in Father Cox's Relief Fund show, and his first jump was a "parachute race" with a professional jumper, Red Miller. Miller won this unique race, but Langer continued to jump until now he does it as a favorite sport, although he has had some harrowing experiences when things didn't go just right. He has made 35 trips in a plane, but never landed in one because each time he has descended with his chute.

TOMORROW: THE MONOLITHS OF PERU.

KEN HIGH FIVE, UNIONTOWN TO MEET HERE

By JULIUS LEVIN

John Ross

Two of the six surviving schools, Duquesne, defending W. P. I. A. L. champion, and Uniontown, which carried off the league toga in 1925 and 1926, when the one and only Charley Hyatt was a member of the Fayette County floor machine, are striving to be the first school to win the basketball championship of Western Pennsylvania for the third time. Six schools have managed to win the laurels twice, but none has been able to ascend the basketball throne three times since the league first started operations, in 1913.

TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED

Picking winners in tonight's semi-final engagements is a hazardous task due to the fact the teams involved appear to be evenly matched. That Ambridge-New Castle duel in Beaver Falls High School should prove a thriller from start to finish. Both have compiled impressive records. New Castle's only defeat was a setback at the hands of New Kensington in a non-league engagement, while the only quintet to take a fall out of Moe Rubenstein's Ambridge five was the Geneva College Reserves, who turned the trick by a 19-18 margin in the final game of the season.

New Kensington, led by Johnny Ross, and Uniontown also boast impressive records as they prepare to take the floor in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. New Kensington, perennial winner in Section I, swept through its league campaign with only one setback, Tarentum winning by a 39-37 count in the final game of the season. Uniontown not only won all of its league games in Section XI, but eliminated a powerful East Pittsburgh quintet, 42 to 35, in a second-round engagement.

All the teams appearing in contests tonight already have tasted warfare in the current elimina-

FOUR PANTHER SQUADS FACE FRAYS AWAY

By JESS CARVER

If Pitt had only something for the wrestlers and rifle shooters to do tonight it would make a great job of having all its varsity winter sport teams in action. They might match the gunners and matmen in a fight to the finish, at that, or send the marksmen out after rabbits and the wrestlers after each other.

As it is, the basketballers, swimmers, boxers and trackmen have dates on foreign territory, with West Virginia bearing the brunt of the Panther invasion. Dr. Carlson's crack floor teams, varsity and freshman, meet the Mountaineers at Morgantown and when the passers are through the boxers will take up the good work.

SWIMMERS IN EAST

Striking into the Middle West, the Pitt track and field squad seeks additional honors in the Central States Intercollegiates, an event of the evening at Notre Dame. Meanwhile, Pat Corr's unbeaten swimmers are engaged in the Eastern Swimming Association individual championships in the University of Delaware pool at Newark, Del.

The basketballers are up against what looks to be a tough assignment at Morgantown. West Virginia always has been difficult to take on its own floor, and the Mountaineers have been stepping along right nicely of late. Pitt won't have Claire Cribbs, star center, available, either, and with Cribbs out of the lineup the Panthers lose some of their potency. Cribbs still is in Mercy Hospital nursing a leg injury suffered in the Westminster game.

BIRCH GOES WILD

Paulie Birch erased from the minds of his near rivals any hopes same might have held of catching him in the race for individual scoring honors among the district collegiate tossers as he piloted the Dukes to a 54-to-32 triumph over Geneva at Beaver Falls last night.

After a scorching first half, which wound up with the Dukes out in front by a single point at 21 to 20, Birch zipped five field goals through the hoop, which, added to three made during the first half and four fouls, gave him a total of 10 points for the evening.

The Covenanters, who came close to beating the Dukes here in Pittsburgh earlier in the campaign, made a game try in last night's battle, but couldn't overcome the marksmanship of Birch and Art Feldman. It was Feldman who held them at bay during the first period and Birch in the second. Besides, the Dukes had a great night at the foul line, making good on 14 out of as many attempts, which just about contutes a record for the district.

COACHES ARGUE

Coaches Davies and Loeffler, who think no more of losing a ball game than they do of their right eyes, passed the time of day between halves as they left the floor, but the Duquesne mentor wound up with the last say.

BISON BOXERS WIN

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 10.—The Bucknell and Wash-Jeff boxing teams wound up their Eastern Boxing Conference schedules here last night, the Bisons winning by a 4-to-3 count.

A victory in the final bout by Capt. Pethick, of Bucknell, over Skulos, of Wash-Jeff, provided the margin of victory. The summary:

tions. New Castle disposed of Union Township, champion of Section XVIII, 45-18; New Kensington eliminated Ford City, champion of Section II, 31-1-, and Ambridge eliminated Leetsdale, champion of Se tion II, 3-11, and Uniontown, as mentioned previously, disposed of East Pittsburgh, champion of Section XVII, 42-35.

SCOUTS TO ATTEND

Both games will be well scouted tonight. Scott being scheduled to meet the winner of the New Kensington-Uniontown game in the semi-finals Tuesday evening in the Pitt Stadium pavilion, Johnny Reed and his quintet no doubt will attend the battle in the Panthers' home court, while down in Beaver Falls High School, Ray Henry and his defending Duquesne champions likely will be well represented. Duquesne meets the Ambridge-New Castle winner in the Pitt Stadium pavilion Wednesday.

Duquesne, whose record in W. P. I. A. L. elimination play during the past nine years shows 25 victories and only four defeats, advanced to the semi-final round last night when it defeated Dormont High School, champion of Section IX, 33-19, in the second quarter-final game on the Pitt Stadium pavilion court. In the past nine years Duquesne has been a finalist no less than five times, winning the title twice, the first in 1928 and the second in 1933.

DORMONT DEFEATED

Dormont, vanquisher of Washington, champion of Section XV, in the second round, 37-31, had the Steelers wobbly in the first half of the contest, but the Section IX champion was unable to maintain its speedy pace and was overtaken in the last half. Once the Steelers got their bearings, it was just a matter of how many points Ray Henry's team was going to register.

Dormont, led by Brubaker, as fine a guard as has appeared in the series to date, and Jens, managed to pile up an 11-8 lead on the Steelers, who appeared to be ragged in the first half. Duquesne, however, led by the dependable Eddie Wisbar at center, who scored 15 points, and George Kocheran at forward, who hit the hoop for nine markers, pulled away in the last half and once in the lead, never trailed. In the last two periods, Duquesne rang up 25 points while holding Dormont to eight. Brubaker, besides his sterling defensive play, was Dormont's leading scorer with seven points. Duquesne bagged 14 double-deckers to eight for the losers. The lineup:

NEUSEL VICTOR OVER KINGFISH

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—It seems Madison Square Garden will need to look elsewhere than at King Levinsky for a suitable opponent to meet Heavyweight Champion Primo Carnera in the summer.

The Kingfish from Chicago, picked for a build-up campaign by the Garden after efforts to line up Max Baer failed, dropped a decision to blonde Walter Neusel, of Germany, in 10 rounds last night, and talk of matching him with Primo died down to a virtual whisper.

The King had lost plenty of prestige in his last previous start here although he won a disputed decision over Charley Massera, of Pittsburgh. He lost plenty more last night when he put Neusel on the floor in the second round and then not only failed to keep him there, but let the German carry off a split verdict with a strong finish.

It was a close decision, decided in Neusel's favor by the referee, Arthur Donovan, after one judge, Harold Barnes, had voted for Levinsky, and the other, Marty Monroe, for the German.

One of the largest boxing crowds here in many months, 10,000 paid about $21,000 to see the exciting battling. Levinsky weighed 203½ pounds; Neusel 196¾.

Metz Atlanta Leader; Sam Parks Shoots 81

ATLANTA, March 10.—(AP.)—Young Dick Metz, of Deal, N. J., held a one stroke lead over the field today as the nation's touring professionals faced the second round of play in the Metropolitan open golf tournament.

Metz shot a 67, three under par yesterday. However, his play netted him only a meagre lead, as veteran Johnny Golden, of Noroton, Conn., returned a 68.

Sam Parks, Jr., of the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh, was off form and took an 81.

BELLEAIR, Fla.—Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., holds the Belleair women's golf title today, having defeated Frances Hadfield, of Milwaukee 2 and 1, in the final round of the annual tournament yesterday.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Indiana University's crack wrestling team has seven men in the finals of the annual Big Ten mat championship tournament tonight. Indiana has held the title for the past three years.

ALBANY, Ga.—Kathleen Garnham, of England, and Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, clash today in the title round of the third annual Radium Springs invitation golf tournament.

PASADENA, Cal.—J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, has opened negotiations for the services of Harold (Muddy) Ruel, veteran catcher, a free agent.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Dave Lavingston, Yale swimming star, claims a new world record for the 220-yard free style distance. He turned in a 2:12 2-5 furlong against the Navy in a dual meet here last night, which was won by Yale, 52 to 19.

PHILADELPHIA.—New York skaters held a commanding advantage as the second day of competition in the fourteenth annual figure skating championships got under way. Valerie Jones and George Boltero, of the New York Skating Club, gained top honors last night.

NEAL, CROOKS RACE VICTORS

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 10.—(INS.)—Dick Neal, Kansas City, Mo., and Samuel Crooks, Rumson, N. J., got the judges' nods in the Class A and Class B outboard motorboat gold cup races yesterday, run as a preliminary to the second elimination trials scheduled for today and tomorrow in the international regatta.

Neal, winner of all three heats in the Class A event, amassed 1,200 points, with Morris Wilson, Fort Worth, in second place with 1,083 points.

Crooks had 1,085 points in the Class B event, with George Coleman, Miami, Okla., second with 1,050 points. Neal attained his highest speed in the third heat. He ran this heat over the five-mile course in 8:29.1, at an average speed of 35.35 miles an hour.

COCHRAN AFTER 18.2 CROWN

A week of additional 18.2 play in the South and then on to Chicago for the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament.

That is the program of Welker Cochran, recently dethroned as world's three-cushion champion, who completed a five block exhibition match with Johnny Clinton, world amateur champion, at Joe Tobin's William Penn parlors, Smithfield street, last night. Cochran bowed to Clinton, 300 to 249, in the final block last night, but won the match, 1,363 to 1118.

Last night's contest was a slow affair, going 21 innings. Clinton had the high run of 60. He also clicked off the best run of the tournament, a cluster of 105 billiards gracing the third block of the duel.

MANCINI VICTOR

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 10.—Dominick Mancini, of Pittsburgh, won by a technical knockout over Danny Delmont, of Chicago, in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

FINALISTS SET IN SCHOOL TOURNEYS

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 10.—The Monessen and Norwin High School basketball teams clash tonight in the final round in class A of the annual Westmoreland County scholastic basketball tournament. In class B, East Huntingdon will take on Mt. Pleasant.

Monessen gained the final last night by defeating Greensburg, 31 to 25, in one semi-final fray, while in the other, Norwin took over Latrobe, 38 to 25.

In class B, Mt. Pleasant downed Avonmore, 26 to 24, in a nip-and-tuck struggle as East Huntingdon brought about an upset and the defeat of Washington Township, 24 to 22. The lineups:

GIBSON NAMES LINEUP FOR EXHIBITION

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 10.—The camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates was agog here today as the athletes looked forward to tomorrow's opening exhibition clash of the spring training trip. The Buccaneers meet the Portland team of the Pacific Coast League in a specially arranged contest.

Manager George Gibson has just about made up his mind as to the makeup of the nine he'll toss against the Coast Leaguers on the morrow. Harry Lavagetto, young coast infield sensation, who may solve the Pirates' second base problem this year, will start at the keystone sack position. Finney will be behind the plate, with Jensen, Lindstrom and Roettger in the outfield, Vaughan at short, Traynor at third, Gus Suhr at first and Larry French on the slab.

French will do but a short trick of pitching, being used mainly as a gesture of courtesy to his admirers and neighbors of this section. He'll be followed on the mound by Johnson, burly rookie southpaw, who in turn will give way to Cy Blanton, another recruit.

The Bucco pilot put his infielders through a brisk drill yesterday afternoon. The first string infield lined up as it will start tomorrow, and for a second quartet, Gibson used Etten at first, Young at second, Trapp at short and Brubaker at third.

During the hitting practice, Etten walloped one over the right field fence.

THREE PANTHER STARS QUALIFY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 10.—Pitt qualified three men for the finals of the Central Intercollegiate Conference track meet here in the trials last night.

Keller tied with Mullins, of Western State, for the best time in the 440-yard dash, winning his heat in 51.2 seconds. Fleming qualified in the 60-yard dash. Bonavita qualified in second place in the shot put.

Kiger, a favorite in the 440, had to take third when he was trapped. Pfingst, of Western State, ran wide at the last turn and held the lead to the tape.

Michigan State College became the leading contender for the championship by qualifying athletes for nine places in the final events.

Alva Jackson, left end of the Spartan football team, qualified for the finals in three events, the high and low hurdles as well as the 60-yard dash. Notre Dame's well-balanced squad was second in qualifying with eight survivors, followed by Michigan Normal, the defending champion, seven, and Marquette University with six.

SERVICE POLO TEAMS CLASH

STANDING OF THE TEAMS

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
107th Field Artillery	3	1	.750
George Vangs	2	1	.667
308th Cavalry	1	2	.333
South Park	1	3	.250

One of the two remaining obstacles in their title dash confronth the 107th Field Artillery poloists as they square off with the 308th Cavalry malleteers at Hunt Armory tonight.

The Artillerymen must gain the decision over the Troopers tonight, and then follow it up with a triumph over the George Vangs in order to finish in the lead.

With only two defeats chalked up against them, the Cavalry riders have their own views on the subject and still consider themselves titular timber. The starting lineup:

Cavalry.		Artillery.
Shenkan	1	Watson
Linton	2	Collins
Perritt	Back	Brown

The first of a series of games to be played by the members of the recently formed Allegheny County Polo Association will bring together the Fox Chapel team and the Four Horsemen at the Agricultural Hall, Brownsville road, South Park Fair Grounds, tonight. The second is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

U. S. Net Stars Beat French Again

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—(AP.)—Big Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines today had added three more victories to their growing cluster over their French professional tennis rivals, Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa.

Tilden found Plaa a stubborn opponent at the Arena here last night, but triumphed, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 7-9, 7-5. Vines had little trouble with Cochet, winning, 6-3, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

The doubles match was a walkaway for the Americans, who won, 6-1, 6-4.

Horsemen Barred On Florida Tracks

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—Florida racing officials struck twice today in the campaign to stop the use of narcotics or stimulants on horses.

J. Yancey Christmas, owner and trainer, was ruled off the turf by the State Racing Commission for violation of the rule governing the use of stimulants. George W. Coburn, well-known trainer, and all horses under his care were suspended by the stewards of Hialeah Park for the same reason and his case referred to the State Commission.

GIANTS RALLY TO TOP A'S

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—In their characteristic manner, the World Champion New York Giants staged one of their late inning rallies to come from behind and defeat the revamped Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2, in the opening game of the exhibition baseball season yesterday.

Held to two hits by three rookie hurlers from Oklahoma City, of the Texas League, through the first eight innings, the Giants, with most of the regulars sitting on the bench, cut loose with a savage four-hit attack that netted the champions all of their runs. The score by innings:

The Private Papers of a Reporter

When spring sprung the other day—I couldn't resist staying up to enjoy it . . . And so for 24 hours I went without slumber to inhale the balmy breezes—finally hitting the hay at 8 p. m. After a sound sleep I leaped from the sheets at 4:30 a. m.—and encountered some of my loafer companions an hour later . . . Their orbs were yellow—their jowls drooped and they were a sight . . . Such dissipation! . . . I had been refreshed by sleep, of course, and I started to lecture them all . . . But they made noises with their tongues and went to their respective chambers . . . What to do—at such an hour? . . . Where to go? . . . Since the curfew laws have stopped being jokes—the sin salons were closed and the sinners of the Street were elsewhere . . I marked time until 8:30 and then remembered a thrill of nearly two years ago—the lineup at Police Headquarters! . . . And so into a cab and downtown—to shudder a little watching the criminals who were arrested the night before . . . They seem like rats caught in a trap.

It is a neater place now—the room in which the lineup is held . . . Hundreds of detectives with their shields shown are seated in rows which almost fill the spacious place . . . Loud speakers transmit the questions and answers . . . Thru the courtesy of Ass't Chief Inspector Sullivan, one of the better law and order experts in New York—I got in . . . In his new that morning was Captain McVeigh, who directed the proceedings dramatically . . . It made you ill a little watching the prisoners—blinded by the lights on the tiny stage (so that they cannot see the detectives) because the average age was 16 . . . Almost all of them were 16 to 17—a few 19 . . . Stickup novices — purse snatchers (one so young they took him to Children's Court) and hardened criminals—whose records were long . . . And how they lie when confronted by questions such as: "Were you ever arrested before?" . . . They usually say once or twice . . . "This man has been arrested 27 times!" yells the Inspector and then reads his record — from burglary to murder.

First Deputy Police Commissioner Fowler, who served the British so well during the war, 2nd Deputy Commissioner Allen and Mary Sullivan, head of the Woman's Detective Bureau, were pleasant hosts for brief visits . . . Mary (and she isn't the sort of lady who minds young lads like Walter calling her by her first name that afectionately) is a member of the Honor Legion—which is something to be proud about . . . Mary was cited many years ago for her great work in a murder case—and when it was remarked that her picture was again in the paper—she shuddered . . . "Oh no!" she pouted, "I wish they wouldn't! They use such pictures of me!"

The police women in her department were busy at their desks—but they smiled when I passed to leave . . . The big flirts!

The most interesting spot at Headquarters, I thought, was the Telegraph Bureau from where all police calls are sent to patrol cars in the five boroughs . . . It is a perfect spy system—and if the general public would take advantage of it—fewer criminals perhaps, would stand a chance of getting away with anything . . . All one need do, no matter what the crime—even if a person seems suspicious—is to phone Headquarters . . . Capt. Gerald Morris is in charge—end you come away amazed . . . For instance: In one minute—police at 72nd St. and the River received a call and completed an arrest at 69th and West End Ave . . . As a taxpayer, you do not begrudge one penny of the taxes you have to pay when you see your money spent on such marvelous systems as this.

And then with Clendenning Ryan, the mayor's secretary, to City Hall . . . I had never met His Honor—but he is my idea of a man and a mayor . . . While I waited to rob the city of his time for less than a minute—a man with a dog begged an audience . . . "I want to show the mayor," he said, "an intelligent dog!" . . . The mayor had just suffered another disappointment when the State Legislators tossed out his Economy Bill . . . "Very sorry," said one of the attaches, "the mayor still is waiting for the State Assembly to reveal some intelligence!" . . . Later—the mayor told me that the only thing that irked him was the cooties . . . "The cooties?" I said, lifting both eyebrows simultaneously . . . "Yes," he replied, "you try to do this or that to help make it a better city—but you will find youself bothered by mean politicians—always playing politics—they itch me like cooties!"

His contempt is great—for grafters—but those of us who read about him in the daily newspapers found that out . . . And it is thrilling to read about his sudden visits to this and that police station, where he takes the bench and runs matters—as the Chief Magistrate . . . I meant to tell him this and forgot in my haste to let the city have his time . . . I hope his assistants show him the letter from that lady in Brooklyn . . . She accepted some pork from one of the relief bureaus not long ago—when her family were hungry and they were without funds . . . And she saved two dollars last week after laboring hard and long at some work . . . She tried to pay the money to the Relief Bureau—but they sent it back . . . So she sent two dollars in cash to the mayor's office with a note in which she wrote: "The city fed us when we needed food. I saved this money to pay it back—so that in case other hungry people needed pork and food they could get it" . . . There is a noble woman . . . I hope the fates are kinder to her.

Most impressive at City Hall is the courtesy . . . They certainly weren't putting on an act for me—for they had no idea a newspaperman had crashed the inner gates for several minutes, anyway . . . And the staff of clerks and others bent over backwards to be pleasant to all comers—particularly the poor men and women, who bring their troubles to LaGuardia . . . Lester Stone, another secretary, frinstance . . . Over the phone—to a judge or a peasant—his tone was the same . . You have to like an administration like that . . . And, it is among the old-time observations—that you can always tell the man by his colleagues . . . If he is a mean person—so are his attaches . . . The only trouble with Mayor LaGuardia is his threat to quit after his first term! . . . He doesn't believe any official should be re-elected for at least five years. "Then they're too old," he said, "or they are forgotten."

I almost neglected to jot down this note during the lineup session . . . One of the prisoners was Jack Reid, a radio announcer. He was nabbed for bad check passing . . . "What's your business?" he was asked . . . He told them—and hung his head . . . "Were you ever arrested before?" was the next blast . . . "Never," he replied . . . "You were arrested twice before for the same thing!" McVeigh barked . . . Then they led him away . . . Interesting, too, how Reid was caught . . . His victim happened to tune in on his station the other night—and recognized his voice! . . . Chief Sullivan came over to taunt me about him . . . "Didn't it make you feel a little ashamed—to see a radio announcer up there?" . . . I told him I had hung my head the last time I witnessed the lineup . . . When eight counterfeiters of General Motors stock were trapped—and one was a reporter—and another an editor!

Penner Heads Comedy Bill In Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

Joe Penner, the duck salesman, came to town yesterday, and Young America turned out virtually en masse to greet its current hero.

Down at the Penn there was a continuous full house, with long lines stretching half way around the block from the ticket window. Inside, Junior and Sister applauded their radio favorite and crowed in ecstatic delight as he sang and clowned and fiddled and went through some of the sketches that have brought him fame on the air. In most cases Pop and Mom were along, and they enjoyed Joe just as much as the kids.

Mr. Penner proved an ingratiating and original comedian, his head entirely unturned by the immense success that has come to him so suddenly. He worked hard, and was anxious to please—and the roars of laughter and thunder of handclapping proved that he did please.

If your acquaintance with Mr. Penner is limited to the radio, you will find him rather surprisingly active, and even funnier on the stage than on the air. He is a grand fellow and a grand comedian, and we defy anyone, old or young, not to like him.

The surrounding show is Jack Sidney's "Samples," with Wilbur Hall, the trick fiddler; the three Stewart sisters, Hal Menken, with some new taps; Birdie Dean, an acrobatic dancer, and Annette Ames, a child dancer, who is also something of a comedienne. Young America liked them all, perhaps little Annette the best.

To complete a remarkably jolly program, there is a brand new picture called "Six of a Kind." This should add to radio fans' pleasure in the bill, since two of the six stars are George Burns and Gracie Allen.

More interesting to us are three of the other players—W. C. Fields, Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles. The sixth of the stellar group is Alison Skipworth, reliable as ever, but in a distinctly subordinate part.

"Six of a Kind" finds Mr. Ruggles and Miss Boland spending their second honeymoon, after 20 years of marriage, in driving to California. Mr. Burns and Miss Allen, with a magnificent Great Dane, invite themselves along to save expenses—their own expenses.

Mr. Fields is Honest Joe, a sheriff of the gold fields. With his wife, Miss Skipworth, he runs a hotel; and there the tourists stop after a series of the most insane adventures you can imagine.

Stolen bank funds form the crux of the plot. Mr. Ruggles is suspected; but the real thief is caught in the end, and Mr. Fields, the old fraud, takes all the credit.

If you like W. C. Fields, you will not soon forget his best scenes in this picture; drinking almost a pint of whisky at a gulp and then gagging over the water chaser; driving a pool cue right through the table; strutting and roaring in his capacity as sheriff.

Miss Boland and Mr. Ruggles are as good as they were in "Mama Loves Papa," and Mr. Burns and Miss Allen, with the help of that huge dog, are all you would expect.

All in all, it's a splendid bill; and parents are hereby advised to let the children run right down and see Joe Penner, for the show is as clean as it is funny.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By CINEMA

HOLLYWOOD, March 10.—Hello! By gulping a big spoonful of hot olive oil before each meal, Norman Foster lived up that ancient theatrical tradition, "The show MUST go on!"—and also managed to save the RKO studio considerable expense of replacing him in Jimmy Durante's film, "Strictly Dynamite." Norman's appendicitis attack occurred the second day of the filming, but he kept it a secret, although his doctor advised against continuing in the picture. Norman liked the role and claimed he would risk it.

A careful diet was prepared and followed, while medical attention was necessary every evening after his work. Norman completed the film, told wifey, Claudette Colbert, of his condition and she ordered him off to the hospital.

Naturally, she bawled him out for being so careless, but Norman only laughed—on the way to the hospital—that he had "kept his BIG secret from Hollywood snoopers."

* * *

Perhaps he LISPS, but Richard Thrope says: "Speaking of the way business is improving, now is a good time to get your FAITH lifted!" . . . Bob Presnell, the Warner associate producer, got the FUNNIEST look from a studio worker when he told the fellow to "Go bury himself in his work." The chap is a concrete mixer! . . .

That MASSIVE smile on Henry Wadsworth's face is due to the fat part he was assigned with Marion Davies in "Operator 13." Henry's new on the M-G-M list and this role, his biggest to date, moves him up another notch on that elusive ladder to cinema fame.

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . FIREWORKS at Paramount when Mae West failed to show up for a rehearsal! Another thing about "It Ain't No Sin," George Raft MAY bow out as the leading man. . . . Bob Montgomery got a nice and shiny new ticket from M-G-M . . . Ha-ha! THIS is a laugh! Margaret Sullivan, Universal's can't-stay-put star, refuses to do press agent gags for the publicity dept! . . . Al Boasberg explains that "eastern beef" is the telegram you get from the New York office after shipping in your film production. . . . John Farrow's engagement ring to Maureen O'Sullivan is BACK on her finger after being CONSPICUOUS by its absence!

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

A Baby Is Born

OVER AT the Union Hospital the other morning a baby was born. May we present you with a few reactions? . . .

* * *

THE MOTHER: There was nothing to it, Gloria. Absolutely nothing. I'll admit I was pretty scared when they first brought me to the hospital. I mean, hearing all those different stories, and everything. But now I know there's nothing to it. Would I like to have another right away? No. But there's really nothing to it.

No, we haven't quite decided on the name yet. John and I had a wonderful name for a girl, but now that it's a boy, were puzzled. John wants to call the child Frank after his father, but I'd like to call him Joe after mine. I don't really care—but Joe is so much nicer, isn't it?

Yes, I'm very comfortable here. But I do wish they'd keep John's mother away from me. She gets me nervous, sitting here for hours and telling me how nervous John is. My goodness, you'd think it was John who had the baby . . .

* * *

THE FATHER: I tell you, fellers, it's just like a miracle. When I held that kid in my arms last night, the funniest feeling came over me. I just can't put it into words. It was like a miracle, almost.

Poor Doris went through hell, all right. But she's a brave little soul. Of course, my mother helped a lot by being with her all the time. But—well, the whole thing is just like a miracle, that's all.

* * *

A NEIGHBOR: That Smith woman had her baby all right. Sure. What? Well, let's see now. They were married in June. That's July, August, September—

* * *

AN EMPLOYER: But we've got to cut down, I tell you. I'm not running a charity organization here. We've got to cut at least five men off the payroll this week. I'm not going to starve myself in order to support others.

Give two weeks' notice to Carter and Williams and Jones and—. What's that? Jones just became a father? Well, what about it?

Oh, all right. Let his stay for awhile. But if things don't pick up, out he goes—baby or no baby . . .

* * *

THE MOTHER'S FATHER: My daughter had a baby this week . . .

* * *

* * *

A RELATIVE: I dropped into the hospital on the way home and saw Doris and the baby. She had a pretty small room all right. You'd think John would be able to do better than that for her. He blows enough about the money he spends on other things.

Yeah, I saw the baby. To me, it just didn't look like anything at all. And what could you expect—with John the father? . . .

* * *

ANOTHER RELATIVE: I suppose that means another present. Damn it, why must people have babies when there's a depression on? . . .

* * *

FATHER'S OLD FLAME: Did'ja hear the news, Alice? Johnny Smith's wife had a baby. You remember Johnny, don't you? The feller I used to run around with? Sure, that's the one.

I almost married Johnny. Yep. If Gil hadn't come along when he did, I guess maybe I'd be Mrs. Smith right now. But Johnny and I had a little argument about Gil—and before I knew it, I was married to Gil.

Maybe I'm better off, and maybe I ain't. I dunno. I'm married to Gil—and what have I got? A little flat, and a baby. And if I was maried to Johnny, what would I have? I little flat, and a baby.

* * *

MOTHER'S OLD FLAME: The news really thrilled me, Mildred. To think that the little Doris that I used to know was actually a mother! Why, I just couldn't believe—

What's that? Yes, of course I did. I sent a few flowers and enclosed my card. Why shouldn't I? After all, I went around with her for three years before I met you and—

Who's 'throwing anything in your face? Just because I said I once liked Doris? What's that? Why, she's nothing of the kind. She's a darn sweet kid, if you must know, and I'm not going to have you say anything about her. Oh, yeah? Well, if you're going to get nasty about it, let me tell you that—when I get a square look at your homely face—I'm sorry I didn't marry her.

All right. If that's the way you feel, go ahead and leave me. See if I care. But do me one favor. Take your mother with you . . .

A DOCTOR: Well, to tell you the truth, Mr. Smith, I'm a trifle pressed for cash right now. You can settle your entire bill with me for—let's us say—$200 in cash.

* * *

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Did you ever see John Barrymore crying? Well, I did. And you will, too, in "Long Lost Father," part of the double bill in the Davis and Regent this week. Helen Chandler is the long lost daughter of the youngest of the royal trio, who plays the rakish father role with a perfection worthy of a better picture. The scene is in London. Father and daughter meet after long years of separation and reluctantly discover they have much in common. There is a crazy treasure hunt. When a youthful escapade threatens to bring the world down around daughter's ears, father love emerges triumphant and capable. A happy ending presumes the chip off the old block will profit by the mistakes of her erring, but likeable parent.

Six comediens get together to successfully confuse the issue of who is the "Meanest Gal in Town" in the other half of the feature. It is a question of whether Zasu Pitts, as Tillie, proprietor of the Bon Ton store in a typical small town, or Pert Kelton, as Lulu, a stranded actress, turned manicurist, is the "meanest gal." It might be Tillie who won't even give El Brendel, as Chris Peterson, her barber suitor, a single kiss after 10 years of faithful courtship. According to Jimmy Gleason, the town dude, it would be Lulu, who lets him buy her griddle cakes and then runs off with a silver tongued traveling salesman, Skeets Gallagher. Bedroom scene blackouts are no innovation, but a bedroom scene "light-up," with Pert in bed with her mother and Jimmy on the outside looking in, gives a hint of the pace of this fast-moving comedy.

Cagney Finds Heirs In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

James Cagney is still the dynamic boy of filmdom, and proves it plentifully in "Jimmy the Gent," swiftly paced, exciting and amusing comedy-drama in the Warner, showing what may be the inside of the "missing heir" racket. At least, it shows the inside as worked by Jimmy, himself, and by Alan Dinehart, business rivals. As they operate it, it is an ambulance-chasing proposition. Their methods are the same, but Dinehart's are silk-lined to appear ethical, while our James is so unethical that he even is able to get, through Dinehart's own office, information that Alan is supposed to obtain exclusively from a hospital interne on his payroll.

The heart interest is supplied by Bette Davis, secretary of Dinehart, who likes Jimmy, but has left his employ because he is uncouth. They go in for style in Dinehart's office, serving tea 'n' everything. So Jimmy puts on some lug, too, hence the title.

The story back of it all has to do with the finding of an heir to a woman, supposedly a pauper, who, at her death, is found to have $200,000 in bonds and other valuables sewn into her clothing. Dinehart finds one heir, and Jimmy digs up another whose claim would be first, and it is the consequent battle of wits that makes up the story, the outcome of which shows that Jimmy, though a crook by practice, if not in the eyes of the law, is at least a likeable one.

'Upper Room' Favorite In Lent

By GEORGE SEIBEL

During the Lenten season, church drama groups are presenting several variants of the Passion Play for the edification of their audiences. Two productions of "The Upper Room," by Robert Hugh Benson, are being put on. One of these is by the Sacred Heart Players under direction of Bertha Fuhrer, who has been their coach for seven years. This group will play the Benson drama on three successive Sunday evenings, beginning tomorrow.

Mr. Seibel

Meanwhile the dramatic group of St. Lawrence Church are staging the same sacred drama next Thursday and Friday. Norman Porter is directing the play; Edward Joyce will act Judas, Jack Larkin is Peter, and Mary Magdalen will be alternated by Viola Brosky and Mary Flaherty.

Another group, the Newman Players, will put on "The Other Kingdom," a new drama by Madeleine Skelly Foust in the Cathedral Auditorium on Monday evening, and it will be continued for an entire week. This is Mrs. Foust's ninth full-length play, and the eighth to be put on. The Newman Players have been in existence since 1917. Woodman Thompson being their first stage manager. In their recent "Richelieu" production, they used a set he designed about 1919, still intact.

The playhouse of the Y. M. & Y. W. H. A. in Bellefield avenue has its modern-dress version of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" nearly ready and the presentations will be on March 18 and 20. David Cornman is directing.

The production of "Berkeley Square," by the South Hills Civic Players, postponed to open Wednesday, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" by the Epworthian Players, and the elaborate production of Henry IV (both parts) during Shakespeare week in the Tech Little Theater, are others things impending—as well as the annual one-act-play contest of the Drama League during the last week of April.

Stanley's 'Wonder Bar' Begins New Week

"Wonder Bar," elaborately produced photoplay of Al Jolson's former stage novelty of the same title, began a second week in the Stanley yesterday. Jolson is the star, which, of course, is much more elaborate and picturesque than the stage version was—or could be. There are two Busby Berkeley spectacle sequences in that master's best style. The cast includes Dick Powell, Ricardo Cortez, Dolores Del Rio, Kay Francis, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert and Louise Fazenda.

Two Rooneys In Pitt

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Veteran Pat Rooney proves that youth and beauty aren't the only attributes that will get (and what's more keep) the house responding, for in his show in the Pitt this week, in which he ably utilizes both youth and beauty, as support, he gives you his own perfect dance numbers, to the very great delight of the audience.

For one, he does his ever-amusing origination, "Daughter of Rosie O'Grady," gliding from it to his Rooney number of many years' popular standing. Working right with him is Pat Rooney III, who follows his dad in knowing how to tap out a fast and clever step. In some of their dances, the two Pats double in most entertainingly.

Janet Reade, the very tall, very gay blonde, is the revue's prime feminine attraction. Her voice is husky, her eyes "come-hither." She sings some torch songs and the show-goers clap for more.

Nearly breaking up the scenery, biting the actors, and generally playing rough house, Roy Cummings, red-headed and awkward, is the show's slapstick comedian, good for enough laughs.

Marita and Diaz, backed by an effective chorus, make use of graceful fans (no, it's not the World Fair fan dance) in one number, then again pleasantly waltz in a slower, dreamier dance.

What the big city does to the little girl from "back home" is the theme of the film feature, "Sleepers East," with Wynne Gibson and Preston Foster the chief sufferers. Filling up the bill are three shorts, a news reel, March of Events, and Mickey Mouse in "Blue Rhythm."

Six Months, No Rest, Raft's Record

George Raft has just established a new record. He has worked 21 consecutive weeks sans the usual day of rest, and now, with but a brief two-day vacation, he will step into a new picture.

BIG GOLD STOCK USED TO MAKE MORE DEBT

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Gold continued to come to this country last week, but at a much reduced rate. Foreign exchange rates are more stable. Evidently the flow of funds into this country has about ceased, and less talk of France abandoning the gold standard is heard.

For the present, the important question is: What is the United States Treasury doing with all its gold? The answer is clear. It is now using its hoard to establish a sound basis for our money. It is not using its hoard to establish a debts. It is using it as a basis for spending, and increasing debts.

Last week the Treasury put up $257,000,000 in "gold certificates" with the Federal Reserve Banks. This is about double the amount of gold imports, and the monetary gold stock increased only $155,000,000. So over $100,000,000 of the "gold certificates" represented a draft on other gold held by the Treasury.

Treasury cash was reduced about that amount.

BUY U. S. SECURITIES

At the same time, government and other deposits in the member banks were increased, and the reserve balances of the member banks were swollen over $200,000,000 to the record figure of more than 1.3 billion dollars. This is chiefly the result of government spending.

What are the member banks doing with these huge "excess reserves?" Naturally they have reduced their borrowings from the reserve banks, which are now the lowest since 1917. But for the most part they are just buying government securities.

To put it bluntly, they are lending to the government, which enables it to keep up its spending.

Member bank loans are only about the same as a year ago. Their loans on securities are less, and their other loans a little greater. But their "investments" in government debt are about 1.7 billion dollars greater than a year ago.

We start with the government's credit. It borrows from the Reserve banks. Then it spends for "relief," for stimulation schemes, for bank stocks, and for "buying gold."

This spending builds up government and other deposits in the member banks. These result in "excess reserve" deposits with the Federal Reserve banks. These excess reserves are then used to finance the government for more spending.

FUNDS GROW IN N. Y.

The demand deposits of the New York banks increased last week, largely on account of the balances of outside banks held here. The "due to banks" item in the New York bank statement is 1.4 billion dollars, against only $690,000,000 last year. And the gold imports also cause funds to pile up here.

Of course, money rates fall, and the rate on bankers' acceptance has been reduced 1/4 of 1 per cent (90-day asked rate).

These conditions are not "natural." They are the result of an excessive resort to the capital market by the government, which is virtually monopolizing that market for its short-term borrowing.

The government is the big borrower and spender. It is also the big banker, and is making low money rates artificially by a new sort of "open market operation" centering on those "gold certificates."

Business is expanding. Let us hope that this may not prove to be entirely due to government debt, so that expansion may not be checked by credit stringency if, as, and when government spending ends.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN 30,766

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—Loadings of revenue freight during the week ended March 3 brought the total thus far in 1934 above the same period in 1932 for the first time during the year.

Reports of the American Railway Association showed that 5,090,568 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the nine weeks of 1934 as compared with 5,069,471 in 1932 and 4,375,582 in 1933.

Loadings for the week ended March 3 were 604,137 cars, an increase of 30,766 over the preceeding week, when loadings were reduced due to Washington's Birthday, and 122,929 above last year and 44,658 above 1932.

Every week this year has shown an increase over the corresponding week of 1933 and in most instances over 1932.

'Soup' Restricts Payment Of Foreign Currency

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—The Southern Pacific Company has notified the New York Stock Exchange that April 1 interest on its San Francisco Terminal first mortgage 4 per cent bonds would be paid in foreign currencies only to bona fide foreign residents.

In a resolution transmitted to the exchange's committee on stock list the railroad management made it known that American holders of the bonds would receive interest "in lawful money of the United States."

Holders of bonds who are actual residents of foreign countries the resolution added, will be paid their interest in foreign currencies.

Southern Pacific paid the October, 1933, coupon on the Terminal 4s in foreign currencies to all who demanded such payments regardless of residence. It was reported at the time in Wall street that the company's observance of the indenture to pay in foreign currencies involved an extra expense of more than $150,000 in buying the necessary foreign exchanges.

In declining further to honor demands of American holders who want their interest in foreign currencies Southern Pacific has followed the lead of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the St Louis and Southwestern Railway Company, which recently informed the Stock Exchange that holders of their bonds not bona fide residents of foreign countries would receive interest in "the lawful money of the United States."

QUIET SELLING GIVES STOCKS EASIER TONE

NEW YORK, March 10.—Quiet selling in alcohols and some aircraft shares contributed to an easier tone in the early stock dealings today.

American Commercial Alcohol suffered an initial loss of 2½ points while issues showing declines of around a point included United States Smelting, United Aircraft, National Distillers and American Can. American Telephone yielded a fraction but Santa Fe, Canadian Pacific and General Motors were fairly steady.

Industrial analysts received further encouragement from the monthly survey of the Commerce Department, which reported business activity in January and the first half of February continued to improve. Especially significant, it was said, was the increase in private employment and the rise in commodity prices to the highest level in three years.

At the same time it was pointed out by trade commentators that the comparison of current business with that of the same time last year may be somewhat misleading because, in the previous March, due to the banking holiday and other factors, industry generally was at an extremely low ebb.

Within a month or so current indices will be comparing with a time when business was on the rise. Trade students say that comparisons then are not likely to be so stimulating psychologically and that more attention will have to be paid to trends compared with averages for other years than to the percentage of improvement over the comparable 1933 period.

Recurring rumors that the administration was considering another increase in the price of gold, which would mean a further devaluation of the dollar, apparently have not been taken too seriously in foreign exchange markets. Leading European currencies recently have held to an extremely narrow range. If there are prospects of an early change in the gold price, dealers said, world currencies do not act as though they were considering them.

Sterling was only off ¼ of a cent at $5.07¾ at the opening of trading and French francs were unchanged at 6.58 cents.

GRAIN PRICES TAKE DIP

CHICAGO, March 10.—Krain prices underwent early downturns today. Relatively frigid temperatures in wheat territory southwest were disregarded, and traders continued to show extreme cautiousness owing to uncertainties about Washington legislative developments. Opening at ¼ lower to ⅜ higher, May 86⅝ to 86¾, wheat afterward sagged all around. Corn started ⅛ to ⅜ down, and subsequently declined further.

STOCK LOSSES TAX RULES CHANGED

MARKET BILLS DISTURBING CONFIDENCE

This is the final article of a series explaining the proper procedure in making out income tax returns.

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 10.—There has been a growing recognition that the first draft of the Fletcher-Rayburn Bill did not deal in a practical manner with the abuses of marginal speculation.

Mr. Rukeyser

To permit marginal speculation, but on the basis of inflexible margin provisions, would add new troubles to the old. On the other hand, Judge William L. Clark of the United States District Court of New Jersey has proposed that transactions on the stock exchange be conducted on a cash basis.

HALTS "MERRY-GO-ROUND"

Then the credit function could be restored to the banks, where it belongs. The banker, with his habit of credit analysis, could look beyond the collateral to the character and reserve resources of the borrower. It would be a mistake to impose inflexible lending ratios on bankers as well as on brokers, as the Fletcher-Rayburn Bill in its first draft proposed.

In London, the security buyer finances himself through banks, instead of through brokers.

Under such a setup, each bank could be relied upon to take care of its own position, instead of continuing the merry-go-round of brokers' loans, which, when called at one bank, are shifted to another.

If the proposed tariff bill is passed in its present form, the President of the United States, in his discretion, would have life and death power over numerous domestic industries.

CONFIDENCE DISTURBED

The power to raise or lower tariff rates to the extent of 50 per cent would give the Executive the right to eliminate industries which are dependent on tariff protection.

The raising of uncertainties in the tariff proposal, in the plan to regulate the security exchanges, in suggested code amendments, in the continued capital blockade under the federal securities act, and the apparent unwillingness of Congress to reorganize the federal tax system and lighten the burden on enterprise and efficiency have all contributed to the prevailing temporary disturbance to financial confidence. Apparently the hard-boiled market realist takes the view that if virtue is jammed down the throats of the people too quickly the process is deflationary.

OBITUARY

Harry Zimmer.

Funeral services for Harry Zimmer, 29, who died Wednesday in St. Francis Hospital, will be held tomorrow afternoon at his home, 85 Poplar street, North Side, and later at the Mt. Olivet Lutheran Church, of which he was a member of the board of governors.

He leaves his wife, Nelda Wright Zimmer; a daughter, Lorraine; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Zimmer; three brothers, Fred George and Albert Zimmer, and two sisters, Mrs. Freida Miltenberger and Mrs. Elizabeth Wineskey.

Mrs. Anna Gilluly Madden.

Mrs. Anna Gilluly Madden, 70, widow of Elihu A. Madden, died early yesterday in her home, 200 South Fairmount avenue. She leaves five sons, Patrick, Thomas, Charles, Leo and Jerome Madden, and three daughters, Gertrude and Elizabeth, of Pittsburgh, and Mary, of Elizabeth.

Funeral will be held in St Brendan's Catholic Church, Elkins, W. Va., Monday.

Antonina E. Guardino.

Requiem high mass will be celebrated for Antonina Eancionulla Guardino, widow of Anthony Guardino, in St. Mary Magdalene's Catholic Church, Homestead, at 8:30 a. m. Monday. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Guardino leaves a daughter, Mrs. Michael Plescia, of Homestead.

Sarah M. Holman Stoltz.

Funeral services for Sarah M. Holman Stoltz will be held in her family's home, 4771 Cypress street, at 3 p. m. Monday. Mrs. Stoltz was a member of the P. H. C. and of the Eliza Garfield Daughters of St. George.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on March 5 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 422.

AUTHORIZING and directing the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing and otherwise improving of Saw Mill Run boulevard, from Nobles lane to Maytide street, the construction of slag surfacing on the berms thereof, the construction of a pedestrian underpass at the Overbrook High School, the reconstruction of steps at Midwood avenue, the reconstruction of sanitary sewers, the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing and otherwise improving of streets affected thereby, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby, the reconstruction of sidewalk pavements, the construction of new sidewalk pavements adjacent to property of the Board of Public Education, and the construction of storm sewers for the drainage thereof along and across the said boulevard, and on, over, across and through the property of the Board of Public Education and private property of Violet Barton; authorizing the Department of Highways of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to advertise for, and receive, bids for the portion of the work for which the cost thereof is not borne by the said Department of Highways to award a contract or contracts therefor, and to supervise the performance of work provided for by said contract or contracts; providing that the proper officers of the city shall enter into a contract or contracts with the successful bidder or bidders, for the performance of said portion of the work, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, and providing further for the payment of the city's share of the portion thereof extending from a point 421.3 feet north of Dartmore avenue to Maytide street.

WHEREAS, The terms of an ordinance enacted by the City of Pittsburgh provide for an agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, County of Allegheny and the City of Pittsburgh, for the widening, relocation and reimprovement of Saw Mill Run boulevard, between Nobles lane and Maytide street, in the City of Pittsburgh, and stipulate the manner in which said improvement shall be carried out, and the costs to be borne by each of the several parties thereto, and further obligates the said City of Pittsburgh to enact legislation as may be necessary for the prosecution of said improvement, including the construction of physical work involved; Now, Therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Saw Mill Run boulevard, from Nobles lane to Maytide street, be graded, regraded, paved, repaved, curbed, recurbed, and otherwise improved; including the construction of slag surfacing on the berms thereof; the construction of a pedestrian underpass at the Overbrook High School; the reconstruction of steps at Midwood avenue; the reconstruction of sanitary sewers; the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing, and otherwise improving of streets affected thereby; the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby; the reconstruction of sidewalk pavement; construction of new sidewalk pavements adjacent to the property of the Board of Public Education; the construction of storm sewers for the drainage thereof along and across said boulevard, and a 15-inch pipe outlet therefor extending on, over, across and through property of the Board of Public Education, and also a 24-inch pipe outlet therefor extending on, over, across and through private property of Violet Barton; said outlets to be constructed from the westerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard to Saw Mill Run, in conformity with Plans Accession No. JDR-293, Sheets 2 and 3, on file in the Bureau of Engineering.

SECTION 2. The Department of Highways of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is hereby authorized to advertise for, and to receive, bids for the portion of said improvement for which the cost thereof is not borne by the said Highway Department, and to award a contract or contracts therefor with the successful bidder or bidders, and to supervise the performance of the work provided for in said contract or contracts.

SECTION 3. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to enter into a contract or contracts with the successful bidder or bidders, to whom the contract or contracts may be awarded by the Secretary of Highways of said Commonwealth, for the portion of the aforesaid improvement for which the physical cost is not borne by the said Department of Highways, in accordance with the provision of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same. The contract price, or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, shall not exceed the sum of eighty-six thousand ($86,000.00) dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost of the portion of said improvement for which the cost of physical work therefor is not to be borne by the said Department of Highways.

SECTION 4. That the costs, damages and expense of the portion of said improvement for which the physical cost is not borne by the said Department of Highways, shall be assessed against and collected from the properties specially benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the city's share of the cost of the portion extending from a point 421.3 feet north of Dartmore avenue to Maytide street shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds 1928.

SECTION 5. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on March 5, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 423.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Saw Mill Run Boulevard, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 421.30 feet north of Dartmore avenue to Overbrook Boulevard, to be opened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this Ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on March 5, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 425.

AN ORDINANCE widening Saw Mill Run Boulevard, in the Thirty-Second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 115.83 feet south of Ansonia street to a point 321.61 feet north of Dartmore avenue, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Saw Mill Run boulevard, in the Thirty-Second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 115.83 feet south of Ansonia street to a point 321.61 feet north of Dartmore avenue, be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width, so that the street as widened shall lie between the lines as hereinafter described:

Beginning on the center line of Saw Mill Run boulevard 70.0 feet in width, at a point perpendicularly opposite the intersection of the westerly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard (formerly Library Road Extension), as fixed by Overbrook Borough Ordinance No. 83, approved December 10, 1926, and the easterly line of Ansonia street (formerly Shannon avenue) as laid out in Arthur Lyman's Plan of "Oakleigh," of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Vook Volume 24, pages 148 and 149, said point of beginning to be known as Station 204+06.44; thence extending along the center line of Saw Mill Run boulevard south 30 degrees 36 minutes 30 seconds east to a point of curve at Station 205+50.36; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 274.37 feet and a central angle of 37 degrees 16 minutes to a point of tangent at Station 207+27.82; thence by the tangent south 6 degrees 39 minutes 30 seconds west to a point of curve at Station 211+34.05; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 1432.69 feet and a central angle of 23 degrees 30 minutes to a point tangent at Station 217+21.55; thence by the tangent south 16 degrees 50 minutes 30 seconds east to a point of curve at Station 218+73.55; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 1146.28 feet and a central angle of 29 degrees 57 minutes 30 seconds to a point of tangent at Station 224+72.72; thence by the tangenth south 13 degrees 07 minutes west to a point of curve at Station 226+11.53; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 955.37 feet and a central angle of 12 degrees 40 minutes to a point at Station 228+25.24.

The westerly line shall begin on the westerly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard at a point distant south 30 degrees 36 minutes 30 seconds east 115.83 feet along the said westerly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard from the easterly line of Ansonia street, said point of beginning being also at the dividing line between lots No. 8 and No. 9 in the above mentioned plan of "Oakleigh"; thence extending along the dividing line between said lots No. 8 and No. 9 north 83 degrees 03 minutes west 36.0 feet to a point; thence south 13 degrees 29 minutes 50 seconds east 113.81 feet to the dividing line between lots No. 70 and No. 71 in the said plan of "Oakleigh" at the rear or westerly line of said lots; thence along the dividing line between the said lots No. 70 and No. 71 south 89 degrees 28 minutes 30 seconds east 46.34 feet to a point, said point being radially opposite and 40.0 feet west of the above described survey line at Station 206+72.63 on the same; thence southwardly, parallel to and at a radial and perpendicular distance of 40.0 feet west of the above described survey line to a point of curve perpendicularly opposite Station 208+29.20 on the same; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 25.0 feet and a central angle of 92 degrees 02 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 40.16 feet to a point of tangent on the northerly line of Line street; thence perpendicular to the line of Line street, south 8 degrees 42 minutes west 40.0 feet to the southerly line of Line street; thence along the southerly line of Line street north 81 degrees 18 minutes 00 seconds west 43.16 feet to the dividing line between lots No. 63 and No. 20 in the said plan of "Oakleigh"; thence along the dividing line between lots No. 63 to No. 45 inclusive and lots No. 20 to No. 38 inclusive in the said plan of "Oakleigh" to the dividing line between lots No. 45 and No. 44 in the said Plan; thence along the dividing line between said lots No. 45 and No. 44 north 86 degrees 33 minutes 00 seconds east 32.0 feet to a point; thence south 5 degrees 37 minutes east 61.0 feet to the northerly line of Midwood avenue; thence along the northerly line of Midwood avenue south 51 degrees 29 minutes west 38.09 feet to a point; thence south 5 degrees 37 minutes 00 seconds east 47.64 feet to the southerly line of Midwood avenue; thence along the southerly line of Midwood avenue south 51 degrees 29 minutes west 7.0 feet to a point; thence southeastwardly by a straight line 77.0 feet, more or less, to a point radially opposite and 40.0 feet west of the above described survey line at Station 215+31.0 on the same; thence parallel to and at a radial or perpendicular distance of 40.0 feet west of the above described survey line to an intersection with the present westerly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard, as fixed by Overbrook Borough Ordinance No. 306, approved December 30, 1929, at a point radially opposite Station 17+20.46 on the center line as described in the said Overbrook Borough Ordinance and radially opposite Station 223+44.01 on the above described survey line; thence coinciding with the present westerly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard, as fixed by said Overbrook Borough Ordinance to a point radially opposite a point on the present easterly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard, distant 321.61 feet northwardly along the said easterly line of Saw Mill Run Boulevard from the westerly line of Dartmore street.

The easterly line shall begin on the dividing line between the former Carrick and Overbrook Boroughs at the intersection of the extension northwardly of a line parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 40 feet east of the tangent on the above described survey line from Station 207+27.82 to Station 211+34.05 on the same, said beginning also being at a point north 44 degrees 49 minutes west 23.37 feet along the said dividing line between the former Carrick and Overbrook boroughs from the easterly line of Library avenue, as laid out in the above mentioned plan of "Oakleigh;" thence shall extend south 6 degrees 39 minutes 30 seconds west to an intersection with the present easterly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard at a point perpendicularly opposite and 40 feet east of the above described survey line at Station 210+67.12 on the same and perpendicularly opposite Station 4+36.38 on the center line as described in the above mentioned Overbrook Borough Ordinance No. 306; thence along the present easterly line, as fixed by the said Overbrook Borough Ordinance No. 306 to a point distant north 2 degrees 17 minutes west 64.80 feet along the present easterly line from the northerly line of Oakleigh way, said point being radially opposite Station 220+14.04 on the above described survey line; thence southwardly, parallel to and at radial distance of 40 feet east of the above described survey line to a point radially opposite Station 223+89.80 on the above described survey line, said point being on the dividing line between lots No. 13 and No. 14 in the "Inglewood Gardens Plan of Lots," of record in the Recorder's office of Allegheny County, in Plan Book Volume 30, pages 118-120; thence south 1 degree 1 minute 50 seconds east 75.85 feet to a point; thence, parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 55.50 feet east of the above described survey line, south 13 degrees 07 minutes west 110.91 feet to the dividing line between lots No. 19 and No. 20 in the said "Inglewood Gardens Plan of Lots;" thence south 27 degrees 47 minutes 30 seconds west 60.40 feet to a point; said point being radially opposite Station 226+29.90 on the above described survey line; thence southwardly parallel to and at a radial distance of 40.0 feet east of the above described survey line to an intersection with the present easterly line as fixed by the said Overbrook Borough Ordinance No. 306, said point being radially opposite Station 228+25.24 on the above described survey line and radially opposite Station 22+13.43 on the center line as described in said Overbrook Borough Ordinance No. 306 and being 321.61 feet northwardly along the present easterly line from the westerly line of Dartmore avenue.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Saw Mill Run Boulevard, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from a point 115.83 feet south of Ansonia street to a point 321.61 feet north of Dartmore avenue to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this Ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on March 5, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 427

AN ORDINANCE widening Jacob street, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, at the intersection of Whited street and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Jacob street, in the Thirty-second Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, at the intersection of Whited street, be and the same is hereby widened by taking for public use for highway purposes the property hereinafter designated and described as Portions "A" and "B" respectively, to-wit:

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XIV.

The meeting with Barry Dunne brought Chickie with a shock against an issue that had long lain like a sleeping beast in her mind. She would have to tell Pippin of the past.

Whenever she considered this and saw the girl's eager face blanch she sank down within herself appalled.

"You had a baby, mother, and you weren't married? Everyone found out about it? Oh, God—they didn't say you made it die!"

Chickie was frightened when she thought of the girl's recoil and the creeping horror in her eyes.

Yet she dared not risk letting her find out for herself. This meeting with Barry Dunne after all these years proved the strange mystery of chance. One day or another Pippin must surely learn.

A short time after their return from the lakes, David and Chickie went to a dinner party. Two of the guests were absent. Their daughter, a lovely girl of 19, had come to sudden and tragic death in an obscure hospital. Everyone knew how and why.

"I came to fold back the curtains."

"Oh—did you?"

She went to her dressing room and took the pins from her hair. It fell about her shoulders in pale, shimmering gold. She sat a long time, shoving memories from her mind.

She didn't hear the door open. He came in and stood beside her.

With brimming eyes she said:

"Oh, David—how terrible life can be!"

"Yes."

"Parents are so helpless—so unknowing."

"They shouldn't be. They needn't be."

"Oh, the desolation! A year ago I watched that girl at the tennis courts. She darted about, swift and beautiful. How can they bear it? How can they go on?"

"They have to."

She regarded him with a dark quiet.

"I would NOT bear it. I would NEVER be able to bear it. Neither would you."

He looked into her moist, beautiful eyes. Scarce moving his lips, he answered:

"Yes, I would bear it. I would see her through."

He could not bear to see her head bowed. He went and hid her in his arms.

He said, shaken, "Helena, I didn't think you were beaten by memories. I thought all that was wiped from your heart."

"It is. I can almost recall that time and be philosophical about it. I grew in that sorrow and became big enough for you."

Fears for Pippin

She laughed softly: "I have not worried for you, David. Your love has been like a tide—a great full tide. You are stronger than the world and have lifted me above the fear of it. I can be glad, knowing in my heart the past has never come between us.

"I remember how frantically I prayed to escape. I would have taken any compromise, however humiliating, if I could have avoided disgrace. If those prayers were granted how terrible my life would have been!"

She glanced up to his face, so tall and winning above her. She thought on a pang: "In a hundred years I'll not be big enough for you."

She said: "I'm not beaten except when I think of Pippin and what life may do to her."

"She has to take her chance, Helena. We can't prevent a boat she rides from sinking. But we can teach her to swim. And that's about all we can do—equip her to meet bravely and wisely the life that comes to her. That's all we have a right to do."

Chickie lay awake long after David slept. She stole into Pippin's room, mad for a glimpse of the sweet, happy face. Make sure no change had come—no change should ever come.

She went about with an incessant gnawing: Should she tell her? Better not. But if a stranger did? A stranger may!

Once Pippin happened to say:

"Of course, mother, things aren't like they were when you were a girl. We're frank about life; you hid from it. You were ashamed of emotion. We're proud of it."

"At your age, Pippin, I was blazingly aware of my emotion and I was NOT ashamed of it. Manners change, hearts do not."

"Oh, I know you're warm and deep, mother. But you're the spiritual type. You had emotion and loved David terribly but that's different from—well—passion—if you get what I mean."

Said Chickie, her heart bursting:

"I know unrest, Pippin, and I know passion. I've lived more deeply than Janina, whom you admit is wise. I've felt more tumult than you can dream of. I want to tell you of it. I've made mistakes in my life, terrible and tragic. I want to warn you."

"Oh, darling, no wonder I long to be an actress. You do put on such a swell show. Here, will you please sew on this button? I promised Jon to meet him at 1 o'clock. That gives me exactly 10 minutes. Step on it!"

Chickie sewed. She felt shoved aside and superfluous. There would never come a time when it would be easy to tell that thing!

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, and Kathie McPike laughingly appeal to Kathie's foster-brother, Kevin Malone, to take them to their first dance. Kevin promises. Then, teased by the two girls because he is eight years older than they, he seizes Pippin and kisses her. Pippin goes home to her mother to secure permission to go to the dance, astonished and thrilled at the first real kiss she had ever known. Given permission, Pippin attends the dance with Kevin and has a glorious time. Chickie thinks her daughter has gone into the strange land of adolescence too soon. Kevin sails to Europe and his first letter thrills Pippin. Pippin meets a handsome young ensign, Bill Lodge, at a ship dance. He says he loves her before sailing away. Chickie visits some friends and meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. David appears and Chickie is greatly relieved.

Now Go On

Jon went back to college, taking a piece of her heart as he always did. Then Pippin swept into blazing excitement.

"Think of it, darling, going down to Stanford where dad was such a shining light! Puts a big responsibility on the angel daughter."

"It does. You must answer nobly."

"Oh, Helena, you're so cute!"

Chickie thought:

"It would be too cruel to let her find out in a brutal way. At least I can spare her that."

Daughter Puzzled

"He gave it to me before he went away." She hurried, furiously abashed. Had Helena seen her worshiping?

"Oh, has he, mother? I'm so glad. He's handsome, isn't he? I just got a letter—it's about college and things I should do there. I mean the courses I should take. It's a wonderful letter. Oh, mother, I hope I'm going to be a beautiful person—like you are. I want to be just like you. No matter what other girls do, no matter what I'll often want to do, I'm going to keep thinking of you and remembering how you look and how you are. I'm going to be just the same. It's the right way to be."

"Why, Helena, you're not crying, are you?"

"Perhaps I am. Be better than I am, Pippin."

She went softly to the door.

"Oh, mother, what is your sad, mysterious charm?" Pippin wrote in her diary. "There is something so haunting about you. You seem like a spirit. You frighten me. You're not going to die, are you? Tonight you looked so. I had that strange, mad yearning sense of farewell like when Kevin left. I wanted to kiss you. What has given me these wild thoughts? Something tragic in your eyes as though you had come to a parting. God—we could not live if Helena left us.

Kevin's Letter

"Is it your letter, Kevin, that has made me so ready to weep or sing . . . so like an instrument on which the winds make music? It is a living thing—your letter. Beautiful like you are. God—I love you—I love you . . . You have a hook in my heart and I'd be glad if you pulled it living from me. I wish I could die for you."

And this was the gay, glad letter that made such anguish of joy in Pippin's heart:

"Hello, sweetheart of mine—You had a birthday, didn't you? I've sent you a little needlepoint vanity so you can keep your nose white. Seventeen, aren't you, and a big, big girl. Seventeen is a beautiful age, Pippin—an awfully serious age. Are you growing up as an old man wants you to? You must, sweetheart dear, because old hearts are awfully brittle and I don't want mine broken. It will be if I don't find you just the way I left you and more so. When you get down to college, work hard and here's a promise—when I come home we'll have a laboratory and work together. Won't that be slick?

"You were a darling to tell me about your nice Ensign Bill. Always pick them pure like that, Pippin. Two kisses are enough for any of them. That's all I've had. Remember that!

"I send you my love. Cherish it well, and when the young lads throng your court, keep a corner for the old buck waiting on the side lines, and be awfully good, won't you, dear?"

Pippin walked in the clouds. She went down to college. She was lost in the excitement of it. There was never the right time for Chickie to tell.

UNION UNSUCCESSFUL IN VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN—1862, CIVIL WAR

The Union forces of West Virginia, Shenandoah Valley and near Washington, D. C., were consolidated under Gen. Pope (June 30, 1862). Gen. McClellan was ordered to join from the South.

Before they could unite, Confederate Gen. Jackson attacked Pope from the rear, destroying his depots near Manassas. Forced to retreat toward Washington, Gen. Pope resigned; his troops were incorporated into the army of McClellan, who met Lee and Jackson at Antietam Creek, near Harpers Ferry, September 16-17. Gen. Lee gave battle, but, outnumbered, slipped across the Potomac.

Steadily unsuccessful, Gen. McClellan was removed from command in November, Gen. Burnside succeeding him. He advanced on Richmond, stopped by Gen. Lee at Fredericksburg (Dec. 13). Laying behind a natural stone wall (above), the Confederates mowed down the attacking Unionists, who withdrew across the Rappahannock. About 12,000 Union and 5,000 Confederate soldiers fell. Gen. Burnside resigned, Gen. Hooker taking command (January, 1863). (U. S. History)

FORMER AND PRESENT MASTERS OF THE CONTINENT AUSTRALIA

The Australian aborigine, middle-sized, long-headed, with depressed nose, large mouth, yellow to black skin, black hair, is believed by some to be related to the Neanderthal man in quaternary Europe. Their number, like that of the American Indians, is rapidly diminishing.

The small penal colony of the British near Sidney, started in 1788, gradually expanded over the whole continent of about 3,000,000 square miles Population 6,000,000 (80,000 natives.) The fertile ground yields agricultural products in abundance, besides being rich in minerals, including precious metals.

Australia (except New Zealand) is federation of six states; its Constitution is modeled largely after that of the United States, the Federal Parliament having Senate and House of Representatives. The chief executive is the Governor General, appointed by the British Crown and having a cabinet. He exercises the King's powers as his representative.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR—COMPRESSION TYPE

Sulphur dioxide (SO_2), a gas at room temperature, liquefies under low pressure (3atm.). Evaporating, it absorbs heat from the surroundings.

In domestic refrigerators SO_2 is compressed by electromotor driven compressor, in the condensing coils; the heat of compression is taken away by cooling fan. Liquid SO_2 flows into the receiver, elevated by gas pressure into the cooling unit header, where it evaporates, lowering temperature (absorbing heat). Gas, sucked in by compressor, repeats cycle. BLINDFOLDED ON ROPE OVER NIAGARA

Years ago the acrobat Blondin wheeled a girl, on a rope, across the Niagara, a marvelous balancing feat. It can be explained only by the keen development of the sense of equilibrium. The organ of equilibrium is contained in three loop-like tubes (each ear), nearly perpendicular to each other (see pigeon's skull), connected by a branch of the auditory nerves with the brain.

ORGAN OF EQUILIBRIUM ATTACHED TO INNER EAR

The three semi-circular canals connected to each inner ear have at one end a swelling "ampulla" containing a ridge where fibers of one branch of auditory nerves end. To the ridge are attached cells with hairlike processes. The semi-circular canals are filled with endolymph. In the "ampulla" are otoliths (small calcareous particles) which move with the endolymph when the head changes position and stimulate nerve fibers that report to the brain. The brain integrates the messages resulting in the sensation of the change of position or of balance.

One canal, or its nerves, injured, the person or animal cannot keep balance in the plane of the injured canal.

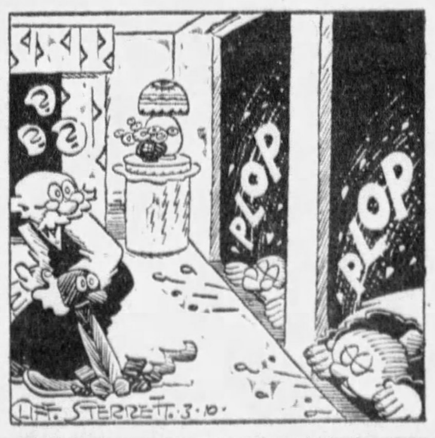
Two Hearts That Beat as One



Bugs Baer

The Meanest Thieves of All

After delving and scramming into the tortured details, Prof. Blinky said, "This is the first instance I have discovered of an egg feathering its own nest."

Seems that a lot of money evaporated in transit. The result is that we now know why some airplanes didn't fly. The boys drank up one wing and attached a parachute to the cash register.

Strange thing about the lads who count the people's money. The old honest clerk used to wet his fingers and thumb on his tongue. Now they dip the same fingers in glue.

However, we can always investigate what's left of what should be there. It never is. But that doesn't prevent us from sobbing gently into the megaphone of public opinion.

Malfeasance in public office should be punishable by something far more severe than a loss of a high silk hat and a season ticket to the ball park.

That's all the punishment there seems to be now. In China and Russia they park 'em up against a sturdy stone wall and make punch boards out of 'em.

Here, all a man has to do is to resign, wait until the clamor fiddles down and then apply for a pension.

If that is civilization we will go back to the cave and growl at the moon. It is bad enough to steal, but it's worse when they want a pension for it.

Over here, whatever you do in office seems to be part of the job. We have hours for being honest.

The law says you are guilty of the greater crime. Therefore, the man who diverts government money for charity has murdered women and children who should get food and milk.

True, we've caught a lot of mice. But we never got the big rats who belled the cat.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Parenthesis lines running from the sides of the nostrils to the lip corners should be caught when they're young. Apply a heavy massage cream, place the thumb at the lower line, first finger just above the thumb, go skipping upward with little nips, using the fingers as a board, the thumb as an iron. The line will be lifted up out of its tissue bed. Follow with an ice rub and applications of an astringent lotion.

Ears grow old, same as hands and faces. They require the same care as that accorded to the complexion. Sometimes the first lines appear in the tissues directly in front of the ear. Give the sound receivers a quick friction with cream at night. Powder them when prettying up. Bestow upon the lobes a light shadow of rouge.

There are various ways of removing superfluous hair. Depilatories will make a clean sweep of them, the electric needle burrows down to the papilla in which the root rests and puts it out of business, certain rays are employed. No need of being cursed with witch-like bristle when there are ways of deleting them.

Have you noticed how many white haired ladies are wearing their glorious crowns blue? Blue hair, fancy that! Some are using a French bluing that imparts a purple cast. Others shake over their heads a blue powder. Oh, yes, it comes off on the pillow case and is a good deal of a bother. But what does that matter if they make a sensation of the bridge party?

A Separate Criminal Court

District Attorney Park's Proposal Has Much to Commend It—Comment on Local News

The Allegheny County Bar Association is to be commended for its efforts to speed up justice and make it more certain. The association is a conservative organization, and is slow to accept innovations. It has been criticized for its inertia, its hesitation in responding to public demands for reform. This makes all the more impressive the cordial reception that has been given to District Attorney Andrew T. Park's proposal that a separate Criminal Court be established with permanent judges.

*District Attorney Park suggested a separate Crim*inal Court in an address on "Criminal Law and Criminal Procedure" at the regular quarterly meeting of the Bar Association, and we learn from the Pittsburgh Legal Journal that his ideas have been received with favor by members of the association. Hence it seems reasonable to suppose that legislative action may be expected at the next session of the General Assembly in an attempt to put them into effect.

Assistant District Attorney John F. Haggerty has given a good deal of study to the question of the desirability of a separate Criminal Court and made it the chief plank in his platform as a candidate for the bench. The way has accordingly been paved for a thorough discussion of the proposal. It may be taken for granted that without such a discussion it will get nowhere.

It is contended that a separate Criminal Court would mean that only judges experienced in criminal procedure would sit in criminal cases. The rules of evidence in criminal law, it is explained, are more complicated than in civil suits and call for a keen and experienced mind. Judges who spend most of their time in Common Pleas Court sometimes show woful incompetence, it is declared, when sitting in criminal cases.

*The plan for a separate Criminal Court contem*plates the creation of new judicial positions. This would leave the 14 judges of the Common Pleas Court free to devote all of their time to that court, and would furnish an opportunity for the court to catch up in its work, in which it is now from two to three years behind. Suits would be more promptly brought to trial and the reproach of "the law's delay" eliminated.

The new court and new judges would make it no longer necessary to employ visiting judges who at best are not entirely satisfactory. On the other hand, however, new judges would place a permanent new burden on the taxpayers; and it is not to be forgotten that when Senator James J. Coyne proposed several years ago to increase by two the number of our Common Pleas judges vigorous opposition developed and killed the plan.

Another proposed change in criminal procedure that is being given consideration by some of Allegheny County's lawyers is that the grand jury system be abolished and the functions of the grand jury taken over by an inquisitorial judge. The citizens, we believe, will be—and should be—much more reluctant to assent to any such change than to the proposed establishment of a new court.

*The grand jury system may be, as is said, enor*mously expensive. It may be that the grand jury is merely the docile instrument through which the presiding judge or district attorney acts. It may be that if we dispensed with the grand jury we could expedite the transactions of the Criminal Court's business. Nevertheless, it does offer a potential instrument through which the people can proceed against crime in case the Criminal Court judges and the district attorney fail them.

Although seldom exercised, the grand jury has the right to institute investigations on its own initiative and to draw up indictments independently of the District Attorney's recommendations. That is a right which might be of immense value to the people in case the judges and the district attorney refused to do their duty; it is a right which the people should not thoughtlessly surrender.

A popular demand has risen that Supt. Ben. R. Marshall of the Police Bureau be appointed Director of Public Safety. The proposal is impressive because of its spontaneity. A number of persons seem to have thought at the same time, and independently of each other, "Ben Marshall would make an excellent director; he is the very man that Pittsburgh needs for the job."

J. P. Findley, of the Jenkins Arcade Company, voices a widespread feeling when he says: "Supt. Marshall as Director of Public Safety would undoubtedly place Pittsburgh as a Class A city of safety and decency. The men and women working under Ben R. Marshall as Public Safety Director would be holding their places on the merit system. Discipline would be restored. Respect for public officials, police and firemen would be restored."

A person euphemistically called "the queen of the underworld" is shown through the filing of a will to have accumulated property valued at $157,000. To what extent this fortune was gained through the debauching of young women and young men we do not know. But this we do know—that so far as the things that are really worth while are concerned crime does not pay. And we welcome the announcement that a course of instruction which emphasizes this truth is being introduced in the Pittsburgh public schools.

But it is on parents and home influence, and on character-building organizations like the "Y" and the Boy Scouts and the Campfire Girls and the Sunday schools that we must chiefly rely to keep young people from becoming criminals. Not a cold-blooded study of the improbability of becoming rich through crime, but the inculcation of the feeling that it is abhorrent even if it were to make one a multi-millionaire, is the method which in the long run is most likely to be effective.

Celestial fireworks—the shooting stars that so arouse our wonder when we see them dart blazing through the sky—form the subject of an interesting article by Prof. Lucien Rudaux, the distinguished French astronomer, in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Jiggs is having a tough time of it in the installment of George McManus's famous "Bringing Up Father" which will appear in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. You will laugh at him, but you will sympathize, too. It is but one of 30 first-class comics which will be found in Puck.

Reaching Over

(Copyright, 1934.)

For months the illicit narcotic traffic has been reaching over into America from its new bases in the Far East.

Since then the Manchukuo Opium Monopoly began to exploit the poppy fields of Jehol and Manchuria as the world's chief sources of opium and its habit-forming derivatives.

Beyond the control of the International Opium Committee, the conscienceless traffickers of the Far East are able to flood America and Canada with cheap smuggled morphine.

Smuggling from the Asiatic regions became a problem in our West Coast ports before we were aware of the dangers.

It is a continuing problem which must be met. The Pacific Coast States must do their part by way of local vigilance and Congress must see to it that the Federal Narcotics Bureau is able to function efficiently.

That means the Federal Bureau must have at all times sufficient funds and sufficient personnel to do its essential work.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 10.—While every corner of my home is treasured, the den where my desk is holds my most pronounced affection. It is not a surprising room and its bitter torments far outweigh its joys. In it I have floundered with lassitude and lethargy throughout entire nights hammering out dull columns.

No matter in what part of the house I try to be comfortable, I'm irresistibly drawn to the den or, when we put on company manners, "the study." About the walls are strung pictures of dogs, gone and living. Silvered frames of my mother, Dad and Will Hogg. A cozy higgledy-piggledy.

Caricatures by Webster, Briggs, De Beck, Roth. Crayons by Flagg and Christy. In a corner a cavernous full length chair with a bright drop light, a refuge from those sudden overwhelmings of despair and sanctuary for the blissful stretch. In the chair I have wept and gripped the arms tight when the wind blew hard.

A man came today to buy my home for a fairish price. When he left I wandered about, bidding a figurative farewell to this room and that. As always, my circumlocutions ended in the study. I dropped to the chair and sent this telegram: "I must have been crazy. Disregard agreement to sell."

I believe there is no happier man among my friends than Frank Case. His famous Algonquin had not escaped the hotel blight. Little remained but tradition. He had prospered in an honorable business but with prohibition found himself being shouldered out. I have not his word for it but I imagine he was fevered by the bedevilment of collapse and ready to quit when repeal came. Today restaurant receipts that dwindled to $200 a day have ballooned to $1,500. For the first time in a decade entrance ropes are up at lunch and dinner. Rooms are filled. The same thing has happened to the Biltmore, Ritz, Roosevelt, etc.

We left the theater the other night in gallant sortie, flushed with the warm excitement of watching the berthing of a hit. Even Gilbert Gabriel, Percy Hammond and George Jean Nathan remained until final curtain. The stage was still alive, having things to say and saying them magnificently. In our excelsior trudge we decided to turn back at the corner and congratulate the star, whom we knew, in his dressing room. In a faded dressing gown, his grease paint unremoved, he received us, an indigo of woe. In a certain scene, due to a dresser's carelessness he had worn but one snow-white spat. "The critics will pounce on it," he wailed. They didn't. I wondered if they saw? I didn't. What irony to have a play ruined by a thing so useless as a spat!

I wondered if I had made him self-conscious of his happiness.

I wish folks would quit trying to be spry around me. At Earl Benham's this afternoon I ran into Bruce Reynolds after a long lapse. I told him he looked so graciously thin and well that upon departing he went into a few quick flings of the Charleston. Not to be outdone and in a miracle of sprightliness I offed-to-Buffalo toward the elevator, winding up in the familiar old break—rat-de-tat-tat, tat! tat! Now I'll probably be laid up in that easy chair, so highly bespoken above, for a couple of days.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Are Secret Sorrows Sacred?

Secret sorrows—never a mail but one or more comes to my desk. Somebody's guarded tragedy bared—for brief relief— on paper. A broken love bond. A gnawing remorse. A thwarted career. Bitterness of betrayal. Agony of loss by death. Or—hardest of all to bear—the wretchedness of a life that never had anything to lose. Hoarded heartache, and with it the invariable picture of crippled character.

Secret Sorrows—once I pitied them. Once, indeed, I cultivated them myself. Broken dreams—betrayals—a grave I could never forget—these things had come to me also. And I, too, hid them in my heart, not merely because I had been taught that it was "good taste" to hide such experiences, but really because I thought it was impossible to share them.

How could other people possibly understand my suffering? Of course, they had had sorrows. But not such devastating, demoralizing sorrows. They might suffer, within their small limitations, but MY sufferings were DIFFERENT. MY sorrow was peculiar and exclusive, beyond the common comprehension.

Naturally, I didn't state the matter in these words . . . didn't even admit such notions to myself. To the contrary, I tried to be gallant about the "bearing of my Cross" . . . and more generous to those who were bearing lesser ones. And I truly believed I was making a good job of being a Broken Heart.

But, of course, I wasn't! I was making a wretched mess of it. I wasn't brave . . . I was disgustingly Snooty! I wasn't generous . . . I was outrageously Selfish!

In the first place, why should I allow my experiences to "break my heart"? Those experiences had been painful, but it was a normal and natural pain. It was the pain of growth. It was inevitable, in the development of any healthy life that dared to run risks and make experiments . . . dared to reach out toward Wisdom and Beauty. Why should I make a tragedy of that natural process?

Worse yet, why should I make a PERSONAL TRAGEDY of it? Act as if I were Exhibit A amongst the world's martyrs? How egotistical to think that my experience differed from the mass experience . . . that my suffering was more poignant than the suffering of millions of other human beings! It wasn't! It hadn't hurt me a particle more to see my hopes "fa' down and go boom" than it hurt any other intelligent, sensitive soul.

Then why was I making all this fuss? Why was I cultivating a Secret Sorrow? For two reasons—IT GRATIFIED MY EGOTISM, AND IT ALIBIED MY LAZINESS.

Human Vanity is an amazing thing; it will seize upon any material to serve its ends. If it can't make a record out of Success, it will make one out of Failure. If it can't gain the spotlight by Being Happy, it will hog it by Being Sad. For we can attain quite as much prominence by Tears as by Triumphs. And, unless we watch our step, our vanity will trick us into contemptible exhibitionism, even in our most sacred and sincere grief.

And human Laziness is quite as versatile and vicious as Human Vanity. Almost any circumstances may serve as a hideaway, if we want to duck responsibility; and there's no hideaway as convenient as a Broken Heart—or as protected against criticism. For who dare bawl out the Afflicted?

It took me a long time to discover these things about myself, and it wasn't any picnic. Nor am I deceived. I know that Vanity and Laziness will trick and trap me again, as they have in the past, unless I'm eternally on my guard. But I've learned one lesson for keeps—I no longer pity Secret Sorrows, my own or anybody else's. And when I catch myself or anyone else indulging in one, I promptly yell:

"HOW DO YOU GET THAT WAY, YOU BIG CRY-BABY? IF THE REST OF THEM CAN TAKE IT, WHY CAN'T YOU? YOU'VE AN UNMITIGATED NERVE TO ACT AS IF YOU WERE THE WORLD'S WORST MARTYR! SO GET UP AND GET GOING—SCRAM!"

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

My First Love

My first love was more tender
Than any other since;
I saw him crowned with splendor,
A gallant fairy prince!

For fairy tales still lingered
Within my youth's domain,
Then time was rosy-fingered
And dreams had not a stain.

My first love? Ah, he taught me
So beautifully of life;
Its good alone he brought me,
No sorrow and no strife.

So many years, swift-flying,
Since then have come and gone;
But part of him, undying,
Within my life lives on.

My first love made me better
Because I knew his kiss,
And I am still a debtor
To him in every bliss.

Foreign Influence Seen In Air Corps 'Wrecking'

By James T. Williams, Jr.

APPARENTLY the Democratic leadership in the House of Representatives labors under the hallucination that George Washington did not know what he was talking about when in his farewell address he bequeathed to his people this stern warning:

"Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, I conjure you to believe me, fellow-citizens, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government."

Foreign influence, as exercised by aliens and their dupes in the federal city and elsewhere in the country, is going to be "one of the most baneful foes" of some national legislators unless the congressional committees stop using the allegations of itinerant aliens to refute the testimony of the high command of the American Army and Navy regarding the national defense.

This appears to have been going on for more than a year, but the most flagrant example of this astonishing practice appears in the printed hearings of the War Department appropriation bill for 1935 before the subcommittee of the House Committee on Appropriations.

The chairman of this subcommittee—Congressman Ross Collins, of Mississippi—according to the official report of these hearings made the following admission while the chief of the Army Air Corps was testifying.

* * *

Our Planes Said To Be Inferior

AFTER acceding to the request of this officer, Gen. Foulois, not to insert in the public record the confidential data of our own War Department regarding the relative performance of American and foreign airplanes, Mr. Collins said:

"I have charts that were prepared by Maj. MacKenzie-Kennedy, a Britisher, that I will put in the record for what they are worth; I do not vouch for them or agree with these figures. He says every figure has been checked and rechecked. They show our planes as being very much below those of England, France and Italy and even the Japanese."

What the American people will want to know is why a congressional committee should be squandering the people's money cluttering up the record of an official hearing on a national defense appropriation bill with page after page of gratuitous allegations by an alien that British, French, Italian and Japanese aircraft are vastly superior to American aircraft.

What the American people will want to know is why a congressional committee should go out of its way to advertise to the world its apparent doubt of the veracity of the testimony of the high command of the American Army and the American Navy and the reliability of the products of American aircraft factories.

* * *

What the People Will Want to Know

WHAT the American people will want to know is why any committee of Democratic Congress should appear so distrustful of the Democratic administration of the War and Navy departments and of the expert judgment of the high command of the American Army and Navy as to broadcast alien allegations that contradict the sworn testimony of loyal American officials of proven competency.

What the American people will want to know is under what article of the Federal Constitution the administrative details of military or naval procurement can be properly made a responsibility of the legistative branch of the government.

Ever since the American people refused to reject the advice and counsel of George Washington regarding foreign policy, this country has been flooded with foreign agents and foreign propaganda, the purpose of which was to stampede this country into old world political alliances.

Is the country now to be overrun with foreign propagandists and their foreign propaganda, the sinister purpose of which seems to be to undermine the national defense of the United States on land and sea and in the air?

If there are any American "majors" hanging around the British Parliament or any other European Parliament attempting to tell the British government or the French government how their armies and navies should be organized and equipped, the American people have yet to know of it.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

There must be more than one street, if you walk, and it would not hurt you at all to go one block out of your way for the sake of variety.

Get tired of meeting the same people, even on the streets, going to and from work, and wish for a change.

There are thousands just like you but the monotony is all in the mind.

If you had anything worth while to think about you would enjoy that walk or ride to and from work.

It is really a blessing that you have the time between home and your work—that it takes time to get to your work.

Suppose you were crippled or had to be pushed everywhere you went in a wheel chair; then you might complain.

Jean Dempster, Father Hubbard and Their Intelligent Sledge Dogs From Alaska

By Edwin C. Hill

CAME a knock at the door of the little studio this writer uses to put together stories for the air, and pieces for the paper. When the door swung open, there stood on the threshold a bright-eyed little woman, slim, brown, alert, Jean Dempster by name.

The special job she has made for herself is to teach Eskimo children, far up in the frozen North in the Arctic Circle. And when she isn't teaching the three Rs to the roly-poly Eskimo tads, she is out with her great silver-gray dogs, swinging over snow and ice . . . "Mush, mush, you malemutes." One of the very few expert women Alaskan sledge-dog drivers in the northern picture.

And at Jean Dempster's side, and completely filling the doorway, was just about the most magnificent dog these eyes ever gazed on—and a dog with a history. "Klony" is his name—Klondyke, of Nome. He's a personal friend of two great adventurers of science, Admiral Dick Byrd and Father Bernard Hubbard, of Santa Clara University of California—the "Glacier Priest," the "Apostle of the Volcanoes" as they call him, because of his thrilling explorations of the vast living volcanoes of Alaska and the eternal glaciers which go edging inch by inch toward the sea.

To anybody who loves dogs, Klondyke, of Nome, could not fail to inspire a thrill of admiration. A real husky, three parts wolf, but as gentle as a lamb. Full eighty-five pounds in weight, with a marvellous, thick, soft, lustrous coat of silver and black in which one can plunge one's hand up to the wrists. It's not every day that one receives such a notable visitor, a great kind fellow who has saved human life, and carried the United States mails, and never failed in any task demanded of him.

Klondyke Has Had Many Adventures

In the harness since he was six months old, carrying the mail from Nome to Point Barrow up in the Arctic Circle, going down with Father Hubbard into the steaming bowels of Aniakchak, whose eruption, three years ago, caused the earth to tremble, and the leading man, as well, in two motion pictures. Klondyke of Nome is all dog, from the tip of his bushy tail to the tip of his blunt nose. Like all wolf dogs, there isn't much bark in him, but his talent for song is notable, and while we visited he raised his deep voice in some sort of mysterious chant, trying to tell me all about Alaska and the snow trails and the Valley of Ten Thousand smokes, and the hard, dangerous life, that such as he knew, far away from civilization and the great cities. And when he departed, this splendid chap going with a polite aria all his own, my mind went to running of his kind, without which human life wouldn't be worth much north of sixty-three.

If you want a perfect picture of the malemutes of Alaska, read Father Bernard Hubbard's stirring book, "Mush, You Malemutes," or better still, talk to that remarkable explorer yourself. He had never driven Alaskan sledge dogs, or had much experience with them, until he went up to the Far North a few years ago to study the active volcanoes of Alaska. Hundreds of dog stories—stories about the courage and endurance and heroism of the sledge dogs, he had heard of course, and he found them all to be true. It was then that Father Hubbard met for the first time a score of dogs that became his personal friends.

It was an inspiring meeting, that one. Sixty below zero. The semi-darkness of the frozen snow-covered land and the lurking shadows. The pale, cold, clear sky with its myriad stars, the moon three-quarters full, lying low on the horizon. The utter silence of it all. Alaska magic, they call it, with instinctive sense of its power. And then a high-pitched long-drawn out howl breaking the frigid silence. Then another howl from a different quarter. And then from hundreds of throats bedlam breaking loose, the famous bedtime chorus of the Alaskan wolf-dog, weirdly inspiring, the cry of the wild, like the cry of lost souls. And presently he was learning to mush or drive, holding the long whip over 13 dogs eager and straining to be off.

So Father Hubbard rode his sledge, marveling to the beauty of the northern horizon, where huge arcs of light formed and searchlight shafts came streaming down to the snow—the mystic streamers of the sky, the Northern Lights. Luminous curtains of the heavens, falling with an audible silken rustle. It was on these trips that the Priest of the Glaciers met his favorites, Katmai and Margey, which are with him today, in his home at Santa Clara, and he wouldn't take a fortune for either. And here is the true story of how the friendship began between the priest and the great wolf dog of the North.

Katmai's Lesson In Etiquette

WHEN you feed Alaskan dogs you have to be careful.. It is a business proposition with them and they don't want to be bothered with etiquette. If you try to hand an Alaskan husky his dried fish in any delicate fashion, you are likely to lose a finger or two. You have to toss it at him, forward-pass it. But Father Hubbard wanted Katmai to have good manners, so he handed him fish one day.

Katmai didn't snap at Father Hubbard's hand, but he loosed a warning growl. Father Hubbard slapped his nose and gave him a talking to. That night he went to the dog stalls to see if all was well. He wondered, too, what effect the slapping was going to have on Katmai. And Katmai was the first dog he saw at the stalls. Standing out on the snow, he was waving his big fox-brush tail, trying to attract Father Hubbard's attention.

He had something very important on his mind, for he danced on his front paws and sang deep down in his throat. When Father Hubbard came close, Katmai darted into his stall and came out with a piece of dried fish in his mouth. Gently he set it down at Father Hubbard's feet, and then looked up with his big, brown eyes, saying as plainly as if in words: "That was a very unfortunate mistake—my growling at you. Please accept this piece of fish."
